LASSETTER'S,
ARE THE LARGEST UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS.

FLANNEL.

We give THIS MOST useful MATERIAL our most earnest solicitude. WHERE TO BUY IT, WHAT KIND TO BUY, and WHAT PRICE TO PAY are THREE POINTS which engage our attention.

WE BUY
DIRECT FROM MANUFACTURERS.
WE BUY
THE BEST ONLY.
WE BUY
AT LOWEST PRICES,
because we pay
SPOT CASH.
FOR ALL WE BUY.

These are the THREE POINTS OF EXCELLENCE in BUYING, and they save US A GOOD TURN in ALL WE BUY. We are THE ONLY RETAILERS in Sydney who can TRUTHFULLY say as much, who include all THESE THREE POINTS OF EXCELLENCE in buying in their programme.

CONSEQUENTLY WE SELL FLANNEL,

as well as EVERYTHING ELSE, at lower PRICES than OUR CONTEMPORARIES charge for similar GOODS that have been INCREASED IN PRICE by being HELD BY WAREHOUSEMEN for a while, and by BEING PAID FOR by LONG-DATED PROMISSORY NOTES.

MAKING PROMISSORY NOTES

is an ACTIVE INDUSTRY in connection with Sydney retailers. They are always at it; THE WORK it makes NEVER CEASES; and many a PEN is WORN OUT in the service. And this continuance appears in a large measure for the HIGH RATES charged by all the other Sydney Shops. Compare them with

ANTHONY HORDERN'S
FAMOUS LOW PRICES,
AND YOU WILL FIND IT OUT.

Following is A LIST of various KINDS of FLANNEL sold by us. The list, as will be seen, includes the CELEBRATED FLANNELS of NEW ZEALAND, as well as the FINEST manufactures of ENGLAND and FRANCE.

NEW ZEALAND FLANNELS.

It is not necessary to say a WORD IN THEIR FAVOUR. They are NEW ZEALAND FLANNELS—that is sufficient.

MOSGIEL, unshrinkable, in fine and heavy makes, suitable for Ladies' or Gentlemen's wear; Grey, Fawn, and White, 1s 2d, 1s 4½d, 1s 7d, 1s 9d, 2s, 2s 6d; Navy, 1s 9d, 2s 3d, 2s 6d.

KAIAPOI, very fine, soft, and warm for winter underclothing; Light, Mid., and Dark Grey or Fawn, 2s 3d yard; Navy, 2s 6d yard.

VICTORIAN FLANNEL.

When the CUSTOM-HOUSE AUTHORITIES get clear of the CHAOS in which they are at present involved, and when the alleged necessity for those INGENIOUS WEAPONS of TORTURE, INTER-STATE CERTIFICATES, has disappeared, then will we BOOM VICTORIAN FLANNEL to the last inch.

GEELONG, Fawn, Grey, and White, 10d, 1s, 1s 1d, 1s 3d, 1s 4d, 1s 6d.

CASTLEMAINE, White and Grey, 1s 1d, 1s 3d, 1s 5d yard.

WELSH FLANNEL.

It lives in our memory that "TAFFY WAS A WELSHMAN," and the best of men, and that the FLANNEL known as WELSH is of the most excellent manufacture. Here are OUR PRICES, which we warrant are TWENTY PER CENT. UNDER anyone else's for the same goods.

MEDIUM, suitable for Men's Underwear, &c., 10½d, 1s, 1s 2d, 1s 3½d, 1s 4½d, 1s 6d per yd.

FRENCH FLANNELS.

JOHNNY CRAPAUD, spite his dislike of everything English, has a habit of booming OLD ENGLAND'S FOES, and his threats anent avoiding "the tight little island," manages somehow to place a GOOD QUANTITY of Flannel upon the ENGLISH and COLONIAL MARKETS. That is because JOHNNY CRAPAUD'S FLANNEL is good. So long as that happens, JOHNNY can cry "Perfide Albion" as loud as he likes. He takes Anthony Hordern's QUIDS and Anthony Hordern takes his FLANNEL and sells it at TWENTY PER CENT. under any other Sydney house.

ELECTORAL, very soft, for Ladies' wear, 1s 10d yard.

COLOUR PHOTOGRAPHY.

THE SYDNEY PRESS SPEAKS:—

The Sydney Morning Herald says:—"Although the efforts of photography in natural colours have not as yet gone further than the familiar three-colour process with half-tone blocks, yet Mr. Mark Blow, of The Crown Studios, has conducted experiments with remarkable results. His new process gives such a finished effect that they at any rate closely resemble the unattainable ideal of natural colour photography. THE PLEASING HIGH LIGHTS, THE SOFT GRADATIONS, AND THE BEAUTIFUL BLENDING OF TINTS afford results that quite justify the importance Mr. Blow attaches to his new process."

The Daily Telegraph says:—"Mr. Mark Blow has succeeded in introducing a process of colour-finishing of photographs in such perfection that they have all the appearance of photographs in natural colours. THE CLEVER HANDLING OF THE VARIOUS COLOURS, THE RICHNESS OF THE PURE TINTS, AND THE NATURAL BLENDING OF TONES make it difficult to distinguish these pictures from what one would expect in true natural colour photography."

The Evening News says:—"They appear like photographs in natural colours. THE RICHNESS OF THE COLOUR SHADES, THE PURITY OF THE TINTS, AND THE SKILFUL BLENDING reflect the greatest credit."

The Town and Country Journal says:—"The portraits have had the colours applied during the process, so that no trace of how they are put on appears on the surface. They seem to be in the actual texture of the portrait itself. The result is extremely pleasing. The various tints are handled with GREAT ARTISTIC SKILL, AND THE WHOLE MAKES A CONSIDERABLE ADVANCE ON THE OLDER METHODS."

The Bulletin says:—"Like Africa, Mr. Mark Blow is always producing something new. His latest effort is in the shape of Coloured Photographs—beautiful pictures. The black and white portrait never really gives the personality of the subject; but these new pictures from the Crown Studios show the best girl as she really is—the brown of her hair, the amethyst of her eyes, and the delightful peach blossom on each dainty check. The writer intends to get his best girl's portrait taken there next week, and to owe the money."

The Australian Star says:—"Remarkable as has been the advance in the photographer's art, Colour Photography has been so far impossible of realisation; but Mr. Mark Blow, of the Crown Studios, has some charming specimens which defy all efforts to disabuse the mind of the fact that they have not been reproduced through some hitherto unknown powers of the camera. It is a distinctly new process, and shows life and colour, light and tone in such even conjunction as to approach nearer to nature than any previous effort. Natural colour photography, were it ever attained, could not produce anything more lifelike. One great feature is, that the process can be employed with equal success in landscapes as in portraits, and it should become distinctly popular in both branches."

The Sydney Mail says:—"Charming portraits, admirably tinted in natural colours by a new process, and in which the colouring is so laid on the photograph as to give a smooth and soft effect which is particularly happy."

IT IS NOW GENERALLY RECOGNISED THROUGHOUT THE COLONIES THAT THE PORTRAITS PRODUCED FROM THE EDEN PHOTO STUDIOS ARE UNIFORMLY ARTISTIC IN THEIR CHARACTER. HARDLY AN ORDER IS SENT OUT BUT WHAT WE RECEIVE A LETTER EXPRESSING THE WRITER'S APPRECIATION OF THE WORK AND THE FAITHFULNESS OF THE LIKENESS. OUR ARTISTS ARE THE BEST THAT MONEY CAN SECURE, WHILE NO STUDIO IN AUSTRALIA APPROACHES THE EDEN PHOTO STUDIO FOR THE BEAUTY OF ITS FURNISHINGS AND THE COMPLETENESS OF ITS APPOINTMENTS, WHILE THE MODERATE PRICES ASTONISH EVEN THE PHOTOGRAPHIC PROFESSION. ONE CAN OBTAIN FOR THE SUM OF FIFTEEN SHILLINGS A BEAUTIFUL ENLARGEMENT FRAMED COMPLETE AND 12 HIGH-ART CABINETS, OR IF YOU DO NOT REQUIRE THE ENLARGEMENT YOU CAN HAVE ONE DOZEN OF THE FASHIONABLE PARIS PANELS FOR THE 15s. IF YOU HAVE AN OLD PORTRAIT YOU WISH ENLARGED AND WILL FORWARD IT TO US WE WILL SEND YOU PRICES BY RETURN, BUT IT MUST BE REMEMBERED THAT IT COSTS MORE TO COPY FROM AN OLD PORTRAIT THAN TO PHOTOGRAPH A PERSON DIRECT. OUR SPECIMENS ARE ALL PICTURES PICKED FROM ORDERS, AS WE DO NOT SPEND HEAPS OF MONEY IN INVITING ACTRESSES, &c., IN MAKING EXPENSIVE SHOW PORTRAITS OF THEM IN THE HOPES OF DELUDING THE PUBLIC THAT THEY CAN BE MADE TO LOOK AS WELL. YOU CAN SEE IN OUR FRONT VESTIBULE THE CLASS OF WORK WE PRODUCE, WHICH IS ART IN ITS HIGHEST SENSE, WHILST OUR WEDDING PORTRAITS EXCITE THE ENVY OF EVERY PHOTOGRAPHER IN AUSTRALIA.

THE ANGELUS ORCHESTRAL.

A PERFECT PIANO-PLAYER AND A PERFECT SELF-PLAYING ORGAN COMBINED.

YOU HAVE A PIANO. The Purchase of an Angelus will give you an Organ also, and, best of all, you will be able at any moment to command the best music of which either PIANO or ORGAN is capable.

Some of the most beautiful effects imaginable can be produced by availing one's self of this possibility of the Angelus—starting, for instance, with Piano alone, then changing to Organ, and finishing with Piano and Organ together.

THE AEOLIAN

is really a Solo Orchestra brought within the home, and can be played by every member of the family. It opens up the rich field of Orchestral Music to everyone. As its technical capacity is unlimited, it enables the player to execute every note of the score, an achievement which is next to impossible for two hands to accomplish. While the AEOLIAN has technical powers immeasurably beyond those of the most skilful technician, the performer is complete

MASTER OF THE EXPRESSION.

This is the secret of the AEOLIAN fascination. It responds to every shade of feeling in the mind of the player. The great popularity of the AEOLIAN in remote country districts is a pertinent illustration of its practical value. In such places, away from any chance of musical entertainment, an AEOLIAN provides the pleasure, not only of hearing any composition one's mood may call for at any time, but also of producing the music one's self.

If you cannot call and hear the AEOLIAN, write for Catalogue giving full particulars and Illustrations.

U can learn Shorthand without a teacher, or with the doubtful assistance of an inexperienced or incompetent teacher; but if U want to save valuable time and money, and to avoid unnecessary worry and drudgery, and to get a good situation, it will pay U to go to a tip-top Teacher. CHAPTER IX.
FOR ATONEMENT.

For the first few days at the house in St. James's Square, Alice, strange and ill at ease, followed her patron about with wondering looks, not understanding what this transformation might mean. To Isabel she seemed always on the point of asking "Who are you?" "Why do you do it?" "What debts have to be paid?" These were the whispers of an unquiet conscience. The girl knew nothing about the debt that had to be paid, nor had she been taught to connect her father's troubles with the name of Mrs. Weyland.

The stately house frightened the girl at first; the lackeys in their livery; the glass coach with the coachman in his hammerstall, and the four horses; the presence at the dinner-table of the brother-in-law, who grew daily more proud as he grew poorer, until by the end of the month Lucifer himself was humble by his side; the walk in the park among the beaux and the fine ladies; the life without anxiety for the morrow's food; her own large and well-furnished room; the dresses which her patron gave her; the unfailing kindness with which she was treated; the absence of her father, with his half-drunken mornings and his wholly drunken evenings;—all these things together made her like unto one who moves in a dream. Shakespeare represents the drunken tinker changed into a gentleman suddenly in his sleep; I could wish that he had carried that transformation through the entire play, making him the principal actor and the hero of the piece, not a mere spectator. Alice was transformed into the companion of a gentlewoman, not in a dream, but while broad awake. The witch of St. James's Square appeared upon the scene like the fairy in the story of Cinderella; her rags dropped from her; she emerged habited like a young gentlewoman; her mother's squalid lodging became an abode fit for a respectable citizen's wife; starvation vanished; she herself was driven away, still Cinderella, in a coach and four to that part of the town where there is no penury, no starvation, no awful dread of the morrow, but in their place a constant cheerfulness, interrupted only by the minor emotions, such as toothaches, other aches, or a run of bad luck. Why should it last? Why had it begun? What did it mean?

"Child," said Isabel, "when will you forget the past? I see the memory in your eyes. Things will not vanish. The days of misery are gone. You shall have no more suffering—you and your mother, if I can hinder. What does your mother say?—she is reconciled to your stay with me?"

"She cannot believe her own happiness. O madam, she will live! She is already strong. Good food and no more anxiety have made her well."

"And your father?"

"Except for father——" said Alice.

"But why except him? Does he illtreat her?"

"Not unless you call drunkenness illtreatment. Since we have been more comfortable he is more drunken than ever. Mother gives him something every morning, and he goes about among his friends just the same. To get rid of his importunity they give him drink."

"Does you father ask where the money comes from?"

"No; it drops from heaven, he thinks, as indeed, madam, it does! He makes no inquiries."

"Does he not ask after you?"

"Madam, if he were to hear that I was dead and buried he would make no inquiries. Drink has destroyed his natural affections; so long as he can get drink he cares not how he gets it, or who pays for it, or what becomes of his wife and daughter."

"My dear," said Isabel, "it is a terrible thing for you that your father has become—such as he is. 'Honour thy father'—how can you honour him?"

"Madam, I have been taught how to keep that commandant by my mother. So long as I can remember, father has been drinking. My mother says that I must honour him as he ought to be, not as he is."

"As he ought to be? Yes. But how do you know what he ought to be?"

"Mother is pious and well skilled in holy writ. She was the daughter of a country clergyman. She says that the Lord has given to every man his own mind as well as his own face; he may ruin his face by an evil life, and will also disfigure and distort his mind in the same way."

"I see, child. Go on."

"She remembers him as he was—a young man sprightly and comely, eager for work, and full of hope; a young man who intended to become a common council man, and thought that with good luck and hard work he might become alderman of his ward and even Lord Mayor of London. This is the man she loved and loves still, not the man whose face is covered with red spots and his nose swollen with drink; not the poor man who falls on the stairs and reels about the room and drinks small ale in the morning before he can even speak. I am to think of him as mother first knew him, and then, she says, I can pray for his restoration and thank God for giving me a father with so many gifts and qualities."

"Your mother, Alice, is a wise woman. Truly the law must mean something of that sort, because we cannot honour a criminal—or a drunkard. Tell me, does he ever speak to you of the—the cause of his bankruptcy?"

"He never speaks to me at all."

"Does he never speak to your mother about it?"

"Alas, madam! it was the tavern that destroyed him—always the tavern. What need to speak of what my mother knows too well, and of what has pulled him down and kept him down?"

Then by a thousand arts Isabel sought to win the girl's confidence and affection, as well as her gratitude—the latter of less importance. She found that Alice was fond of reading, and gave her books;—and of playing her harpsichord (she had a light and delicate touch); Isabel gave her music;—and of singing (she had a voice clear and full and of great compass); Isabel bought songs for her—the songs and music of Arne and Purcell and others. She invited Oliver to come and sing with her, as their voices went well together; she invited her friends to the house, and gave them singing instead of cards. She took the girl to the play, to Vauxhall and Marylebone; she took her, with Oliver, up the river in the warm evenings of August, while the moon lay upon the broad bow and the boat quietly floated down the river, which lapped the bows,—the young voices of the two rose and fell together. She found out things that the girl liked, and gave them to her. In a word, she did her best to make her love the world, and rejoice in her youth and beauty, and forget the dreadful past. She watched the expansion of the blossom, closed up by frosts, in the warm soft airs of affection. She saw how the taste for dress and finery—woman's instinctive gift—was born in the girl's mind and quietly grew; how she came to be delighted by a ribbon and rapt by a touch of colour; how the benumbing influence of her penury dropped from her like the ragged cloak of a mendicant, and was forgotten. All women are born for happiness and warmth, plenty and love. A poor girl is a woman incomplete. A girl who has to work for her livelihood is a woman whose mission in life has failed; she should have been happy in giving happiness to others. "Some day," Isabel thought, thinking upon her and watching her, "Alice will be loved and will fall in love; then she will become what the Lord meant her to be. Heaven send her a worthy mate!"

It was an act of atonement, as I have said, which led Isabel to take possession of the girl; but it was affection which caused her to keep the girl. "Some debts," she said, "must be paid."

From time to time she remembered the words of Mrs. Brymer. "The girl," said Mrs. Brymer, "will do you a mischief—for sure and certain she will do you a mischief. She is bound to do you a mischief."

Every woman is a witch; every woman can foretell the future—though some are not so far-sighted as others; and every woman knows this power of her sex. The words, when she remembered them, gave Isabel a passing uneasiness; yet she put it aside. How could this girl, who loved her, do her a mischief? It was impossible. Yet mischief may be done even by those who are all unconscious of evil either in thought or in deed.

No one certainly, after a time, would have believed that the girl was the daughter of a drunken, degraded wretch such as her father; no one would have believed that she had gone through so terrible a time of privation and anxiety, that she had been dressed in rags and pinched with hunger. Now her cheek was touched again with the dainty bloom of youth; her beauty was apparent to all the world; her eyes no longer shone like lights of despair upon a pitiless world her step was light, her carriage free. She carolled like a bird about the house; she ran after Isabel and anticipated all her wishes; she became her secretary; she kept her household accounts; she became keeper of the wardrobe.

Isabel looking on, every day rejoiced with complacency over the thought of atonement.

"Surely, surely," she said to herself, "the debt is paid. The mother is happy because the girl is happy, and because she is safe. As for the father, I did not lead him into drinking ways, and I cannot cure him. That debt he owes to himself. Yet a little while and the man will be no more. What I owe this man I pay to his wife and child."

Atonements, however, of this kind are not always accepted, nor are they always effectual.

How could the girl do her an injury? She could not. Isabel looked in her frank eyes, and saw that she was to be trusted. The girl was honest through and through; all her thoughts were honest; she seemed not to know that she was beautiful; the eyes of gallants in the park were thrown away upon her; she had, indeed, no thought except of the affection which began with gratitude—of duty which also sprang out of gratitude—of gratitude itself which needed no awakening—of the wish to do something in return for so much kindness, and of the natural joy in the moment which Isabel made so pleasant.

"The girl," said Mrs. Brymer, a prophetess, like all her sex, "will do you a mischief—for sure she will do you a mischief."

Isabel remembered the prophecy. It was absurd! What mischief could this girl—such a girl—do her?

Yet the mischief was begun already; the poor child knew nothing of it and suspected nothing—yet the mischief was begun.

A MAGAZINE FOR THE BLIND.

From Adelaide we welcome the first number of "Morning"—a publication designed specially in the interests of those who, but for the Braille type or some other similar invention, would be deprived of the opportunity of personally keeping in touch with some phases at least of literature. "Morning" is an Australian Braille magazine, edited and published at the Adelaide Industrial School for the Blind. It is got up in an attractive form. The characters have been stamped into the sheets of which it is composed in such a manner as to ensure permanence. It is almost needless to say that not only enterprise but philanthropy must necessarily be involved in the production of "Morning," which, we are informed, is the first magazine in relief type published in Australia.

The drought is with us once again,
The farmer hopes and prays for rain,
The stock die off for want of feed,
Water is an urgent need.
Winter will at last bring wet,
Then coughs and colds we all shall get;
To keep off which we should procure
Some of Woods' Great Peppermint Cure.—Advt.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

CONAN DOYLE'S NEW BOOK.

"THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES."

There may be property in ideas, but in the case of a popular character in fiction the property belongs to the public and not to the author who creates. That, at least, is the lesson to be drawn from the case of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Conan Doyle. The novelist grew weary of his super-astute creation, and (as he thought) terminated his career. But he reckoned without his public. They were by no means tired of their idol, and, refusing to take any notice of Sherlock Holmes's pretended decease, clamoured loudly to the author for more of his wonderful exploits. Meekly he resuscitated the hero and set him forth once more on a tour of thrilling adventure, rich in tangle and mystery.

Thus comes Dr. Conan Doyle's new story, "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Longmans, Green, and Co.), to stir thousands of readers and make them feel grateful to the author who so ably responded to their wishes. The book will increase the writer's circle of admirers and bind more closely those who already owe him allegiance. It is not to be classed with that splendid romance "The White Company," which marks the author's highest achievement, but in its own domain it is first rate. It has action, breathless adventure, and that atmosphere of baffling mystery that exercises such a potent fascination for the majority of readers. Sherlock Holmes himself shows the same eerie cleverness as of yore, and he is entrusted with a plot that demands such a prince of detectives for its successful unravelling. Dr. Watson is associated with him as friend and assistant.

The story deals with the grim legend of the Baskerville hound, as it is called, which has plagued the family for many generations, culminating in the death, in 1889, of Sir Charles Baskerville. The services of Sherlock Holmes are enlisted to unravel the mystery connected with this latest death of the head of the house. The origin of the legend, as stated in an old manuscript, is that in the time of the Great Rebellion Hugo Baskerville, of wild and wanton ways, carried off and imprisoned in a room in the Manor the daughter of a yeoman close to the estate. The same evening, while carousing with a number of friends, he went to the girl's room with food, only to find that she had fled. Madly enraged, he returned to his friends in the dining-room, and mounting the table he cried aloud before all the company that he would that very night render his body and soul to the Powers of Evil if he might but overtake the wench. One of the revellers suggested that they should put the hounds upon her, which was done, Hugo riding forth with them on horseback. His companions quickly followed him across the moor, but when they had proceeded some distance came on the dead body of the girl, and close to it the corpse of Hugo, while "plucking at his throat, there stood a foul thing, a great black beast, shaped like a hound, yet larger than any hound that ever mortal eye has rested upon." Now, close by the body of Sir Charles Baskerville, which was found in the yew alley at the side of the Manor, there were the footprints of a dog, and the old legend is brought up in connection with this death so many years after. Sherlock Holmes does not accept the story of this supernatural presence. To Dr. Mortimer, who attended on the late Sir Charles, and who is much impressed by local stories of the dreadful apparition corresponding to the hell-hound of the legend, he says:—

"And you, a trained man of science, believe it to be supernatural?"

"I do not know what to believe."

Holmes shrugged his shoulders. "I have hitherto confined my investigations to this world," said he. "In a modest way I have combated evil, but to take on the Father of Evil himself would, perhaps, be too ambitious a task. Yet you must admit that the footmark is material."

"The original hound was material enough to tug a man's throat out, and yet he was diabolical as well."

His investigations take him to Baskerville Hall, in Devonshire, and here Sherlock Holmes comes on traces of the hound, and in the end sees for himself that dread animal. Sir Henry Baskerville, the successor to the estates, is threatened with the fate of Sir Charles and his ancestors before him. Holmes comes to the rescue and smooths out the complications in a masterly manner, which readers will find pleasure in discovering for themselves. The interest is sustained at high pressure right up to the last. Dr. Conan Doyle's book is certain to be received with abundant favour. Our copy is from William Dymock.

LIFE ON THE STAGE.

Mary Anderson in a prefatory note introducing to English readers Miss Clara Morris's "Life on the Stage" (London: Isbister and Co., Limited), describes the author as "the greatest emotional actress I ever saw." It is a matter for regret that Clara Morris, one of the most prominent figures on the American stage, is almost unknown to English playgoers, for in the book before us we have a picture of a charming personality with a vivid account of her personal experiences and recollections. The theatrical temperament, too, is laid bare in all its sensitive, grotesque, and pathetic aspects. We have an unvarnished tale of theatrical life which hides nothing of the privations and unceasing toil that fall to the lot of even the most favoured. There is a recital of drudgery and of hope deferred that should serve as warning to girls who aspire to go on the stage; for with all her wonderful determination and undoubted gifts, Clara Morris found the theatrical career one of unremitting labour. Her narrative, however, is given in such a lively strain, and her difficulties are met and overcome with so much spirit, that we are never wearied or depressed in the reading.

Miss Morris, who was born in Toronto, Canada, began her stage experience at the age of 13. Her greatest successes after she had established herself were in Alixe in "L'Article 47," and in Miss Multon. Concerning these and other plays, together with the actors that appeared in them, she has much of interest to relate. The old question whether actors and actresses should feel the parts they play receives a curious light upon it in some remarks made by Miss Morris on the subject of stage tears. Up to the time of which she speaks she had never been in a play of a longer run than one week. When told that "Man and Wife," in which she was engaged, was likely to go on for an extended season she was very miserable. She says it was not mere ennui over the repetition of the same lines night after night that troubled her, but something far more serious:—

"I had made my hit with the public by moving the people's feelings to the point of tears; but to do that I had first to move my own heart, for try as I would, no amount of careful acting had the desired effect. I had to shed tears, or they would not. Now that is not an easy thing to do to order, in cold blood. While the play is new one's nerves are strained almost to the breaking point—one is over-sensitive, and the feelings are easily moved; then the pathetic words I am speaking touch my heart, tears rush to my eyes, tears are heard in my voice, and other hearts respond swiftly; but when you have calmed down, when you have repeated the lines so often that they no longer mean anything to you, what are you to do then? Really and truly, there were days when I was nearly out of my mind with terror lest I should not be able to cry that night . . . This sounds absurd, perhaps, to a reader, but heaven knows it was tragic enough to me. I used to agonise all day over the question of tears for the night, and I have seen the time when even my own imaginary tomb failed to rouse me. . . . . Everything else—love, hate, dignity, passion, vulgarity, delicacy, duplicity, all, everything can be assumed to order; but, for myself, tears are not mechanical, they will not come at will. The heart must be moved, and if the part has lost its power then I must turn to some outside incident that has power. It may be from a book, it may be from real life—no matter if only its recalling starts tears to weary eyes."

We are all aware of the enormous difference between the actor of to-day and his brother of 20 or 30 years ago. Miss Morris institutes an interesting comparison. She is struck, looking back to the actors of 1865, with the difference between their attitude of mind toward their profession and that of the actor of to-day. If salaries were much smaller then and work was harder, life was simpler. The actor had no social standing; he was not looked down upon, but he was simply an unknown quantity: he was, in short, an actor pure and simple. He had enthusiasm for his profession—he lived to act, not merely living by acting. At the present day Miss Morris finds that our actors have in many cases won some social recognition, and must therefore give a portion of their time to social duties; they belong to clubs which absorb valuable time, and they have to act in long running plays that are made up of smartish wit and cheapest cynicism.

Miss Morris is of the opinion that there is no manager, star, or agent whose experience will enable him to foresee the fate of an untried play. She says that it is a curious thing that what is called an "actor's" play—one, that is, that actors praise and enjoy in the rehearsing, is almost always a failure, while the mistakes made by actors and managers with regard to the value of certain parts are sufficiently illustrated by E. H. Sothern, C. W. Couldock, and Joseph Jefferson, all three of whom made immense hits in parts they had absolutely refused to accept.

The book is a fund of information on all matters theatrical, but its interest extends beyond this in the frank presentation of an essentially human and pleasing character that throughout wins our respect and admiration. Our copy of the book is from William Dymock.

FIVE GREAT PAINTERS.

Sir Wyke Bayliss, K.B., F.S.A., president of the Royal Society of British Artists, has prepared a valuable and interesting work in his "Five Great Painters of the Victorian Era" (London: Sampson Low, Marston, and Company, Limited). The group chosen for honoured mention are Leighton, Millais, Burne-Jones, Watts, and Holman Hunt. In the preface, or as the author prefers to call it, prologue, is given a brief outline of the foundation, the history, and the work of the society from the date of her late Majesty's birth to that of her Jubilee in 1897. We are told that the five painters have not been chosen arbitrarily, but because they stand for the five finest issues to which the painting of human life and action can be brought—the Painter of the Gods; the Painter of Men and Women; the Painter of the Golden Age; the Painter of Love and Life; the Painter of the Christ. Leighton is described as a great painter, a sculptor, a scholar, a man of affairs, a linguist, a courtier, a fine speaker—but before all he was the president of the Royal Academy, and during his period of office he raised the position of art and the status of the artist to a high level. Commenting on the different presence into which we find ourselves translated the moment we turn from the works of Leighton to those of Millais, the author furnishes the explanation by the simple statement that Leighton was an artist—Millais was a painter. He needlessly enlarges his meaning by saying that with Leighton everything passes through the alembic of his imagination—his pictures are incarnations of ideas. With Millais everything is taken direct from the visible world—his pictures are transcripts from nature. Burne-Jones, the author considers, in painting the love and courage and truth of knight-errantry, painted his own character into his pictures. The painter, by the way, was never satisfied with his efforts to express the face of Christ. He considers that if there was anyone of his day who could realise all that is thought and meant by it, he believed it would be Rossetti, though he confessed that he could not remember in what particular work it could be found. It is curious in this connection to recall that it was from the face of his friend Burne-Jones that Rossetti made one of his finest studies for the Saviour. The appreciation of George Frederick Watts is sympathetic and discerning, and the motifs of the artist are set forth with considerable beauty of thought and expression. The painter of Love and Life is not afraid of Time or Death. He makes Time young and Death a woman full of pity. "Why," he asks, "should Time be painted as an old man? It is we who grow old, not Time. And Death—think of the wounds she has healed, the rest she has given after toil." Her lap is filled with flowers. Death is no more an evil than Life.

Holman Hunt's title, the Painter of Christ, is illustrated by remarks concerning his three great pictures, "The Light of the World," "The Flight into Egypt," and "The Finding of our Saviour in the Temple." The book is intensely interesting to all art lovers, and contains a number of admirable reproductions of the masterpieces mentioned in the text. Our copy comes from W. Dymock.

CONAN DOYLE ON THE WAR.

Messrs. George Robertson and Co. forward us a copy from their new shipment of Conan Doyle's excellent pamphlet, "The War in South Africa: Its Cause and Conduct," already noticed in these columns. Its broad circulation is the best possible preventive of Boer calumnies such as those that from time to time appear in the Continental press, and are repeated by pro-Boers in England and Australia. Dr. Conan Doyle clearly sets forth the position of affairs for some years prior to the outbreak of the war, and then traces the various after events, including accounts and explanations of train-wrecking, abuse of the white flag, burning of farms, and execution of offenders. The history is given in a plain, matter-of-fact, impartial way that carries conviction. Already on the Continent its circulation is beginning to take effect in causing a better feeling towards England, for in Berlin two of the leading papers have reviewed it at length and favourably. The pamphlet deserves to be widely read by Englishmen as well as by foreigners, that they may have the true facts of the war at their fingers' ends. "There was never a war in history," says the author, "in which the right was absolutely on one side, or in which no incidents of the campaign were open to criticism. I do not pretend that it was so here. But I do not think that any unprejudiced man can read the facts without acknowledging that the British Government has done its best to avoid war, and the British army to wage it with humanity."

"LIVES OF THE 'LUSTRIOUS."

Apparently as a protest against the solemnity of Miss Marie Corelli or the overwhelming rush and colour of words from Mr. Hall Caine, we get from time to time from the London publishers some gay piece of fooling that enlivens the passing hour, besides acting as a safety valve for the anonymous author or authors. Of such a kind is "Lives of the 'Lustrious," which supplies a set of biographies that are sufficiently bizarre to satisfy the most exacting. We learn, for instance, that Mr. Arthur Wing Pinero, pessimist philosopher, was born far from the madding crowd in 1855, but may be described as a naturalised Irishman. Beginning with a cheerful disposition, he gradually gave himself up to the study of post-nuptial disaster. Mr. Pinero is in the habit of engaging theatres for the periodical display of his sociological conclusions, which, being presented in dramatic form, have been facetiously described as plays. In this style a number of well-known people are handled, but with very unequal results. Our copy is from Messrs. Angus and Robertson.

GEORGE MEREDITH.

George Meredith was slow in obtaining for his works the recognition they deserved. Time, however, made known his strength and beauty to an ever widening circle of readers, or we might almost say, devotees, for no true Meredithian is aught else than whole-hearted in his admiration for the genius of his beloved author. To these numerous ones the excellent little series now being issued at low cost by Messrs. Archibald Constable and Co., Limited, should come with peculiar satisfaction. The printing and paper are good and the general appearance pleasing. A capable critic tells us that we must approach Meredith's books in the same temper as we approach "Sartor Resartus," that we must take a great part of them as prose poetry, and as the prose poetry of a thinker, a humorist, a bard. If we do this then much that might disconcert in style, in theme, in treatment and scope, will seem natural and just. The advice will be found useful for those who have not yet come under the master's magic influence. To return to the dainty volumes before us, the half-dozen that now make their appearance are "Vittoria," "The Adventures of Harry Richmond," "One of our Conquerors," "Lord Ormont and his Aminta," "The Amazing Marriage," "Rhoda Fleming."

AUSTRALIAN HORSES.

From William Brooks and Co., Limited, we receive "Australian Horses: From Paddock to Park," by D. McGillivray, the well-known horse expert. It is a treatise on the scientific handling, breaking, educating, and the general management of horses. A number of splendid illustrations add considerably to the value of the book, which is replete with information on a subject dear to all Australians. A special feature is the emphatic condemnation of harsh and cruel methods in the taming or treatment of horses so often pursued. It is a book which should be found on every country station.

"Scribner's Magazine" for April has a number of interesting features. Richard Harding Davis begins a new novel entitled "Captain Macklin," depicting the adventures of a young military student who went to Honduras to fight with the revolutionists. An important article on "The Gloucester Fishermen" is devoted to an account of night-seining and winter trawling. The number is beautifully illustrated by well-known artists.

"Cassell's Magazine" for April contains a quantity of interesting reading matter. An interview with Sir Alma Tadema, R.A., is noteworthy, and a number of sketches and short stories combine to furnish a most acceptable number.

In "The Conquest of Death," by Helen Wilmans (London: Ernest Bell), we have an exposition of the new system of thought which is making such remarkable progress in America at the present day. The author asks—If by any purely mental process health can be restored to a diseased body, is it not reasonable to suppose that the process can be continued indefinitely; and health, which means continued life, made permanent?

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. Angus and Robertson publish "Australian Songs for Australian Children," by Maybanke Anderson. This is a prettily got up little book, in which the music of old songs or old melodies has been set to verses having reference to this country. The verses are in every case simple and good, suited to children and to the illustration by action for which directions are given in a foot note. "Australia Fair," to a melody by Gluck, is the tune which the late Carl Formes and Signor Foli made popular as "The Mill Wheel." "The Gum Tree," to the tune of "Banker's Wallet," is a capital song for little children, and "The Bonnie Orange Tree," to the tune of "Come, Landlord, Fill your Flowing Bowl" has really charming verses. "The Little Grey Bandicoot," again, has first-rate verse, but the tune, "A-hunting we will go," has departed from the traditional harmonisation, and in that respect is inferior. The publication as a whole should prove popular.

Messrs. W. H. Paling and Co. publish Edwina Edkins's "Coronation Waltz." The pictorial title page is highly attractive, but the music shows an inexperienced hand.

ON STAYING WITH PEOPLE.

It is impossible to lay down rules of conduct for a guest, as each house has its different customs, and each hostess her own ways. There are, however, certain unwritten laws which all persons accepting hospitality from others should conform to. One cannot say that much civilisation has improved hospitality; it may be more of a fine art now, but it is certainly less a sacred duty than when to eat of a man's salt and to break bread at his table conferred a deep obligation on the guest. But, "autre temps, autres mœurs," and in these days the tie between hostess and guest is not of necessity a very close one. The guest is more independent and free to do as she likes, while her hostess no longer feels bound to devote herself to her for the entire visit, or to have a plan for each day's amusement.

Of course, in staying with any great friend, there is no need to adapt oneself. Your ways are her ways, and you have friends and enemies in common. But anyone who makes a practice of much house-to-house visiting will find that a "continuous adjustment of external and internal relations" is necessary.

In one house, for instance, breakfast will be at an "easy nine," while your next hostess perhaps exacts a sharp eight o'clock meal. Why does one never hear of a "punctual" nine or an easy eight?

Or you may abide under the roof of some delightfully candid person, who tells you that she hates being bothered with visitors in the early morning, and that she will serve your breakfast in bed. The eight o'clock bell has a very different sound when it makes no personal appeal to you. Being a person of tact, you don't rise too early. The later you appear the warmer will be your welcome. A charming but capricious hostess once lamented that a three weeks' visit, which was to have cemented a friendship, gave it a deathblow, because her guest arrived on the scene about 10 minutes too soon, before her early morning frown had had time to turn into the daily smile.

One mistake often made by a guest is that of not being truthful when required. Some people seem to think that what they do not like is, in some occult way, less trouble than what they do like. Such persons should be "well shaken before taken"—as visitors. A certain timid damsel at her first breakfast on a visit was confronted with the usual "tea or coffee?" question. As she invariably took tea, she answered "Coffee, please," thinking that her hostess preferred it. She had to drink coffee the rest of the time, and see her hostess and the family all enjoying their tea, being far too shy to admit her mistake. One would prefer the musical lady in "Dodo," who indignantly sends away poached eggs and orders the footman to bring her a "grilled bone."

It were enough to make a would-be guest forswear visiting for ever, could she only hear a party of hostesses relating their experiences on the subject. One says she likes people well enough at breakfast, but does not know what to do afterwards. "I have no use for them again until tea time," she remarks. Another one says she is quite ready for her guests by midday, "but she must breakfast in bed."

"I never want to see mine before 3 o'clock," says another hospitable soul.

"I always encourage mine to go out all day," said the fourth lady.

"My experience is worse than any of yours," said the fifth and prettiest. "I had to go away from home for a month at a most inconvenient time, because some girl wanted to come and stay with me, and I told her I shouldn't be at home, because I didn't want to have her."

"Then why have people to stay with you at all? Why not ask them to dinner?" said a sixth, whose one grievance was that she had no room for guests. "Oh I don't know," replied the first lady indifferently. "The sight of their boots outside the door at night makes me realise I'm keeping the sacred fire of hospitality alight, and that's so cheering—even if the process bores one."

The Eastern nations are far ahead of us "civilised peoples" in respect of hospitality. They may not have cans of hot sent to your room several times in a day, but they give you of their best ungrudgingly, and with that beautiful courtesy which so often characterises barbarians who are untrammelled by the telephone and the penny post. In some places prevails the pretty custom of presenting the "stranger within their gates" with any article he may admire. One distinguished traveller was quite embarrassed by all the lovely things presented because he admired them, and he had perforce to keep his admiration to himself lest his host should have nothing left.

We, in our civilised way, have to modify these customs. We don't kill our pet falcon for the passing stranger, and even the prodigal son is not treated to roast veal so often as might be, though many people think that hospitality, like charity, begins at home. "If I could take my own servants with me I should love staying away," said one experienced hostess, "and yet there's nothing more upsetting to a household than a visiting domestic. It strains the quality of hospitality more than anything else. I would almost rather have a visitor who did her hair badly than put up with the airs and graces of her maid." One remembers the story of a family who were bidden to stay at a country-house, and who were seen coming up the drive with an immense retinue of maids, valets, and other retainers. As the procession disembarked at the door, paterfamilias, mother and daughters, the hostess met them with a sweet if subtly-chilly smile, and said, "I am so sorry that your gardener is ill." "Madam," exclaimed the astonished paterfamilias, "he is not ill—why do you think so?" "Pardon me," said the hostess, "I made sure he must be ill, as you have not brought him with all your other servants."

On the whole, however, most people agree in thinking that visitors should be taken sometimes even if in "smallest occasional doses," like the lady in "Richard Feveril."

"It keeps one up to the mark," an erratic hostess was heard to say; "when I am getting too shabby and dowdy, I ask some very smart girl to stay, and copy her clothes when she's gone."

The pretty hostess has been lamenting that at her last house party she had nowhere to sit. The guests had taken her own particular chair, and there seemed no place for her. "One can't be ordering dinner all day, can one?—even on a station," she asks with pathos.

"Have 'Hostess' printed in large letters on your chair; it's the only thing to do. You ask people under your roof, but you don't undertake to lend them all your furniture."

One remembers a saying in an old etiquette book: "It is the duty of a hostess not to outshine her guests." I looked at our friend and thought how flagrantly, if unconsciously, she had disobeyed this mild precept. On the other hand, if the guest outshine the hostess, will she be asked again? A somewhat vexed question is concerning the duration of a visit. People may know how to come; but they seldom know how to go. One woman attributes all her popularity to the fact that she always arrives late and goes away early; but one should not allow oneself to become the slave of a maxim. It is the old grievance, want of frankness, which causes trouble in these cases. A child's welcome is always followed by the words "How long are you going to stay?" and when it is answered, the hostess breathes again freely, and things are so comfortable. Hostesses should issue tickets of admittance with the dates filled in; but some of us are equal to the occasion without this. A mere man was once asked to stay a few days in the country, one of those vague invitations—"next time you're passing" sort of thing. He availed himself of it, and on arriving said to the hostess with polite uncertainty, "Do you really want me to stay? Is it quite convenient?"

"Oh, go and pawn yourself and lose the ticket," was all the answer he got, and then the servants began to carry in the luggage.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

Beethoven's "C Minor Symphony," to be performed by the Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society for their opening concert on Wednesday, was last rendered under Signor Hazon's direction on September 29, 1897. It has been said of this symphony that it was the piece which introduced Beethoven to the great world outside his own country, just as the "Tannhauser" overture spread abroad the name of Wagner. The opening phrase is that of which Beethoven himself said "That is how Fate knocks at the door," a sentence which will no doubt recall the symphony to the minds of our readers. Turning to the new pieces we remark Coronaro's "Torniamo all' Antico" minuet. This charming little piece was presented to Signor Roberto Hazon by the composer during his visit to Italy in search of operatic artists last year. Signor Coronaro is professor of composition at the Royal Conservatorio of Milan, which famous institution we must now learn to recognise by its new title of Conservatorio Verdi. The most important new work on Wednesday will be the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," forming the third part of the great "Symphonie Dramatique, avec chœurs, solos, et prologue en recitatif choral, composee d'apres la tragedie de Shakespeare, par Hector Berlioz." This was first performed at the Conservatoire de Paris under the composer's baton on November 24, 1839. "Scene d'amour. Tranquil Night. Capulet's garden, silent and deserted." Such is the heading given by Berlioz himself in his score to the scena of which the adagio to be presented on Wednesday forms the greater part. Herein, amidst all the passion of the lovers, is conveyed an undercurrent of uneasiness, an echo of the "too rash, too unadvised," which so unhappily sums up this episode of youthful folly between the scions of two great rival houses. It is interesting to remember that at the time Berlioz composed this symphony he was passionately in love with Miss Smithson, the actress then appearing in Shakespeare's plays in Paris. He heads one chapter in his Memoires, "Apparition de Shakespeare—Miss Smithson—Mortel Amour." Yet a third new piece for this concert is Schumann's "Genoveva" Overture (op. 81), from an opera which met with but little appreciation when first produced at Leipsic in 1850, but which was better understood on its revival in 1875. After that date the work was accepted at Berlin, and throughout Germany. The title refers to a faithful wife slandered by her treacherous brother-in-law during the absence of her husband on a crusade against the Saracens. In the end, as the libretto informs us, "innocent and forgiven" (that is to say, forgiven for being innocent?), instead of being put to death, she is restored to her husband's arms. These are the incidents suggested in the overture.

The decision of the owners not to rebuild Her Majesty's Theatre is likely to prove temporarily prejudicial to the interests of Sydney playgoers, who will have a comparatively dull year or two before them. The playhouse itself was the finest in the city, and there is none that exactly takes its place, and the site was so convenient that it is hardly to be expected that any new theatre will be as well situated. The first effect will be that Mr. J. C. Williamson will be forced to transfer his headquarters to Melbourne. He has, indeed, had offers from more than one syndicate to build him a theatre, but the sites have not been entirely to his liking, and, more important still, the City Council has interfered in the matter. Restrictions and regulations hitherto unknown in Sydney are to be insisted upon, with the result that the whole matter is likely to cause such trouble and worry as Mr. Williamson, for his part, has neither time nor inclination to contend with. The actor-manager has still a considerable lease of the Theatre Royal and he will bring his companies there from time to time. Mr. Robert Brough has a season from mid-June, and after that Mr. George Musgrove becomes sub-leasee, so that it will be some months before Mr. Williamson is again actively represented at this theatre. His musical comedy company is doing well in Perth, and Miss Amy Castles, whose farewell concerts here will be on Saturday, May 24, and the afternoon of May 26, is getting on splendidly in New Zealand. From his London agent (Mr. J. A. E. Malone) Mr. Williamson learns that "Ben Hur" is well performed at Drury Lane, but that, with the exception of the "Simonides" and the "Esther," the company was not as good as the one that played it in New York. At one time it looked as if the Mount of Olives Choral Tableau was going to cause dissension, but the audience quietened down, and the chariot race was a triumphant success. Owing to difficulties encountered in arranging the mechanism for the race, the production had to be postponed from Easter Monday to the following Thursday. At the Shaftesbury Theatre "All on Account of Eliza" went splendidly, but Mr. Malone thought the story too improbable, and had his doubts about the ultimate result. As regards the new comic opera, "Merrie England," at the Savoy Theatre, in spite of the laudatory press notices, Mr. Malone hesitated to recommend an immediate purchase. In this case, too, the experienced agent evidently had his doubts. "Three Little Maids" was in rehearsal at the Apollo Theatre, with Misses Edna May, Ada Reeve, and Hilda Moody to form the trio. Miss Ruby Ray, so recently appearing here in a "Message from Mars," was in the cast, as well as Miss Lottie Venne and Mr. G. P. Huntley. Further news forwarded was that the costumes and material generally for "The Toreador" (the present Gaiety success) were on their way to Mr. Williamson.

Just at this time, when the outside public seems to think that appearances at ballad concerts in London constitute a brilliant artistic triumph, it may not be out of place to allude to the really important successes made by two Australian singers of whom but little is heard. One of these is Miss Lalla Miranda, a fluent light soprano from Melbourne, who sang here several times in 1892 with a company that included Miss Ada Crossley. Mlle. Miranda has passed through the ordeal of operatic engagements at La Hague (Holland) and Brussels during a period of nearly four years. Two years ago she sang Gilda in "Rigoletto" and the Queen in "Les Huguenots" several times with acceptance during the Royal Italian Opera season at Covent Garden, since which time she has filled with distinction an eight months' engagement at the Bordeaux Opera House, and on February 17 last she secured a starring engagement at the Pau Opera House. "Le Memorial des Pyrenees" begins its criticism on February 18 with these words:—"In order to enjoy better the suggestive and agitating music of 'Lakme' the direction conceived the happy idea of engaging Mdlle. Miranda, the Australian prima donna, whose charming appearance and ideally beautiful voice adapt themselves happily to the music of the opera. Mdlle. Miranda's voice is as fresh and clear as water bubbling over rocks." And so on and so on with much flowery effusiveness. It takes an accomplished artist with a fine voice, though not necessarily at all a "great" voice, to fill important engagements of this nature. Then there is Miss Florence Fowl, Mus. Bac. (Melbourne), who is singing at the leading German opera houses as "Madame Ballara." The German papers credit her with a success as Carmen at the National Theatre, Wismar, and she has appeared as Fidelio in Berlin.

In Melbourne the events of the week have consisted in the appearance of two dramatic companies entirely new to that city. Miss Janet Waldorf, Mr. Norval M'Gregor, two other American artists, and all the members of the "Ben Hur" company made their debut last Saturday in "As You Like It," and further importance was given to Mr. J. C. Williamson's Shakesperian season by the reentree of Mr. H. H. Vincent after an absence of 12 years. The critics evidently found themselves at a disadvantage in their efforts to appraise the value of Miss Waldorf's Rosalind. The American actress, fatigued by the preparation for her Sydney season, and further harassed by the law suit terminated in her favour here, caught cold just before leaving Sydney. On her last night at the Theatre Royal she was just beginning to suffer, and no doubt the railway journey emphasised the complaint. Accordingly, on the opening night Miss Waldorf encountered a difficulty in making herself heard, giving quite a false impression of her voice, which Sydney playgoers know to be full in quality and powerful in tone. This evening "Romeo and Juliet" is to be staged, by which time it is hoped that the actress may be able to do herself justice. At the Princess Theatre Mr. Frank Thornton, after an absence of four years, appeared with the new company named in this column last week in "Facing the Music." There seem to be only two important parts in the new farcical comedy, which was welcomed with uproarious laughter. We read that "there are two Smiths, one a rev. gentleman, with a rooted horror of gambling, and the other a very worldly owner of racehorses. Both Smiths have wives who are away, one in Scotland and the other at Dover. A wrongly delivered letter brings the wife of the clergyman to the worldly Smith's flat late in the evening, in his absence, and the new housekeeper shows her to her room. Smith however, after being assaulted and robbed of a large sum of money, does not return until the next morning. He has just discovered the presence in his wife's room of the strange lady, when his own better half puts in an appearance. With a few relations added, a detective and a distracted clergyman, it can well be imagined that there is some slight confusion." Mr. Frank Thornton as the sportive Smith, and Mr. John Denton as the clergyman who is eventually arrested as a burglar in mistake for a criminal known to the police as "Saintly Sam," kept up the fun admirably. "Facing the Music" will be staged at the Palace Theatre on May 31. At the Bijou Theatre "Why Smith Left Home" has been produced, with Mr. George Willoughby in his old part as the distracted husband, Miss Julia Merton in the late Miss Sallie Booth's place as the "cook-lady," Miss Roxy Barton as Mrs. John Smith, and Miss Roland Watts-Phillips, "who was inimitable as Mrs. Billetdoux, the 'auntie' of the piece." Messrs. Willoughby and Geach have seasons in Adelaide and Western Australia before them after leaving Melbourne, so that their return to Sydney will be long deferred. Mr. William Anderson has produced "The Favourite" at the Theatre Royal. In the concert room music-lovers are looking forward to the performance of Tschaikowsky's "Symphonie Pathetique" by an orchestra under Herr Slapoffski's direction. Mme. Slapoffski, who passed through Sydney on Tuesday on her way to engagements at Brisbane and elsewhere, will be the vocalist. Herr Slapoffski is now busily engaged in rehearsing Mr. George Musgrove's new comic opera company. The new principals from England, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lauri, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Piddock, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Courtenay, and Mr. W. Shirley, arrived in Melbourne by the Oruba on Wednesday.

During the past few weeks Mlle. Antonia Dolores has continued her tour of New Zealand under Mr. F. Vert's management. The Dunedin season was so successful that five song recitals were given, and the present month was opened with starring appearances with the local choral society at Christchurch in "The Creation" and "The Messiah." The cast was a strong one, as in each case the bass solos were rendered by Mr. John Prouse. On Thursday Mlle. Dolores opened her Wellington season of four song recitals, and on May 15, 16, and 19 concerts will be given in Auckland. The famous French soprano will sail the next day by the Sonoma for Sydney en route to Melbourne, where her winter tour of Australia will be opened.

NORTH SYDNEY ORPHANS.

The monthly smoke concert of the North Sydney Orphans was held during the week at the local School of Arts. The president (Mr. W. C. Goddard) occupied the chair. There was a large attendance of members and visitors, and a programme was carried out under the direction of Mr. J. Ed. Sykes. The opportunity was taken to present Mr. George Grimm with the gold badge of the club in recognition of his past services and as a token of the esteem in which he is held by his brother "orphans." Mr. Grimm is proceeding to Europe to further his musical studies, and as it was his last appearance he was given a hearty farewell, with every good wish for a safe return. Among the contributors to the programme were Mr. F. Stephenson's orchestra, Messrs. E. B. Absell, A. Noble, J. Williams, J. Scoon, George Grimm, Henry Weir, Cyril Monk, Lawrence Campbell, Mannix, Robyns, Jones, Captain Shelford (R.M.S. Ormuz), the Feldwick Quartette, and others.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE by VITADATIO.

READ MR. JOSEPH COX'S TESTIMONY:

Cox's Villa, Jindalee, N.S.W.,
November 18th, 1901.

Mr. S. A. PALMER.

Dear Sir,—I was a sufferer for about 12 years with a pain in my left side, on the lungs, and I have been under several doctors' treatment without a cure. And I also had a bad cough and spat blood and corruption. The doctors always told me my liver was wrong and out of order, and I was subject to asthma, and I had given up hopes of ever getting right. But on reading of the wonderful cures of VITADATIO in the papers I thought I would give it a trial, and to my great astonishment it worked like a marvel on me. I took it for twelve months at the rate of a large bottle a week, and in October of 1900 (nineteen hundred) two lumps came away from my side, where I used to have the pains, and I kept on taking the medicine for a month after, and I felt thoroughly cured. I have not been troubled with it since, and that is eleven months ago. I am able to do a better day's work to-day than I could fifteen years ago. I am 67 years of age, and I feel it has added years to my life. I am sending this to you for the benefit of other sufferers, and you are at liberty to do as you like with it. I am well known in Jindalee and Cootamundra districts, being a resident of 32 years. Anyone that wishes to write to me about my illness, I will be only too happy to give them all the information I can.

I remain, yours gratefully,
JOSEPH COX.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY W. LUCY.)

The Coming Budget—The Dead Set at Campbell-Bannerman—The New Education Bill—Some London Dinners—The New Stamp—Weird Scene in the Strand—Is it a Joke?

WESTMINSTER, April 4.

Some months ago, at a time when prolongation of the war led to gloomy anticipation of fresh taxation, I timidly quoted the opinion privily communicated by a high financial authority that there was possibility of the Chancellor of the Exchequer framing his Budget of 1902 without necessity of recourse to new taxes. Since then the war has gone forward without appreciable diminution of cost, and more millions have been piled up to be accounted for out of the pocket of the British taxpayer. With the introduction of the Budget close at hand I sought an interview with my friend and asked him what he thought of the prospect in this nearer light. I find him faithful to his earlier conviction that it is not only possible for the Chancellor of the Exchequer to meet his engagements without fresh taxation, but that it is probable he will adopt that course.

To the uninstructed mind the whole thing is a mystery; to a master of intricate figures everything is clear. My friend, working out sums from official figures, arrives at the conclusion that when a short time hence the Chancellor of the Exchequer explains his Budget to the House of Commons he will find himself faced by a deficit of a little over twenty-six millions. A loan of thirty millions would cover the deficit and leave a respectable surplus for contingencies. Should Sir Michael adopt this short and easy way of dealing with the difficulty he will, of course, be accused of adopting cowardly and pernicious principles of finance. His answer will be that the occasion is exceptional, that the advantage to be derived from South Africa after the pacification will pecuniarily be large and permanent, and that it is therefore quite reasonable to spread the payment of costs over a succession of years. Before this appears in print the secret of the Budget will have reached far-off Sydney. This prognostication will be none the less interesting for comparison with the accomplished deed.

One pleasing, and to me surprising, fact appears on the face of my friend's mass of figures. If there were no arrears of war charges, and no prospect of further expenditure on that head, instead of a deficit of twenty-six millions, the Chancellor of the Exchequer would in his forthcoming Budget have a surplus of twelve millions sterling. More than once in recent years has Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, in submitting his Budget and revelling in figures testifying to the growth and prosperity of trade, warned the House and the country that there must be an end to this extension. It has not come yet. In spite of the war and of trade depression in Germany and elsewhere, British returns are marvellously kept up. The ordinary expenditure apart from the war bill also expands. But in the race revenue still draws ahead of expenditure.

One of the curious consequences of controversy round the war is the almost venomous fashion in which Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is assailed both on the platform and in the press. When he accepted the post of leader of the Opposition he enjoyed the distinction of being one of the most popular members of the House. Men on both sides vied with each other in their appreciation of his genial manner, his fair-minded treatment of controversial matters, and his pawky good humour. The outbreak of the war in South Africa and its development have parted many old friends. Men in either camp hotly wrangle. The curious thing is that those who believe the war was inevitable, that its carrying out to the bitter end is indispensable, passing by equally prominent political antagonists, fasten upon C.-B. and sorely buffet him. Lord Rosebery in one House and Mr. Asquith in the other do not spare the Government sharp criticism of its administration of the war. In the matter of the War Office contracts, for example, they have both said some damaging things. Due reply is made with full observance of personal courtesy. But if, as has happened, C.-B. in the very same debate opens his mouth to say much the same thing the Ministerial pack is down upon him in full cry. All this he bears with sweet but not disarming equanimity. Nevertheless it must add much to a position not made enviable by relations with sections of his nominal following.

The fact that Mr. Balfour has personally taken charge of the Education Bill is regarded in some quarters as assurance that this time business is really meant and the bill will be added to the Statute Book before the prorogation. The First Lord of the Treasury does not fully share their confidence. Already, in the freedom of private conversation, he begins to talk in depressed tone and fashion of the future. He recalls the many occasions—from the introduction of the Irish Bill which in 1873 directly led to the break-up of Mr. Gladstone's Ministry founded on the magnificent majority gained in 1868 down to last year's experience—when an education bill has proved embarrassing even to the strongest of Ministries.

Lord Onslow has commenced his weekly dinners, which are the comfort and consolation of his friends in the House of Commons. Living on Richmond-terrace, within three minutes' walk of the House, it is possible even for Ministers to run away to share his hospitality. To make matters more convenient for men hampered by the exigencies of debate and divisions, the card of invitation fixes the dinner hour at any time between eight and nine, and intimates that guests in morning or evening dress will be equally welcome. There are usually from five to eight small tables set about the room, with covers laid on each for parties of from five to eight. As men drop in from the House and elsewhere they are greeted by the host and conducted to a vacant seat at the table in latest process of being filled up. The temptation to escape from the poorly-cooked, badly-served dinner at the House of Commons, not to speak of the monotony of company at the Ministerial table, prove irresistible. There is always a garnishing of Cabinet Ministers at Lord Onslow's hospitable board. At a dinner given on the eve of the holidays there were three—the Colonial Secretary, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Home Secretary.

London hosts and hostesses are in a state of dubiety as to the consequences from the social point of view of one of the new rules of procedure. The change whereby Wednesday will fall into line with Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday in respect of the hours of the sitting of the House of Commons threatens revolution in the London season. At present the House meeting on Wednesdays at noon, and adjourning before six, Wednesday night is the principal opportunity of securing at public or private dinners the company of members of Parliament, more especially of his Majesty's Ministers. There is of course also Saturday. But more widely spread than ever is the practice of week-ending out of London. It will be remembered how in debate on the introduction of the scheme Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman related his fable of the householder anxious to be thought to be in society who pulled down his blinds on a Saturday and sat perdu in the darkened rooms till Monday, hoping to have conveyed to envious neighbours the impression that he was week-end[illegible] the country. The prevalence of this cus[illegible]ich Mr. Balfour for one religiously observ[illegible]uces the opportunities for Saturday dinners and centres attention on Wednesdays.

There will, of course, be Fridays, to which day hereafter all the conditions of Wednesday in respect of the hours of meeting and adjournment will be transferred. But it is clearly seen that this arrangement will only extend the week-end. Members accustomed to go off to the country or the seaside from Saturday till Monday will flit on Friday afternoons. The probability is that Wednesday will practically remain as it is, the Parliamentary dining-out day of the week. Possibly the dinner hour will be delayed, a quarter-past 8 or half-past 8 being even more widely adopted than at present, with the sitting suspended at half-past 7 that gives plenty of time to dress for dinner, and though the sitting will be resumed at 9 o'clock there is no absolute necessity for members to be back before 10.

There is something absolutely hopeless about the gentlemen who create our public statues, devise our coinage and postage-stamps. In respect of the latter the first batch issued after the King's accession was withdrawn, it being discovered that his Majesty's head was turned in the wrong direction. The latest issue is the embossed stamp on envelopes sold at the Post Office. Formerly these carried a pretty pale ground counterfeit presentment of the head of the girl-Queen who came to the Throne nearly seventy years ago. The stock of these exhausted, the new stamped envelope bears the King's head in white set on a blood-red oval medallion. The effect conveyed is that of the fragment of an elderly gentleman with a painfully bald head. It is bad enough seen by itself. Placed side by side with the delicate little picture it displaces, perhaps the prettiest portrait ever done of the late Queen, it is simply unendurable.

Passed at night time the Strand just now presents a weird scene. The work of demolition and replanning in connection with the widening of the thoroughfare is being carried on by double shift. When the gang of day labourers leave off the night shift come on and work away till daybreak. This arrangement is made possible by flambeaux of gas, burning from the mouth of pipes standing high above the heads of groups of workmen. The lights and shadows, the moving figures, the hum of voices, and the sound of pickaxe and spade falling combine to make a weird spectacle in the heart of sleeping London.

OUR ST. PETERSBURG LETTER.

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 16.

In regard to the Anglo-Japanese treaty some English publicists seem to attach great importance to the effect such an unexpected coup de theatre may have produced in Russia, but there are as yet no symptoms visible that Russia attaches any particular significance to it. No one knows what agreement has been come to between China and Russia concerning Manchuria. Just now China is feverishly pressing for the departure of the remaining Russian troops, insisting that they should be withdrawn in the space of one year, instead of three as previously agreed. But this may be a feint to conceal other designs, and it is time that Europeans should cease to believe Chinese diplomats, who have so often misled and deceived them. Nothing is more certain than that it is impossible to foresee what China will be up to, even within the next few months or weeks, and with whom she will be at peace or at war. Without having the least desire to conquer Manchuria, Russia would not, however much pressed, give up the railroad that has cost such sacrifices. So much appears clear. Any secret agreement that may exist with China probably concerns this subject. It must not be overlooked that Count Lamsdorf has again lately categorically denied any project of annexation by Russia of that province. Here, however, there are pessimists who consider the Anglo-Japanese treaty as the prelude of a coalition against Russia to be formed by Japan, England, Germany, and America. Of course there are alarmists here, as everywhere else, who consider that such a thing may not be impossible, the attitude of Germany being particularly hostile lately, and affairs in Finland are an excellent pretext for interference. But in any case, England could gain nothing by such a war. Russia must be prepared for the worst, according to these pessimists, and to a certain extent she is. Only those who would declare war against Russia might be disagreeably surprised, for the loyalty of the army and of the great masses in Russia is an indisputable fact, and all the rumours of a serious internal revolution are exaggerated. But that war may break out very soon between Russia and China, in case the arrangements now attempted by diplomacy lead to nothing, is not only possible but probable.

It is with the utmost difficulty that the present Chinese Government can prevent the seething masses from rising again. The famous Tun Fousiang, who was supposed to be imprisoned and even executed, is now at the head of 80,000 armed men, dictating conditions to the Empress of China, who has made this warrior all kinds of concessions to get him over to the side of the Government. Troubles will no doubt soon break out again, for the movement against the foreigners is stronger than ever. In such conditions Russia cannot withdraw her troops from Manchuria.

BOOKS ABOUT AUSTRALIA.

Generally Australian politics occupy the space of the Russian gazettes more and more. Since the South African war Australia seems to have, all at once, sprung into view, to have taken a great importance in British affairs. Remarks about the colonial troops, their bravery and their willingness to sacrifice themselves for the mother country, the part they may play in future wars, &c., often get into the Russian daily papers and periodicals. Books about Australia are frequently translated. One of the reasons of this great interest is that normal gold-digging, which is so advanced in Australia, is still carried on in Siberia by the most primitive means, and everything upon this subject is eagerly read here. The Russians, however, who are always great in theory and very weak in practice, never appear to reap any solid benefits from these studies. The great number of mining schools in the country only produce learned men and very few practical engineers. The Siberian gold-diggers have against them too many factors. First and foremost the severity of the climate, then the almost fantastic distances, without roads or even paths through the dreadful "taiga" of tangled brushwood and trunks of trees, filled with reptiles and insects. Then the laws, so pitiless for those workmen that they prefer to form unlawful gangs for the search of gold rather than work for the poor reward offered by the Government. Last, and not least, the continual risk of being robbed and even killed by the runaway convicts those solitudes harbour in countless numbers.

The tales of Korolenko and other writers, fantastic as they appear, are founded upon fact, and they can give but a faint idea of the labour, fatigue, and privations undergone by Siberian gold-seekers, whether lawfully working under the wings of the Two-headed Eagle or boldly carrying on the life of outlaws and toiling for their own profit. There are, of course, exceptions, and many Siberian merchants and capitalists make colossal fortunes by gold-digging. But little is heard, until now, of fortunes made by foreign speculators, though many try their luck. The riches of Siberia and Kamchatka are so great that the annexation of Manchuria for the sake of mineral treasures would be impracticable.

DESTRUCTION OF SHEMAKA.

The total destruction of the antique Mahommedan city of Shemaka, and of 141 villages and hamlets in the province of that name is a fact which now gives ample opportunity for private benevolence and philanthropy, as the help afforded by the Government is insufficient to meet the necessities of the situation. The earthquake of February 13 has been one of the most terrible catastrophes of the kind ever experienced. The loss of life is not yet known, for the shocks still continue at close intervals, and all attempts to recover the corpses of those buried under the ruins are futile except in one part of the town, where 29 persons were got out alive, and about 800 bodies discovered. But the death of over 2000 men, women, and children has been ascertained in all the province, and the number of wounded and sick is more than double. Help, which at first came slowly over a soil which quaked and oscillated, is now pouring in from all parts of the empire. The richer families took refuge at Bakou, where many buildings were also shaken.

About 14,000 citizens of Shemaka, without food or shelter, are brooding over the ruins of their homes and unwilling to be led away, as most have lost relations and are waiting for the excavations to be ended. A whole regiment of sappers are working at the risk of their lives, and the most terrible scenes occur as the victims' bodies are dug out, some entirely preserved, some in an advanced state of decay. Most are identifiable only by the clothes they wear.

The Czar, who the first day sent 50,000 roubles, has now sent 100,000 more by his aide-de-camp, Prince Obolensky, who is now occupied in organising proper help. Barracks are being built for those who persist in remaining on the scene of destruction. They are camped there on the ground or in tents, and will not be removed except by force. They suffer cold and hunger, but persist in the search for their dead relatives. Every time a body is got out there is a rush towards it of hundreds of poor creatures seeking their lost ones. As the earthquake took place at the hour the daily bath is taken, all the eleven large bathing houses of the town were filled, mostly with women and children. All perished. School-houses, bazaars, churches—in short, four thousand edifices were destroyed. Shemaka, being a very antique and strongly-built city, and having been often and often visited by this terrible calamity owing to the volcanic nature of the soil, still continued to grow, although geologists had more than once predicted some catastrophe. But love of their home was stronger with these people than prudence, and unless they had been forcibly expelled from their city they would never have gone, although a safer and better situation was offered them in 1856 after an earthquake. However, this city was fated to end like Pompeii of old. The great mosque, called the Djuma Mosque, now a heap of ruins, is more than nine hundred years old, and many other temples, churches, and houses resisted all the former earthquakes. The Djuma Mosque and other curious historical monuments of still greater antiquity, were visited by all strangers who arrived in Bakou.

The destruction of this city was caused by three violent shocks, repeated in less than forty seconds. Had the means for immediate excavations been at hand hundreds of people could have been saved; but as the shocks continued, though slight, the work was attended with such danger that many who came to save perished themselves. Most of the victims are Mohammedans; 141 Jews and Armenians have perished, and also 31 Russians, mostly people from Bakou. The panic in Bakou was great, but the position of that port is not such as to render likely any such catastrophe. Shemaka was built upon the site of an ancient volcano, and continual perturbations of the soil occurred there.

"THE PROPHET OF A NEW DISPENSATION."

A most curious affair has just been judged at the Poltava Court of Law. A few months ago, the rural inhabitants of the large village of Pavlovsk, near that town, and of several other villages, were much excited by the preaching of a man, who, as the custom is when some fanatic wants to create a sensation, went about from house to house and from village to village, calling himself the prophet of a new dispensation, and collecting money and disciples. The villagers assembled around him—men, women, and children—and listened with attention, not unmixed with awe, to such teachings as the following:—"That all exterior worship of a God is abomination, and all places of worship dens of perdition, that all real believers (in whom and what is not explained) must help with all their might and main to destroy all churches, and efface every vestige of them from the face of the earth. That all priests are anti-Christs, also all schoolmasters," and much more to the same purpose, i.e., to excite the people against the only authorities they have a clear idea of. Although this "prophet" was known to the village chiefs, and threatened with expulsion and arrest if he continued preaching against the Holy Orthodox Church and against priests, the prophet, whose name is Tododiesko, only grew the more eager and fanatical, and one night, when the village authorities held an assembly (in which libations to old-fashioned Bacchus were not neglected) Tododiesko assembled several hundred villagers, armed with stones, sticks, or whatever was handy for the purpose, and marched on the modest village church. The priest and deacon had fled in terror before the storm, and this infuriated mob, breaking open the doors of the church, destroyed the images, broke the gates of the altar, battered and spoiled all the holy vessels; in short, committed acts of vandalism worthy of the iconoclasts of old. The crowd then proceeded to the village school, where the same work of destruction went on. Meanwhile, having somewhat recovered from their surprise and horror, the rest of the villagers began to fight against the disciples of Tododiesko, and a regular battle ensued, though without arms of any kind, the results being black eyes and bleeding noses. Soon the village authorities arrived, and the prophet was arrested together with 70 of the principal delinquents. The trial took place within closed doors, the details being unfit for public ears, and the papers give but an incomplete account of the trial. But it was a sad sight to see the procession from the town prison to the court of 70 moujiks, followed by their wives and children going to answer for the consequences of a moment's folly. As it was clearly a case of collective hypnotism, many were discharged, but the principal culprits were punished according to the laws against such crimes—that is, exiled to Sahaline.

The Pavlovsk affair is remarkable, because such a demonstration of senseless fanaticism could not take place in any Christian land except Russia, where nothing is impossible or improbable, and where the first insignificant paper one takes up contains what would fill an Englishman with dismay and horror. In short, everything seems to go wrong, although everyone seems persuaded that he or she alone sees the way to make everything go right.

At Vladivostock, the arrival of Colonel Marchand, the hero of Fashoda, with two French officers, has created a sensation. At the theatre the public made Colonel Marchand ovations when he entered his box. The representation was stopped, and the orchestra played the Marseillaise, followed by the Russian Hymn.

SOUTHERN MINERS' ASSOCIATION.

CASE FOR THE ARBITRATION COURT.

DETAILS OF THE ISSUES.

BULLI, Friday.

A reply has been filed with the Registrar of the Arbitration Court to the particulars of the dispute lodged by Mr. D. Ritchie, general secretary of the Southern Miners' Association, as follows:—"Take notice that the respondents, the South Coast Proprietors' Association and Industrial Union of Employers, cannot agree to any of the increases in rates claimed for driving or hewing, or wages generally, and cannot concede the other demands or alter the conditions of labour."

Mr. Ritchie has now caused a notice by summons to be served on the respondents under section 14 of the Act that it is his intention to apply to the president of the Court of Arbitration at his chambers, on Tuesday, 13th instant, for an order to settle the issues concerned and fix the time and place of hearing. Particulars of the dispute are as under:—1. That the hewing rates, all shovel-filled, unscreened coal, over 5ft. high, be raised to 2s per ton; 5ft. and under, 2s 2d; 4ft. 6in. and under, 2s 4d; 4ft. and under, 2s 6d; 3ft. 6in. and under, 2s 8d; all coal under 3ft. to be worked by shift wages; screened coal, hewing rates, to be raised in proportion. 2. That on account of the exceptional nature of the coal in the Hillend district of Bulli Colliery they be paid 6d per ton extra on the hewing rates. 3. That yardage rates for driving four yard headings be increased to 2s 6d per yard at all collieries where a less rate is now paid, and 1s 6d per yard for driving places between six and eight yards wide. 4. That where it is considered necessary or when the miners are ordered to erect bars they be paid the following for each, viz., 7ft. bars, 1s; 8ft. bars, 1s 6d; 12ft., 3s 6d. 5. That 1½d per ton extra be paid on the hewing rates for all coal gotten where safety lamps are used by the hewers. 6. That additional hewing rates be paid where bands, stone, or falling roof have to be extracted from the coal by the hewers, whose wages depend upon the quantity of mineral gotten. 7. That a just and equitable arrangement be agreed upon to provide for the payment and definition of deficient working places. 8. That the management be compelled to keep a proper turn at each colliery in order that each miner may receive a fair share of the skips. 9. That all colliery day labour employees' and wheelers' wages be increased in proportion to the advance sought on the hewing rates, and that the rates of payment for similar work be made uniform throughout the district. 10. That the system of working front and back shift by miners be discontinued, and that the eight-hour system be made uniform for the miners, shift men, boys, and wheelers, all miners to cease work on back Saturdays in time to reach the surface at 2 o'clock p.m. 11. That a general agreement be drawn up to embody all those and other questions of wages and conditions as in force at the southern collieries, and one copy be given to each employee. 12. We claim that all persons taken from the coal face to do wheeling or other shift work during the year 1901 should have been paid 9s per shift. The coal owners dispute this, and have paid several at a less rate." The colliery proprietors having refused to agree to these proposals, the following resolution was unanimously agreed to by the members of the Illawarra Colliery Employees' Association at a meeting specially summoned for the purpose:—"That all matters of wages and conditions upon which the Southern coal proprietors and this association have failed to agree be offered to the Arbitration Court for settlement."

THE GREATEST THIEF IN THE WORLD.

No, it is not the man who removes your goods in the night, nor the plausible diamond-studded gentleman who takes your hard-earned cash in exchange for shares in some worthless mine. Thieves they are without doubt, but not the greatest of thieves. There is a far subtler thief than they, and moreover what he robs you of is more valuable than your money. He was named and rated many years ago by a celebrated poet when he wrote "Procrastination is the thief of time"—procrastination, postponement, the putting off of the doing of something which ought to be done now; time, the intangible stuff of which life is made up. The man who is robbed of his gold may possibly recover it; the man who is robbed of his time has lost so much of his life utterly and for ever.

Now here is Mrs. Maria Jenkinson, of No. 7 Seale-street, Sydney, N.S.W., a lady who has not yet reached middle age, but whose health broke down as long ago as June, 1886. A good many things have happened since 1886, among them the recovery of Mrs. Jenkinson's health in 1891, but there is no good and sufficient reason why that desirable event should not have taken place five years earlier. The means which restored Mrs. Jenkinson to health were as easily obtainable in 1886 as in 1891, or as they are now. Perhaps procrastination has something to answer for here. Let us listen to what Mrs. Jenkinson herself has to say on the matter:—"Until June, 1886, I was blessed with sound health; I could eat, sleep, and work well. Then came a change; I grew listless, despondent, and irritable. My sleep was disturbed by dreams, and there was an ever-present sensation of weight on my chest. My appetite failed, and I became so emaciated and weak I could scarce crawl about. A furred tongue, biliousness, and severe headache had become my normal condition. For five years did I fight against my illness, and was attended by six doctors, who all agreed that I was suffering from chronic dyspepsia, and were all alike in failing to relieve me. After also trying various advertised remedies with no better result, I was induced to buy a bottle of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup. The first bottle mitigated my worst symptoms, and when I had taken the third bottle I felt like my old self again. Eight bottles of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup did for me in six months what six doctors failed to accomplish in five years—restored me to health and strength. For years past I have never on any account been without Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup in the house."

It is never too late to do a good thing, but it is better to do it first than last.—Advt.

THE CASE OF MR. A. LYES.

(For the "Standard.")

The requirements of the Australian populace can only be arrived at by reference to the statistics which are compiled at various periods, and as evidence is necessary for the purpose of gauging popular opinion, it may here be interesting to listen to Mr. Albert Lyes, of No. 7 Fraser-street, Leichhardt.

"When living in the North Coast district," said Mr. Lyes, "I experienced a vast amount of trouble with my liver and kidneys, the consequence being that I was put to a lot of inconvenience owing to the acute pains across the small of my back. As I had heavy work to do at the time, my afflictions came as a great hardship, more so if there was any lifting to be done, when my back pains were intensified to a degree that I could scarcely endure."

Reporter: "Were you much affected in any other parts?"

Mr. Lyes: "It would be quicker for me to tell you where I was not affected, for I had aches and pains all over me. There was a cold, painful sensation in the spine which felt as if somebody had shot a ball of ice along my back, and that horrible shooting pain extended right to my eyes, which also gave me the impression of being swollen. I was sluggish, drowsy, and had no energy whatever, the only thing I felt fit for being to lie down—it did not matter where. It is a serious matter for a married man to get into that condition, but I held out as long as I could, and then I had to give in, for all the grit was taken out of me. Being without any appetite, which had been on the wane for a long time, the chances of stopping a further leakage of my vitality were very remote, and as I could not sleep at all well at nights, there was no doubt that I was in a very grave state. With my tongue covered with a nasty substance and a vile taste in my mouth, there is nothing remarkable in the fact that I could not enjoy any food, and in the natural course of events I got a long way thinner than I ought to have done. I was tormented with very severe headaches which made me feel so gloomy and wretched that there seemed to be nothing in the world worth living for, and with my weakness daily increasing my limbs ached so persistently that I could not even take a walk in comfort. Palpitation of the heart and dizziness always followed any exertion, my heart being particularly bad. It used to make a thumping sound like the noise from a horse's hoof heard in the distance, and many an anxious hour have I passed in thinking what might be wrong with that organ. Like most people who suffer like this for the first time, I consulted a doctor, who said that my liver and kidneys were diseased. He wrote a prescription which I had made up, and said I would have to keep as quiet as possible, and not exert myself any more than was absolutely necessary."

Reporter: "How did you feel after taking his medicine?"

Mr. Lyes: "Just about the same as before, and when I saw it was only so much waste to take any more I dropped it off. The oppression in my chest and the flatulence in my stomach were still there, and the urine remained of a cloudy and scanty nature, so what was the use of throwing any more money away I thought? Besides, my nervous system was completely out of order, as any kind of noise had a startling effect which kept my nerves at extreme tension, as if they had been suddenly unhinged, and then, again, I felt agitated and irritable at the slightest provocation. The long-continuance of these sufferings had made me very morose and low-spirited, for there were others to think of besides myself; but, thank goodness! that trying ordeal is all over now, and it is not likely to be repeated, because I discovered a remedy which cured my ailments then, and I am sure it could do so again if ever I needed it."

Reporter: "May I learn what the remedy was?"

Mr. Lyes: "I have no desire to keep the matter secret, because I might do other poor sufferers a good turn by letting you know. It was Clements Tonic—a medicine that I had been reading about—that made a new man of me, and I always regard it as my only friend amongst all medicines. I had only taken a couple of bottles of Clements Tonic when I felt ever so much better. In fact the change was so great that I could scarcely believe it myself, especially as I had lost confidence in physics generally. But Clements Tonic asserted itself as something uncommonly good by rapidly giving me a desire for food, and in the matter of making me sleep well I thought it a most marvellous medicine. The health-giving properties of Clements Tonic were not confined to those improvements, as it amended the defects in my internal organs, which had gone against the digestion of my food, and by those means the pains in my chest and shoulders were relieved. The fermentation of my food was done away with in like manner, so that I was getting the full benefit of my meals, and how well I knew it, for the return of my strength was quite noticeable. I no longer desired to lie about in a state of careless languor, for Clements Tonic gave me the energy and ambition to do some work, which was becoming easier to perform each day, because the pains in my back were less troublesome as time moved on. My heart gave me no occasion to worry myself, as it was beating with a regular pulsation, and with the departure of my headaches my sight became so clear that I could sit down and read for hours without the least inconvenience. I was greatly pleased with Clements Tonic for the effect it had on my nervous system, for it invigorated my nerves so thoroughly that they became perfectly steady, while such a thing as becoming excited or annoyed over trifling incidents did not happen. A good indication to go by as to the efficacy of Clements Tonic was the entire removal of my deranged kidney symptoms, and it was then that I was altogether free from pain."

Reporter: "Did you stop taking your medicine immediately that happened?"

Mr. Lyes: "Not exactly, for I wanted to be quite sure that all disease was effaced, so I took another couple of bottles of Clements Tonic, and when they were finished it was not necessary to take any more, as I was as strong and thoroughly restored as I could wish to be. It is several years ago since Clements Tonic put an end to my sufferings, yet my work has never since interfered with my health—a fact which shows that Clements Tonic made me as sound as a bell; and if these statements are likely to be perused by others, you may publish them as you like."

STATUTORY DECLARATION.

I, Albert Lyes, of 7 Fraser-street, Leichhardt, Sydney, in the State of New South Wales, Commonwealth of Australia, do solemnly and sincerely declare that I have carefully read the annexed document, consisting of five folios, and consecutively numbered from one to five, and that it contains and is a true and faithful account of my illness and cure by Clements Tonic, and also contains my full permission to publish in any way my statements, which I give voluntarily, and without receiving any payment; and I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of the Oaths Act, 1900.

THE COMMONWEALTH PARLIAMENT.

THE SENATE.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY, MAY 9.

TARIFF BILL.

The President took the chair at 10.30 a.m.

Senator GOULD (N.S.W.) resumed the debate on the second reading of the Customs Tariff Bill. The question was not so much one of protection or of free trade, but as to whether the bill was one which would meet the necessity of the Commonwealth. No one supposed that protection was to be the dominant idea of the tariff. The Minister of Customs had said they believed in protection, and challenged the Opposition to fight them on those lines. Was not that an abandonment of the policy voiced by Ministers at the election? Victoria in 1865 stood at the head of the colonies in respect to shipping and commerce, but from that time to the present, as compared with New South Wales, she had been on the downgrade. In 1886 the flag of protection was attempted to be raised, but New South Wales had since adhered to a freetrade policy. It was remarkable that in two States in which a protective policy had been adopted there had been a diminution of population. That was due to attempts to employ people in artificial industries when there was no outlet for products of those industries. Did members ever think of the conditions of labour in Continental countries which had been alluded to as instances of the success of protection? He invited attention to an article in the "Times" of April 3, in which the writer pointed out that Great Britain was more prosperous than ever. She had built up her prosperity under a system of freetrade. He pointed out how heavily some of the taxes would press upon pastoralists, and instanced the case of a pastoralist who had spent £3000 in keeping 8000 sheep alive. He did not wish them to pay 30 per cent. more for their boots and shoes. He wanted to get revenue, but he would not adopt a policy which taxed the many for the benefit of a few manufacturers who were making a large profit under protection. Those manufacturers would struggle hard for the maintenance of high duties, but it should be the policy of the House to secure a system which would be the best for the community as a whole.

The POSTMASTER-GENERAL thought that authority on fiscal questions did not come only from listening to speeches, but from observation, sharpened by study. He looked at the matter from the standpoint of one who early in life was a freetrader. He was educated and spent the early years of his life in London, and it would have been strange under those circumstances for him to have been other than a freetrader. There had been a change of opinion there, but he thought that we might leave the conduct of British affairs to British statesmen, and devote ourselves to the problem of a policy for Australia. After careful study and consideration he had come to the conclusion that the best policy for the Commonwealth was protection, with internal development. (Hear, hear.) He would ask if a protectionist policy had ruined any nation's shipping trade?

Senator SYMON (S.A.): It has ruined the shipping trade of America.

The POSTMASTER-GENERAL was not satisfied that such was the case, but, even so, was the result such that it would be a good thing to close the factories and cause us to rely on outside sources? If a disadvantage was suffered from the loss of our import trade, that was compensated for by the development of increased internal commerce. The policy of the United States and Canada had recognised that protection and national development went together. The United States, in her early days, adopted a policy which created enormous internal development. A country which was depending on outside sources for supplies developed a shipping trade outside, whilst a country which supplied its own wants developed its own trade. Protection resulted in a variety of pursuits, and people were not compelled to adopt one form of occupation. Was a farmer who had led a hard life to be told that his sons must become farmers, competing with one another? He regretted that there was a tendency to set the primary against the secondary producer. The man who made a plough was just as much a producer as the man who used it. More variety of occupation would produce better results than if all were doomed to follow one occupation. Industries should not be looked at from the point of view of places in which they were carried on, because all the States had now an interest in an industry carried on in any one of them. Industries had become not Victorian, but Australian. Eventually he thought the verdict of posterity would be that the proper policy of Australia was one which developed her internal commerce.

Senator SYMON: That is freetrade.

The POSTMASTER-GENERAL: They could not put into force an ideal policy. The six colonies had raised through the Custom-house amounts ranging from £1 6s 11d per head in New South Wales to £5 5s 7d in Western Australia. He maintained that the policy of the Government was exactly in accordance with the declaration of the Premier at West Maitland, which had been crystallised into the expressive phrase, "revenue without destruction," as introduced by the Government.

Senator SYMON: Was that revenue without destruction?

The POSTMASTER-GENERRAL: Undoubtedly.

Senator SYMON: Then this is revenue with destruction.

The POSTMASTER-GENERAL: An effort was made to frame the tariff in such a way that no existing industry would be destroyed, and at the same time the financial necessities of the various States would be considered. He claimed this had been done, and that the tariff as presented to the House of Representatives gave effect to those requirements. He could not understand how any man could seriously contend that the tariff as presented to the House of Representatives was not a substantial fulfilment of the policy declared by the Prime Minister.

Senator SYMON: It more than fulfilled it and left a margin for reduction.

Senator HARNEY (W.A.): Then you have been beaten all along the line.

The POSTMASTER-GENERAL did not say that. He knew that alterations had been made and regretted them. A good deal of the hostility to the tariff arose from old intercolonial jealousies, and it was time those were dropped and forgotten. He considered that local competition was the most powerful weapon in keeping down prices. If a local factory were done away with, then the consumer was at the mercy of the foreign competitors. Foreign importers could then create a ring, and the best defence against the operations of such a ring was the development of local industries. Whilst New South Wales might justifiably say that their affairs had been altered, disturbed, and dislocated more than the affairs of any State, yet that was not the result of any malice on the part of Parliament, but was due to circumstances for which the Government was not responsible. He sympathised greatly with New South Wales, and could make allowance for the attitude of her members. Queensland was seriously embarrassed, and he deeply deplored that the taxes on tea and kerosene had been taken off, as they would have materially assisted the Treasurer of that State. He regarded the tariff as an accommodation between the difficulties with which the Government had been faced, and he hoped that views would not be adopted which were the outcome of jealousy and arrangement which had formerly existed. He hoped that the matter would be dealt with in that spirit which should animate the deliberations of Commonwealth members.

Senator MATHESON (W.A.) said that 50 per cent. of the people of Western Australia who had been protectionists were now ardent freetraders. He had listened in vain for any argument in favour of high tariff beyond those which had been used by the leader of the Government. He would like to know on what grounds he characterised the tariff as a compromise. The tariff gave more revenue than was asked for by about £400,000.

The VICE-PRESIDENT: That must not be taken as the yield of a normal year.

Senator MATHESON urged that 60 per cent. of the inhabitants of Australia had every hope that the Senate would materially amend the tariff. It was argued that a high tariff was necessary to meet the exigencies of the poorer States, but he would point out that the revenue of Queensland had been falling from a cause quite outside of federation, and that the State could not expect that the tariff, which was stupendous and oppressive, would be kept up for her benefit. How could it be ascertained whether any individuals suffered under the tariff? A tariff framed by the Opposition would have been an equitable tariff. It would simply have been based on the production of revenue. It would have been based on an estimate of the amount of revenue required. If any industry obtained protection it would have been accidental. What the Government aimed at was to destroy the revenue by protection. Whilst it had been generally asserted that a low tariff meant the destruction of industries, the reverse was the fact. In spite of the reduction of the duty on woollens the factories were full of business. The fact remained, and could not be got away from, that New South Wales had every industry flourishing which existed in Victoria. He would ask whether it could be shown that protection benefited Victoria more than affording employment to 1 per cent. of her population. Was it right that the tariff should tax 99 per cent. for the benefit of the 1 per cent.? Were the producing interests to be sacrificed in the interests of the manufacturers? He was sent to the House to support a revenue tariff, and he did not intend to shirk his responsibility simply because the proposals of the Senate were not finding acceptance elsewhere.

The debate was adjourned on the motion of Senator Millen, and the House at eight minutes past 4 o'clock adjourned until Tuesday.

SOCIAL.

Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Countess of Hopetoun are still in Adelaide, where many social functions have been given in their honour by Lord and Lady Tennyson at Government House, Adelaide. The Mayor of Adelaide gave a large ball in the Exhibition Buildings on Thursday evening in honour of the occasion, which was attended by 3000 guests.

H.M.S. Royal Arthur returned to Sydney last Tuesday after an extended cruise of five months, during which time Hobart and New Zealand were visited. Admiral Sir Lewis Beaumont is now in residence at Admiralty House.

An English correspondent writes that "the Coronation festivities at Windsor Castle are already being discussed, and it is rumoured that they will include a grand ball, at which many of the notabilities who are coming to London for the ceremony on the 26th will be present. There has not been a ball at Windsor Castle since the death of the Prince Consort. The King and Queen will entertain a large party for Ascot, and all the houses in the neighbourhood will be full."

A small dance was given on board the Ormaz by Captain W. S. Shelford and the officers of the ship last Wednesday evening. The deck was enclosed with flags and decorated with greenery, and a recherche supper was served in the saloon.

Amongst the passengers who are leaving by the Sierra next Tuesday are Dr. and Mrs. Todd, who are going for a short trip to England, via America. Dr. and Mrs. Todd hope to be in plenty of time for the Coronation, and intend returning to Sydney in October, via the Continent and the Canal.

There was a large attendance on Tuesday afternoon, April 22, at the Congregational Church, Burwood, to witness the marriage of Mr. Walter Hardie, eldest son of Mr. Robert Hardie, with Miss Alice Wiley, only daughter of Mr. D. T. Wiley. The church was beautifully decorated by the girl-friends of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Campbell. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a white duchesse satin dress with transparent yoke and sleeves of chiffon and lace. Her tulle veil was arranged over a wreath of orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were Miss Constance Myles and Miss Laura Hardie, and the groomsmen Mr. Carey Rees and Mr. Howard Hardie. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bride's parents held at reception at Wilton. Amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. William Wiley, Mrs. W. Hardie, Mr. Arthur Myles, Mrs. Wallace Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. W. Buzacott, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis King, Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Giles, Rev. G. and Mrs. Campbell, Miss Collins, Mrs. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbertson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilshire, Mr. Harold Gorman, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Leslie.

Last night an enjoyable dance was given in the Paddington Town Hall by 37 young ladies, including Miss Ettie Adams, Miss May Airey, Miss Alice Bowman, Miss May Bowyer, Miss Mabel Carey, the Misses Friend (2), the Misses Hill (2), Miss Augustus Hill, Miss Hilda Humphery, Miss Elvie Jaques, Miss Ethel Jones, Miss Kelso King, Miss May King, the Misses Lingen (2), Miss Muriel Marks, Miss Muriel Milson, Miss Annie Monson Paul, Miss Muriel Pitt, Miss Agnes Purves, Miss Isabel Reading, Miss Alice Rogers, Miss Lulu Rundle, Miss Ethel Russell, Miss Norton Russell, Miss Winifred Smith, Miss Gladys Teece, Miss Stella Terry, Miss Toohey, Miss Eileen Toohey, Miss Venables, Miss Lily Watson, Miss Margaret Whitney, and Miss Doris Williams. The young hostesses carried crimson bouquets tied with crimson ribbons as a distinguishing badge. The hall was most effectively decorated, a great deal of it being done by the girls themselves. There was a profusion of greenery and palms, and two men from Garden Island helped to arrange the flags, which were lent for the occasion, and which decorated the ballroom and supper-room. The stage, where Mr. De Groen's band was stationed, was prettily arranged with palms and greenery. Red was the prevailing colour in the decorations, the lights in the centre and round the room being shaded with red. The balcony was enclosed with flags, and the various resorts for sitting out between the dances were cosily arranged with carpet, chairs, screens, and palms. The programmes were red, and the dances were kept up all the evening with the greatest spirit. About 350 guests were present, amongst whom were the Mayor and Mayoress of Sydney (Alderman and Mrs. Thomas Hughes), Mr and Mrs. Walter Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Macneil, the Misses Elsie and Rhoda Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hay, Miss Burdekin, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Moreton, Mr. and Mrs. Lingen, Mr. and Mrs. Randal Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Merewether, Mrs. J. T. Toohey, Dr. and Mrs. Sydney Littlejohn, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Marks, Mrs. Peter Close, Mrs. W. P. Allen, Mr. Osborne, Mr. Leonard Stephen, Miss F. E. Stephen, Mr. Gilchrist, Mr. H. Kendall, Mr. S. Garrick, Mr. A. Bowman, and many naval and military officers.

Thursday (Ascension Day) was kept, as usual, as a holiday at the Church of England Girls' Grammar School both by the present pupils and also by the Old Girls' Union, who make their annual communion on that day. A large number was present at the 8 o'clock celebration at St. Andrew's Cathedral, and before entering the cathedral a deputation of the union called to ask for the latest news of the Dean, who has always taken a deep interest in the school. At 1 o'clock a launch picnic left the Circular Quay for Lane Cove. There were on board about 100 of those now connected with the school and 46 members of the Old Girls' Union, besides Miss Snowdon Smith, the Misses Saumarez Smith, Mrs. Christian, Mrs. Garland, Miss Docker, and some other ladies. The picnic was considered a great success by all who took part in it.

The ninth annual ball of the steamship officials will take place at the Paddington Town Hall on Friday, July 25. The Hon. A. W. Meeks is president of the movement, and the Hon. John See (State Premier) has extended his patronage to the ball.

A preliminary meeting was held in the Town Hall on 6th instant in aid of the Tempe Refuge Ball. The officers appointed were:—President, the Mayoress (Mrs. T. Hughes); vice-presidents, Lady Harris, Lady Manning, Mrs. Laidley Mort, Mrs. Pilcher; committee, Mesdames John Mullins, Alfred Cape, Kirkwood Colley, Frank Butler, James Toohey, Bennett, Flynn, Ferris, O. Hughes), Mrs. Finn, Mrs. Burdekin, Mrs. and Miss Russell Jones, Miss Hughes, Sir George Dibbs, Miss Dibbs, Miss Starkey, Mrs. J. Broughton, Miss Cummings.

The president and committee of the Sydney University Women's Association gave an "at home" in the great hall of the University on Tuesday evening. The hall was decorated with palms, and the guests were received by Miss Ethel Russell, Dr. Mary Booth, and Miss Murray Prior. Amongst those present were—Mrs. MacCallum, Mrs. Barff, Miss Russell, Professor Gurney, Miss MacDonald, Miss Rose Scott, Dr. Agnes Bennett, Miss Mary Bennett, Miss Bowmaker, Miss Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. Yabsley, and Mr. Aubrey Halloran.

The Theatre Royal was crowded last Saturday night to witness the first performance in Sydney of the "Runaway Girl" by the Royal Comic Opera Company, and the bright piece was received with the greatest enthusiasm. Miss Florence Young takes the part of the Runaway Girl and is first seen in a simple grey frock with a white lace fichu and cuffs. After she has joined the band of wandering Spanish minstrels she appears in a pretty Spanish dress of cream-coloured material, with a deep and handsomely embroidered border in shades of dark and pale blue, and an apron of a deeper shade of cream also embroidered in blue, and the straps on the shoulders were tied with pale blue ribbon, the pretty Spanish headdress being of cream and blue. In the last act Miss Young wears a pale cream and pink dress with a headdress of cream and gold sequins. Miss Grace Palotta's pale pink crepe de chine is trimmed with ecru lace and touches of deep rose-coloured bebe ribbon on the skirt, and the toilette is completed by a becoming rose-pink chiffon hat with touches of black, and a parasol made of pink roses. When she appeared and sang "Oh, Listen to the Band" she wore a soft cream-coloured dress, the shaped flounce trimmed with many rows of brown ribbon velvet and lace insertion, the bodice being trimmed to correspond, and her white crinoline hat had bows of brown velvet and brown feathers. Miss Carrie Moore was first seen in a pale blue dress, and in her comic representation of Signorina Bassich and Signor Dani in a scene from "Fedora" she wore dark hair severely and smoothly arranged and a loose white robe. Then again she appeared as a negress, and gave a pretty coon song with Mr. Lauri. Miss Ghiloni, who made her first appearance with this company, was a member of the band of Spanish minstrels, and wore a pretty and picturesque Spanish costume, the prevailing colours being red and gold. Her face was bronzed, and she wore the characteristic large earrings of the Spanish women. Every variety of dress seem to have been represented on the stage at one time or another, from the latest and most fashionable costumes of the present day to the picturesque Italians, Spanish, and Corsicans, the three dancing girls and a number of ballet girls.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

THE PROPOSED RETRENCHMENT.

Brigadier-General Finn, the State commandant, has received no intimation yet regarding the reduction in the defence vote, which Sir John Forrest, Federal Minister of Defence, promised the Commonwealth Parliament would be effected. The New South Wales military estimates for the ensuing year are, it is understood, being prepared on practically the same basis as those for the present year, and unless any instructions come from Melbourne to cut them down they will be forwarded on within the next few days.

The district staff at the Victoria Barracks, since the removal of various of its most experienced officers to Major-General Hutton's Federal Headquarters Staff, has been working at high pressure. Instead of there being a diminution of work it appears and have increased, owing to the number of reports and returns required by Melbourne, together with the organisation of the contingents, and this with a depleted staff has necessarily meant much longer hours than the military have been accustomed to in years gone by. The General himself is about the hardest worked man, and is to be found at his office from early morn to late at night. That much-cherished military institution, the Thursday half-holiday, since Brigadier-General Finn's regime is a thing of the past.

THE RETIREMENT REGULATIONS.

REGARDED AS ULTRA VIRES.

Nothing has been heard in Sydney so far respecting the regulation passed by the Commonwealth Executive Council providing for the retirement of officers of the defence forces at certain ages. A number of officers spoken to yesterday on the subject were unanimously of the opinion that the regulation would be found to be illegal and ultra vires. They professed to regard the matter as "bluff," and contended that such a provision could only be made legal by Act of Parliament.

"They might as well pass the whole of the Defence Bill in sections," said one officer, "and call them regulations, and thus save Parliament the bother of criticising the clauses in the measure. It is going too far, and the precedent is a bad one. There will require to be radical alterations in that regulation, and Parliament will see that it is amended.

"Before an officer is retired he should be subjected to a strict medical examination in order to see whether he is capable of still carrying out his duties or not.

"There are officers and warrant officers now in the force over the age limit, who are as able to continue as men 20 years younger, and with the advantage that they have great experience behind them. Such men would not complain so much about being retired, provided they were awarded, as in Great Britain and elsewhere, suitable retiring allowances or pensions. But here it is proposed to cut them off without a sixpence and cast them adrift in the world after 20, 30, and 40 years' honourable and faithful service. If this is to be the kind of encouragement the men are to get for taking up the military profession I fear that it will be regarded as a very poor one. It certainly does not tally with the remarks made by Major-General Hutton in his able report the other day on the 'Defence of Australia.'"

Another officer wanted to know why the retiring ages of officers of the permanent forces should be so much earlier than in the volunteers.

APPRENTICESHIP OF JEWISH BOYS.

MEETING OF JEWISH RESIDENTS.

A public meeting was held on Thursday in the Synagogue-chambers, Castlereagh-street, for the purpose of considering the question of forming a society having as its object the providing of ways and means of apprenticing lads belonging to the Jewish persuasion. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. J. Cohen, M.L.A. There was a fair attendance.

The chairman said he was pleased to preside over a meeting having for its objects such a worthy undertaking. Many Jewish children on leaving school were either apprenticed to trades or took up business careers which prevented them from keeping their Sabbath and following their religious duties.

Mr. M. A. Cohen, B.A., said he had experienced the necessity of a society for enabling Jewish boys and girls following professions to attend to their religious duties. For the past 15 years Hebrew had been taught by him to Jewish children in this city. He had been congratulated upon the success of the teaching. He did not think that the efforts put forth had been so successful as they should have been. He regretted that the attendance at the meeting was so small, but he hoped that the small beginning would have a large ending. Some children had to go to work as soon as they were able, and the parents often lost control of them. He believed that Jewish boys and girls were handicapped on account of their religion debarring them from working on Jewish holidays and Sabbaths. He then moved,—"That a society be now established for apprenticing youths of both sexes."

The Rev. A. B. Davis seconded the resolution. He said that the conditions in this city were not parallel with those existing in England. He would like to know how the promoters intended to have the Sabbath kept. On account of the keen competition at present going on he thought it would be rather hard to persuade employers to allow Jewish employees their holidays and Sabbaths. Christian employees as a rule objected to the number of holidays given to Jewish employees. It was hard to believe that another Jewish society was about to be established. They already had 10 other societies, without including the synagogue and the education board. He thought a large sum of money would be required to maintain the society. If the proposed society was called upon to pay many premiums of £20, the number of boys apprenticed in the year would not be large. It was no use forming a society and not being able to fulfil the conditions that would be required. He was greatly in favour of the movement if it could be carried out.

Several gentlemen spoke in support of the motion, which was carried.

Mr. S. J. Goulston moved,—"That a provisional committee be now appointed, consisting of the Revs. A. B. Davis and Wolinski and Messrs. J. J. Cohen, M.L.A., C. P. Hyman, M. A. Cohen, J. A. Moss, S. J. Goulston, A. W. Hyman, and A. E. Goldstein, to receive names of members, and to collect subscriptions; also to frame a code of laws for the guidance of the society, the same to be submitted to a general meeting, to be called at a future date."

The motion was seconded by Mr. H. Weingott, and was carried.

A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

RECEPTION OF THE REV. J. H. G. AULD, B.A.

The Rev. James Cosh moved,—"That the Rev. J. H. G. Auld, B.A., who had been away with the Citizens' Bushmen's Contingent and had recently returned from South Africa, be welcomed to the Assembly." The motion was adopted amid applause, and the Moderator expressed the assembly's gratification at the faithful work done for Christ by the chaplain amongst the troops in South Africa.

The Rev. J. H. G. Auld responded, and said that he had felt it an honour to go with the troops. He found the Bushmen splendid fellows to be with, and had been pleased with his experiences during the campaign. (Applause.)

THREE VISITORS WELCOMED.

Mr. William Wood introduced Messrs. Hugh Paton, David Gallaway, and James Cumming, three young evangelists who had that morning arrived in the State, and were on their way to Queensland to take up work for the Church in that State. He thought the Assembly might welcome them, and send them on with the words, "God-speed and prosper them in their work." He moved that they be welcomed. The Rev. H. Stuart Anderson (Leichhardt) seconded the motion, which was carried with acclamation. The Moderator then welcomed the visitors, and wished them God-speed in the name of the Assembly.

THE CHURCH PROPERTY LAW AND DOCUMENTS COMMITTEE.

A CURIOUS POINT OF LAW.

During the hearing of the terms of the deliverance regarding the report of the Church Property Law and Documents committee, the Rev. Dr. MacInnes moved that the assembly adopt the opinion of the learned procurator (Mr J. Garland, M.A., LL.B.), regarding rights in connection with allotments in cemeteries, as follows:—"In my opinion all that is acquired by persons who obtain allotments in a cemetery from the trustees is a license of the exclusive right of interment therein. The land still remains vested in the trustees. In that case any tombstone erected in the allotment is not the property of the person who has erected it, but of the trustees. The maxim quicquid plantatur solo solo cedit appears to me to govern the case. Under these circumstances the trustees have a right to prohibit the removal of any tombstone."

Dr. MacInnes said that the passing of such a law had become necessary on account of a curious and difficult point which had arisen in a town of one of the Australasian States. It appeared that a widow had erected a monument of considerable value over the grave of her late husband, and after a time had arrived at the conclusion that the money so spent would, if the monument were sold, be turned to a more useful and practical account. She accordingly applied to the cemetery authorities for permission to remove the monument. The matter had been referred to the Church legal authorities, and it had been decided that the monument could not be removed. (Laughter.) The dog-Latin phrase quoted was capable of the free translation that "that which was planted in the soil belonged to the soil alone." (Laughter.) He had had considerable difficulty in getting the phrase correctly rendered in print, but after sundry interviews with people who did not understand dog-Latin, and through the telephone, which also could not accurately convey dog-Latin, he had got the matter right. (Laughter.)

The Moderator said that the incident which had excited the risible faculties of the assembly showed how cautious people should be in dealing with tombstones and what was on them. He had heard of a widow who had erected a tombstone to the memory of her deceased husband, with the inscription upon it, "I cannot live without thee." The inscription remained untouched for a year, and at the end of that time the widow desired to marry again, and her attention was directed to the tombstone. She overcame the difficulty by adding to the end of the inscription the word "alone." (Loud and continued laughter.)

The motion was carried, as were the following bearing upon the report:—That the report be received, that approval be given to the suggested amendments on the 21st and 22nd clauses of the proposed Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Acts Amendment Act of 1901, and that all parties concerned be urged to use diligence to have them inserted in the bill; that in accordance with the opinion of the learned procurator the legal name of the church be "the Presbyterian Church of Australia in the State of New South Wales;" that office-bearers of congregations be recommended to forward their old records to the Church offices for transmission to the registrar-general to be copied.

Some of the sections in the deliverance excited considerable debate.

Dr. MacInnes, speaking to a reference anent the City of Sydney Bill, dealt with a circular issued by the Rev. D. Fenwick, minister, and Mr. R. Mackey, session clerk of Pitt-street congregation, to the members of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, in connection with the Presbyterian Church Property Management Amendment Bill, and explained what had been done in Parliament in connection with the bill and the methods adopted by a few people to prevent the passage of it through Parliament.

Messrs. R. Mackey and M'Culla also spoke, and the debate was adjourned to 7 p.m. The afternoon sederunt concluded at 4.30 p.m. with the benediction.

EVENING SESSION.

There was again a large attendance at night.

The result of the ballot for members of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Australia, the committee on the code, and the standing committees at the State General Assembly was as follows:—Home missions, the Revs. Dr. Clouston and J. Kemp Bruce; elders, Messrs. J. A. Aitken, John Ross, Alex. Dean, D. M'Conaghy, James Angus, W. M'Kenzie, S. Moore, David Steele, and James Barrie.

CHURCH PROPERTY LAW AND DOCUMENTS COMMITTEE.

The debate on the Pitt-street congregation's petition anent the Presbyterian Church Property Management Amendment Bill, which commenced at 2 p.m., was resumed, and the matter was not disposed of until 9.30 p.m.

The remaining sections of the deliverance were adopted with amendments, as follows:—Approve of the action of the committee in the numerous important transactions of the year. Thank the Hon. John See, M.L.A. (Premier), and the Hon. Dr. Cullen, M.L.C., for their services in connection with the Presbyterian Church Property Management Amendment Act of 1901. Approve of the bill as amended by the Legislative Council, and respectfully urge the Legislative Assembly to pass it into law as soon as Parliament meets. Remit the Consolidation Bill drafted by the learned Procurator to presbyteries for consideration, and report to the Property Law and Documents Committee not later than December 31, 1902, the committee to report to next assembly. Instruct the committee to prepare a set of provisional regulations for the working of the Act. Instruct the trustees who may receive compensation moneys for the resumed lands at Erskine-street, Pitt-street, and Devonshire-street, to hold said moneys and the interest thereon until they receive further instructions from the General Assembly thereanent, and instruct the committee to endeavour to secure that the Government shall retain any such moneys which may not have been paid over to trustees, pending the passing of the Presbyterian Church Property Management Bill now before Parliament.

The whole of the deliverance, as amended, was then adopted on the motion of the Rev. Dr. MacInnes.

The reports of the colleges, religion and morals, and temperance committees were postponed. The session adjourned to the following day at 10 a.m.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

Crowded houses have followed the introduction of "The Runaway Girl" at the Theatre Royal, where the Royal Comic Opera Company has once more proved its long-maintained popularity. The brightness of the music and the hearty fun of such numbers as "Follow the Man from Cook's," in which Mr. George Lauri involves Misses Florence Young, Grace Palotta, Carrie Moore, and the other principals, in some troublesome antics, causes hilarious laughter. Mr. J. C. Williamson notifies that seats can now be booked at Nicholson's 12 nights in advance. There will be the usual matinee on Wednesday.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

At the Lyceum Theatre the revival of "In Sight of St. Paul's" has proved strongly attractive, and Mr. Bland Holt will not need any change of programme for some time to come. The great scene showing the outbreak of fire in the "Panther's" den, with the flames bursting forth in every direction, and the arrival of the firemen with their engine and hose is carried out with a realistic elaboration that causes enthusiasm nightly.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"Boy Jim," a new four-act sporting drama, founded by Miss Maud Williamson upon Dr. Conan Doyle's novel, "Rodney Stone," will be produced for the first time in Sydney at the Criterion Theatre to-night. The chief episode in the new piece will occur in the third act, in which Mr. Alfred Woods, as Boy Jim, will carry on the action of the story by a boxing match with Billy M'Carthy, middle-weight champion. A long cast will also include Miss Maud Williamson as Margaret Trevellion, Miss Hardinge-Meltby as Dorothy Clyde, Mr. Charles Woods as Sir Lothian Hume, &c.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

This afternoon and evening, at the Tivoli Theatre, Mr. Harry Rickards will introduce two new American comedians, Mr. Charles Harris and Miss Nellie Walters, who will make their Australian debut in their original sketch, "The Lamppost Inspector." Miss Peggy Pryde will vary her songs, the Perman Trio will appear, Callahan and Mack will contribute their artistic duologue with Irish pipes and flute, and Gallando, Professor Davys and his marionettes, Messrs. Dan Conroy, G. B. Alexander, F. Bluett, and others will assist.

PALACE THEATRE.

Messrs. Lee and Rial announce a complete change of programme for this evening at the Palace Theatre, where the World's Entertainers will give their usual matinee. The three Lestines, new acrobats, will join the combination, and "The Merry World" will enter upon a second edition, to which Misses Rose Hamilton, Ada Willoughby, and the other artists concerned, will contribute new numbers. Salerno continues his really marvellous and captivating exhibition of juggling.

Mr. Henry Lee will head a strong company of World's Entertainers next week for the show dates, May 16, 17, and 19, at Newcastle.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be revived at the Empire Theatre to-night by the Cosgrove Dramatic Company, with negro choruses and plantation dances.

TOWN HALL ORGAN RECITAL.

This evening the city organist's programme at the Town Hall will include a fantasia on "La Boheme," "The Lost Chord," and other pieces. Mr. Arthur Mason will be assisted by Miss Olive Godwin, Miss Bertha Faning, and Mr. Arthur Noble.

NEWBURY-SPADA CONCERTS.

Mme. Emily Spada and Mr. Philip Newbury will this evening continue their popular concerts at the Centenary Hall with a Scotch programme. Misses Mabel Batchelor, Lilian Frost, Lilian Booth (elocution), Messrs Rivers Allpress, Gerard Vollmar, Leon Roche, J. Edward Sykes, the Angelus Ladies' Choir, and Herr Gehde's trio will assist.

The tenor will sing Gounod's inspiring aria, "Lend Me Your Aid," as well as "Farewell tae My Hame" and "Mary of Argyll." Mme. Emily Spada's chief songs will be "O, Loving Heart, Trust On," and "Robin Adair." The plan is at Nicholson's.

"THIODON'S WONDERS."

"Thiodon's Wonders," an entertainment of illustrated song, waxworks, and instrumental music, will open to-night at the premises at the corner of Liverpool and Bathurst streets.

AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

Next Wednesday evening the Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society will open their eleventh season at the Town Hall. Reference to the programme, under Signor Hazon's direction, will be found in "Musical and Dramatic Notes." Schumann's "Genoveva Overture," Beethoven's "C Minor Symphony," Tschaikowsky's "Caprice Italien," the prelude to the third act of "Lohengrin," and Dvorak's "Slavonic Dances" will be performed by the band, with M. Henri Staell as leader. Miss Sylvia Blackston will sing "Ah, se tu dormi" and "Lovely Spring." The plan is at Paling's.

THE DALEY TESTIMONIAL.

"A Bohemian Night" has been elaborately organised for next Thursday evening at the Town Hall, when the entertainment will be in honour of Mr. Victor J. Daley. The list of assisting artists will include Messrs. Rivers Allpress, Nicholas Gehde, Arthur Mason (city organist), D. Clancy, Ernest Staedtgen, The World's Entertainers (by kind permission of Messrs. Lee and Rial, of the Palace Theatre), Charles St. Julien, Carden Wilson, William Walshe, Percy Herford, Bethel and Rose, D. H. Souter and Fred. Leist, Harry Leston, Will Bennett, Misses Annie Perry, Mabel Batchelor, Julia Walshe, and the Angelus Choir of 20 lady voices. Smoking will be allowed after half-past 9. The patronage of the Governor-General and the State Premier has been accorded.

MR. GRIMM'S FAREWELL CONCERT.

An executive committee, with Mr. Robert B. Parry and Mr. H. B. Brewer as hon. secretaries, is working hard to ensure the success of the farewell concert to Mr. George Grimm, an event which will take place at the Town Hall, Saturday, May 31. The baritone, who is a native of New South Wales, has many friends, so that, in addition to singing two numbers, the Sydney Liedertafel will reserve the whole of the northern gallery. The Philharmonic and Amateur Orchestral Societies will also give their patronage, so that there is every promise of a great house. The Scottish Choir will sing under Mr. Grimm's direction, and leading artists will assist.

PRESENTATION TO MR. DELANY.

At the conclusion of the Sydney Philharmonic Society's rehearsal on Thursday Signor Hazon took the opportunity of heartily thanking Mr. J. A. Delany for his invaluable services in conducting the orchestra and choir during the year that he (Signor Hazon) was engaged with Mr. J. C. Williamson's Italian Opera Company. Signor Hazon then called upon Mr. G. Rivers Allpress to present Mr. Delany with a set of massive gold links on behalf of the orchestra and office-bearers of the Philharmonic Society. Mr. Delany cordially acknowledged the presentation and the kind speeches which accompanied it, and all present set the stamp of their approval upon the proceedings with enthusiastic applause.

UNION OF METHODISM.

INAUGURATION OF THE LEICHHARDT CIRCUIT.

To celebrate the formation of Leichhardt into a separate and independent circuit, and the consummation of Methodist union within its bounds, also for the purpose of bringing together in social intercourse all the members and adherents of the uniting churches, a circuit tea meeting and demonstration was held on Tuesday night, and were largely attended. The tea was laid in the Wetherill-street schoolroom, at which successive sittings were accommodated from 6.30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The public meeting was afterwards held in the church, which was crowded. The Rev. W. Woolls Rutledge (president of the New South Wales Conference) occupied the chair, and delivered a short address of congratulation to the members and adherents of the church at Leichhardt on their position in connection with Australasian Methodist union.

Greetings and congratulations were received from several of the neighbouring churches, and addresses were delivered by the Rev. F. C. Boyer (minister of the parish), the newly-appointed circuit stewards, and the representatives of the Wetherill-street, Cromwell-street, and Helsarmel churches. Special music was rendered and was led by the united choirs of the Methodist churches within the bounds of the Leichhardt circuit.

THE PIONEER IN LITERATURE.

Those who say that the pioneer conditions of new countries and young communities are unfavourablee to the production of literature either forget the opportunities for fresh studies and novel material they offer, or they must surely attach a too narrow technical meaning to the term. The cable this week has given us news of the death of Bret Harte, who was nothing in the world of letters if not the spokesman of the pioneer conditions which obtained on the Pacific slope forty years ago. Life in the mining camps and townships of California then was much the same as on Ballarat and Lambing Flat at about the same time. Adventurers from all parts of the world were mixed together with the people of the country, the manner of life was rough and hard, there was no thought of luxuries and not much of comfort, the number of women was comparatively few, and there was little idea of literature while the gold-fever was in the air. Yet those conditions produced Bret Harte to describe them and tell of the people who lived round Sacramento in those days, just as the life of the bush in Australia has reflected itself in rhyme and prose in a multitude of sketches and tales and galloping rhymes. It is true that these are largely imitative, and it is also true that most of the imitators have copied Bret Harte, so that we find our goldseekers talking like the men of Roaring Camp and thinking with the mind of Poker Flat. Of late there is a tendency to break away from this servility of habit, and the men and women in Australian verse and prose talk and think more like the men and women they are. It is perhaps one of the penalties of fidelity to models that their thought and talk in our home-made literature is not very interesting yet, but it must be confessed that there is monotony as much about the human material as in the natural scenery.

There is not much of that colour which comes from diversity of character in Australian life. Bret Harte was fortunate in striking what he would have called a rich streak of it in Calaveras County. The quaintness of Yankee moods and humour grew more quaint in its new environment, and in contrast with the different types from many countries attracted to the same spot by the potent magic of newly-discovered gold. They all believed in luck, and lived from day to day in touch of its most sensational extremes. Their fingers were light on the trigger, too, as one of Bret Harte's characters appreciatively puts it; for the sheriff and the "Vigilance" were not always at hand when the rough justice of the mining camp had to be administered. He has described quite recently for us the human material which he worked up into literature for eager readers in both hemispheres a generation ago. They were all marked with the sign-manual of Adventure. "A grey-haired man was a curiosity in the mines in the early days," he wrote, "and an object of rude respect and reverence." They lived and made their homes without regard to convention, previous character and reputation were of little value either way, poverty and luck and success were accepted as they came, and the pervading note was perhaps something that might be best described as the gambler's recklessness. Bret Harte claimed for it also that the surroundings of this mining camp life and the scenery in which it was set gave it contrast and character. There was grandeur in the natural scenery, the vegetation was gigantic and of rapid growth, reclothing quickly all the excoriated surfaces of the soil, and in sharp contrast were the crumbling Spanish ruins and picturesque survivors of Mission and Presidio, creating as the writer claimed a condition of romantic and dramatic possibilities unrivalled in history. The chance was of course exceptional for a story-teller with the seeing eye and a mind quick and open to the humour and the crude touches of human nature about him, readily perceptive of the side-light on character this new life afforded, and with the gift to transmute all this into literature. Bret Harte was of all others the man to do the work. How he did it is known wherever the English language is read by all who care about the literature of fiction for its own sake and who frankly like a story.

The short story, which Bret Harte was once credited with having invented, lent itself readily to the work of catching and fixing fleeting impressions of such slight things as go to make up pioneer life. We have had our best descriptions of Anglo-Indian life from Kipling in the same form, and at its best there is no better medium for this class of work. It is the fashion in the United States now to produce longer and more laboured literary efforts, more subtle analyses of thought and mind, more or less anæmic studies of men and women living under anything but pioneer conditions. Some of this work is undeniably clever, and some even exceptionally so. The new school of American writers of fiction can give us stories of men and women with red blood in them, too. But Bret Harte's work stands alone in the sense that occasion befriended him with an unusually favourable opportunity to study pioneer life and character with sympathy and at first hand, under circumstances that brought out all that was characteristic and picturesque and dramatic in the men and women who lived in those rough old mining settlements with the fantastic names. He tells us that as a youth he failed to find anything in local literature reproducing the wild and strange life which had impressed him. He felt the call to describe what he saw as he saw it; and he claimed recently that, however short he fell of his ideal and purpose, he could conscientiously believe that he had painted much that "he saw, and part of which he was," and that his subject and characters were distinctly Californian, as also was his treatment of them. So he gave us these stories with their zest of adventure, their odour of the pine-woods, their touches of womanliness, their child-life, their sharp contrasts, quaint terms of speech, and unfailing humour. When much of the aspiring American fiction of to-day is forgotten millions besides his countrymen and women will read of Santa Claus and Blazing Star, and look on at the home-coming of Tennessee's partner, or watch the receding figure of a certain romantic horseman, "carolling against the sunrise."

A WORLD'S CONGRESS.

A proposal has been started in the United States which has, at least, the merit of novelty. The proposal is for a World's Congress, representing the most important peoples on the globe, to be held either in Europe or in America in 1903. It is pointed out that hitherto international congresses have been failures because the representatives were selected for diplomatic, personal, or political reasons. The present scheme runs on different lines. The congress is to consist of one hundred persons. Five hundred names are to be put in nomination, representative of the highest thought and the most practical statesmanship of all nations. The qualifications for the final selection are in the following order:—Sincerity of purpose; earnestness; clear thinking, that is, ability to see the truth; and broad experience in affairs. The hundred are to be chosen by a consensus of the ablest opinions amongst the people to be represented and elsewhere. It is not stated how this consensus is to be obtained; and it is conceivable that the process of selection will be a very delicate and difficult task. The representation accorded to nations is to be in proportion to their importance in international affairs, in population, and in the world of intellect. Great Britain, on account of her own position, and because of the varied masses of humanity included in the Empire will, it is expected, have a larger share of representation than any other country. Germany, France, Russia, and the United States will come next; and these five countries will probably have assigned to them half the representation. Japan and China will also have representatives in proportion to their international importance. It is considered that a fund of about £50,000 will be required to pay the expenses of the delegates while in session; and it is thought that there will be no difficulty in obtaining this sum by the co-operation of the leaders in the American world of thought and finance.

The order of discussion at the Congress is to be determined by the delegates; and the majority of the delegates from each country are to select the subject which seems to them to be most important for their own country in its international relations. The subjects will be presented to the Congress in the order of priority assigned to the nations according to their population. The object is to secure a clear representation of each question by the most competent men in the world. Even in these days, when we are getting accustomed to men who "think in continents," and are no longer content to plod along in the time-worn ruts of thought, the proposal strikes one as being a most daring one. Yet if the initial difficulty of selection can be overcome there is no reason why the Congress should not be made a success. The promoters point out that a single session would be of far-reaching importance; and that if it could be kept in permanent session there would be no need for peace or arbitration commissions. The underlying fact which is the justification for such a Congress, and which also clears it from the reproach of being either a solecism or an impertinence, is that in the language of the promoters "the affairs of every people, however humble or remote, have become the business of every other people. There must be a harmonious adjustment of the world's interests." In international commissions to settle some question in dispute it is almost impossible to get at the actual facts. The best result possible is a moderately fair compromise. In scientific and semi-scientific congresses too many subjects are generally introduced. Hence the discussion is very fragmentary and inclusive. The time of the delegates is taken up in a round of literary and social dissipation, and the papers are for the most part too technical. Hence they exercise only a slight influence, if any, upon the thought of the world. Moreover there is in connection with such gatherings a sort of unwritten law that there are some subjects which must be avoided, and opinion upon which must not find utterance.

A Congress, such as is contemplated, would have no legislative authority. The delegates could not even claim to speak as representatives of the nation with which they were identified. They could only claim to present the subject with which they were dealing as it presented itself to their own minds. Selected as they are to be for their special fitness, and not for diplomatic, political, or personal reasons, their sole object would be to lay before the Congress a vigorous and impartial representation of the question under discussion. That the project, if carried out, will have an influence in moulding the thought and sentiment of the world is certain. But this is not its only claim to attention. It is the first effort in a direction which is likely to be frequently travelled in the future. In these days of so-called democracy it is becoming increasingly difficult for the ablest and best men to take an active part in politics. Democracy itself, as commonly understood, is becoming more manifestly a failure as a means of securing good legislation and capable administration. It is almost impossible to mistake the signs of the time in regard to these matters. More and more the capable and more intelligent men will take the management of national and international affairs in their own hands. Whilst Parliaments and political parties are fighting over unimportant details, they will be combining to meet the real needs of the people, and to direct their thoughts into the most profitable channels. It is in its ultimate, as well as in its immediate, consequences that the proposed Congress challenges attention. At present it is not decided where it will be held, whether in Washington or in Paris. For many reasons the former would seem to be the more appropriate place.

THE NAVAL ESTIMATE.

It is rather curious that while so competent an expert as W. Laird Clowes is writing in complimentary terms in the "Nineteenth Century" about our Australian naval forces, and their usefulness as part of an Imperial naval reserve, the federal authorities should be meditating a step which will act as a distinct discouragement, to say the least of it, to that branch of our defence force. The local authority has been notified that the usual vote of £10,000 for the New South Wales naval establishment will probably be cut down by one half. Retrenchment is all very well in its way, and no one is likely to object to it as an abstract principle, or when applied in the right direction. But surely some wiser plan could have been devised than that of starving our naval enterprise. The forces here consist of the Naval Brigade, one of the most popular branches of our defence forces, and the Naval Artillery Volunteers, with the torpedo detachment. So far as can be gathered, there seems to be some idea of abolishing the two last named, though this is not definitely known yet. It is hardly to be conceived that any such step should be seriously contemplated. We are justly proud of our naval forces in this State, and we could part with many things more willingly. It certainly does appear strange at a time like this, when we are realising the necessity of maintaining and improving this arm of defence, that the federal authority should be taking steps to weaken it. In an interview reported in another column, Sir William Lyne points out that the matter is not settled. We also gather that the reductions to be effected are not likely to be so drastic as those foreshadowed by Sir John Forrest.

MISTIMED CRITICISM.

In the general discussion on the question of liberty of speech respecting British policy and action in the South African war too little regard has been given by those who have claimed that liberty to the consequences of their words. No doubt the privilege is a sacred one, but it should not be allowed to degenerate into license. There is a time to speak, and a time to be silent. Discussion might have been profitable before the war, and it may be after peace is established. What has been said for the Boers and against the British has not helped the former, whilst it has hindered the operations of the latter. Certainly it has contributed to the prolongation of the conflict. It has given matter to the Boer representatives in Europe by which to misrepresent British opinion. It has enabled the Boer leaders in South Africa to deceive their followers. The war, which was begun under serious misconceptions by the people of the Transvaal and Orange Free State, has been maintained by further misconceptions, one of which is the repeated statement that the Boers had the sympathy of a great mass of the British population. Otherwise indefensible action in the repression of pro-Boer demonstrations in England and Australia must obviously be considered in view of the improper use of the right of free speech. Englishmen may well be exasperated when they see their countrymen shot down in needless numbers in consequence of this mistimed agitation. They have reason to complain that European public opinion was through it aroused against the nation. A Continental statesman sought to justify the hostility of his countrymen by this misuse of freedom by certain sections of the British population. These two considerations alone afford reason enough for any intelligent citizen to withhold criticism which can only damage both the Boers and the British. It is bad enough to have the nation defamed by the enemy and by those who sympathise with them, but it is worse to have the defamation supplemented by some of our number, and it does not improve matters to have them defended on the ground that they are but exercising their rights as Englishmen.

THE RIVAL ART SOCIETIES.

Those who take an interest in the concerns of local art-study find it a matter of regret that two societies should be in a manner competing with each other in Sydney. For a long while it was hoped that the good sense of both would find a means of adjusting this matter. But that hope has so far failed, and the Minister for Education now feels that the time has come to bring his influence to bear. He may have been helped in coming to that decision by the deputation of art-students that pressed on his attention the other day the difference between the state of things regulating art-study here and in Melbourne. The deputation spoke strictly of what it knew, and it certainly does seem remarkable that, spending as we do so large a sum as £800 annually to encourage art, there should not be more abundant means of local tuition. What Melbourne finds possible surely we can do here, and it was quite time that this consideration struck the mind of the Minister. If the artists and art students and art sympathisers and amateurs of Sydney worked in harmony, it is fair to presume that the art classes and the system of art teaching would receive adequate attention. But a difference of opinion has unhappily kept the artists apart, and after all it is not such a difference as need cause a rift of this serious character. Some years ago they divided because some members of the old Art Society thought that "lay" members should not have the right of voting on questions before the society. So we had the Society of Artists formed. Each society has had its own subsidy, and its own annual and other exhibitions since then, and, so far as the well-wishers of both can see, no tangible good has accrued to either. Now Mr. Perry announces that unless they can compose their differences the subsidies will be withdrawn. The societies would have themselves to blame if the vote were allowed to lapse. The matter is now under consideration, and as a tentative towards peace a joint exhibition is to be held in the coming spring.

Letters from Abroad.—On page 5 we publish a letter on "Life in London," by Mr. Henry W. Lucy, and the letter of our St. Petersburg correspondent.

Cobar Water Supply.—It was stated in a recent issue of the "Herald" that the Minister for Works was arranging with the Railway Commissioners to carry water to Cobar for the use of the mines and for domestic purposes. The railway authorities, however, found a difficulty in securing the necessary supply of square iron tanks. About 200 tanks holding 4000 gallons each were required, but none could be obtained. With the view of remedying the defect a number of wooden tanks of a special design are being constructed, and water will be conveyed to the district in question with as little delay as possible.

The Arbitration Court.—Mr. Justice Cohen, president of the Arbitration Court, has fixed Tuesday next at 9.45 a.m. for the purpose of settling the issues and fixing the time and place of hearing in the matter of industrial disputes. Those of which notice has been given are:—(1) the dispute between the Illawarra Colliery employees and the Southern coal proprietors, and (2) between the Newcastle Wharf Labourers and the Newcastle and Hunter River Steam Navigation Company.

The Rights of Wharf Lessees.—Yesterday the Full Court delivered judgment in the case of Lukey and another v. the Sydney Harbour Trust Commissioners. Mr. Justice Walker had granted an injunction to restrain the defendants from preventing the discharge on the wharfs of the Australian Gaslight Company of coal shipped or to be shipped from Newcastle. The principal ground of appeal was that his Honor was in error in holding that the document admitted in evidence established in favour of the company a license to occupy for the year 1901, without payment of wharfage dues, the wharfs and premises formerly leased to them by the Crown. The Court upheld the appeal, and dissolved with costs the injunction granted by Mr. Justice Walker.

THE CONDEMNATION OF FRUIT.

The matter of the condemnation in Sydney of certain oranges from the Maryborough district on account of the disease said to be "Melanose" is attracting a great deal of attention from those directly interested in the trade in Queensland. Some 50 cases of condemned fruit have been returned to Brisbane. It is said to be of poor quality. As far as can be learned at present the disease which the oranges in question were affected with appears to be "Maori," which is altogether different from "Melanose." The former is an insect which, while deteriorating the value of the fruit, does no other real damage ; and "Melanose" is a kind of spot which in time destroys the tree. The "Maori" disease is well known in Queensland, but expert evidence shows that "Melanose" has never existed here.

COMMONWEALTH NOTES.

IN THE SENATE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

PARLIAMENT HOUSE.
MELBOURNE, Friday.

To-day the Federal Parliament entered upon the second year of its first session, and the Senate held its 119th sitting, with the heavy work of the tariff still to be disposed of.

Senator Gould resumed the debate on the second reading of the Customs Bill. According to his view the question was not so much one of freetrade versus protection as whether the tariff now before the Senate would meet the necessities of the Commonwealth. He held that it did not. In order to combat the contentions of previous speakers on the other side he had to give some figures showing the relative positions of Germany, Great Britain, and America. Possibly the foreign countries named had made progress at a greater rate than Great Britain, but he held that they had to start at a humbler level, and had not even yet reached Great Britain's standard of national life. Not only were the conditions under protection favourable to the formation of trusts, but he declared that the experience of Victoria showed that a terrible system of sweating of the workmen was the inevitable result of the mistaken fiscal policy under protection. Also, prices were higher in the home market than they were in the foreign markets. Why, he asked, should a similar system be built up here? The policy of the tariff, said Senator Gould, was to make the pastoral, mining, and agricultural industries pay about £400,000 per annum to keep some secondary industries going. He claimed that revenue should be a primary consideration in the framing of a tariff. "Put the tea duty back, then," was the remedy suggested by Senator Playford. Senator Gould declined to accept the suggestion. They ought, he said, to cut down some of the high duties, so that those would become revenue-producing. A few industries might be wiped out in the process, but they would be industries that were not adapted to the country. Concluding, he announced that he was prepared to assist in getting a fair amount of revenue, but he was not prepared to hamper trade and put money in the pockets of the few at the expense of the many.

Senator Drake defended the policy of the Government. He spoke as one who was a freetrader in the old country, but when he became acquainted with Australian conditions he arrived at the conclusion that protection was the proper policy to develop industries and foster international development. The tariff as originally introduced was to his mind an absolute fulfilment of the pledges given in the Maitland speech. It followed a policy which would develop internal commerce more than that which would develop internal trade. That was a policy which, in his opinion, was clearly accepted by the people at the time of the referendum. The Postmaster-General said that he was fearful of being drawn into a maelstrom of discussion on the respective merits of freetrade and protection for two reasons—first, because no one was ever converted by preliminary debates of that kind, and secondly, because the position of the Commonwealth rendered impossible the application of a pure system, either of freetrade or protection. When Senator O'Connor introduced the tariff he dealt with the bill as it reached the Senate, and shut out from his speech altogether any reference to what it was when introduced in the House of Representatives. His colleague the Postmaster-General showed no such tenderness. Senator Drake preferred the tariff as first introduced. The House of Representative had altered—he would not say amended—the tariff, and he would have much preferred it with the tea and the kerosene duties untouched. The Postmaster-General claimed that the tariff, if not exactly a compromise between the opposing parties, was an accommodation to the varying conditions existing throughout the Commonwealth.

Talking about fiscal conversions, the matter referred to by the Postmaster-General, Senator Matheson said that 50 per cent. of the people of Western Australia when they arrived there were protectionists, but now that State was freetrade from end to end. From what he had been able to learn fully 60 per cent. of the people of Australia were hoping that the Senate would amend the tariff. The position of the smaller States, especially of Tasmania, he pointed out, was this—that their people had to pay high prices for manufactured goods such as clothing, hats, and boots to the protected manufacturers, while the State did not get the benefit of the revenue. He wanted the consumers of Australia to get everything required as cheaply as possible, and in moving to amend the tariff accordingly, he would not shrink from the consequences like many of the previous speakers. Senator Matheson found that his notes contained much more matter than he was able to deal with at the present stage, and he therefore closed his speech when the adjournment hour arrived.

Senator Millen will continue the debate on Tuesday next.

QUEENSLAND WEATHER BUREAU.

The attention of the Federal Government has been directed to the contemplated closing of the Queensland Weather Bureau, and it is suggested that the Commonwealth should take over the work. Mr. Deakin has directed inquiries to be made, and will bring the matter before the Cabinet.

RETURN OF SIR WILLIAM LYNE.

INTERESTING INTERVIEW.

Sir William Lyne, Minister for Home Affairs, returned to Sydney yesterday, and when seen at his residence last night by a "Herald" representative, granted an interesting interview dealing with several matters connected with Commonwealth administration.

FEDERAL CAPITAL QUESTION.

In reply to questions relating to the "search for a federal capital," Sir William said,—"I am sorry I was not able to join the party at the start. However, the members will be here to-morrow, and it is my intention, if the state of my health will permit, to go with them south when they resume the journey on Monday. I am surprised at the remarks Mr. G. H. Reid made at the absence of any Minister from the party. Of course he directed those remarks to me. The occasion, however, did not warrant it, and I cannot see how he could expect me to accompany the members when he knew that the state of my health at the time would not permit of my so doing. I may say that I did everything I could whilst in Melbourne to keep this question of the federal capital alive, and to bring it before Parliament. With that purpose in view, I organised the tour of the senators. I was surprised that the press scarcely treated the matter seriously, and attempted to ridicule it. This was specially the case in Melbourne. That trip did a large amount of good. It was no picnic. On the contrary, it was very hard work. Now the Tariff Bill being in the Senate the members of the House of Representatives have a chance of inspecting the sites, and I think they will gain a great deal of useful information. One thing has struck me very forcibly in my experience of the Federal Parliament, and that is the absence of information by members regarding the extent of good country we have in New South Wales. At the time of the senators' visit many of them expressed unbounded astonishment at what they saw. I am sure it will be the same this time. It is not very well the fault of the members, who have resided for the whole of their lives, perhaps, in some distant State, yet those members have not only to legislate for the countries in which they reside, but also for New South Wales. It has occurred to me therefore that it would be well if these members could obtain some practical personal knowledge of the "wealth and progress" of this particular portion of the Commonwealth. If I were in the State Legislature of New South Wales now I would invite all the members of the Federal Parliament to various parts of this State so that they might become better acquainted with it. Even in this secondary manner therefore these inspections must do good. The cost of the trips is a mere nothing compared with the hundreds of thousands of pounds which might be saved if the members of the Federal Parliament generally had a better knowledge of our country. Regarding the future, after this trip has taken place I shall be able to some extent to gauge the feelings of members regarding the few sites which will then be in the running. The Government will engage experts to examine the localities with the view of inquiring into matters relating to water supply, sewerage, and building material. Probably about four sites will be reported on in this way. We could not possibly report on them all. We should have the reports from these experts before us by next session. If I had not forced the matter on I should not have been able to deal with it next session. The question of the capital ought to be decided then : but it will, I think, be quite five years before the necessary buildings will be ready to enable us to occupy the place. Meanwhile, the capital must, for all practical purposes, remain in Melbourne."

THE PUBLIC SERVICE BILL.

Sir William Lyne stated that he had had a short interview with Mr. D. M'Lachlan, of New South Wales, who had been chosen Public Service Commissioner for the Commonwealth. He thought he had secured the services of a most capable man. His duties would be of a very important character, but he had every belief that they would be carried out with tact, discretion, and judgment.

MILITARY AND NAVAL EXPENDITURE.

During the absence of Sir John Forrest Sir William Lyne has taken over the administration of military and naval matters. Owing to the vote for those services having been greatly reduced, increased economy would, he said, be necessary. Nothing, however, had yet been decided. He had asked General Hutton (for the Commonwealth) and the naval commanders (for the States) to prepare reports providing for a judicious curtailment of cost. These would be considered by the Cabinet later on, when some determination would be arrived at. As little hardship would be imposed on the services as possible. The probability was that a reduction would be made to the amount spent in the years 1898 and 1899, before the South African trouble arose and large increases were made. He believed from a return which had been prepared that the total expenditure then was £597,000 for the whole of the continent.

CLOSE OF THE SESSION.

Sir William Lyne, when asked, said he really did not know when the session would be likely to close. He hoped, however, that the Federal Parliament would get into recess about the end of June.

THE STATE PARLIAMENT.

PREPARING FOR THE SESSION.

A FEW OF THE BILLS.

A good deal of headway is being made in connection with the improvements in the Legislative Assembly Chamber, and it is anticipated that everything will be in readiness for the opening of the session on the 27th instant.

It was anticipated by politicians that the Premier would, in his speech at Grafton, have given some indications as to the nature of the measures which he intends to submit to the House. There was, however, an absence of all details, and it was found on inquiry yesterday that as a matter of fact Ministers have not yet fully discussed in cabinet the merits of the bills they intend to introduce.

It is understood that one of the chief measures will be a revised Local Government Bill. This will be in charge of the Premier. Mr. Crick will submit a new Land Bill, dealing mainly with the Central division leases ; whilst Mr. Perry has in preparation an Amending Factory Bill.

Mr. Waddell has several important measures in preparation. Subject to the consent of Mr See, an audit bill will be brought forward early in the session, so that it may come into force in the ensuing financial year, in connection with the State accounts. The bill will be a considerable improvement upon the one foreshadowed last session. With regard to his new licensing bill, the Treasurer states that he is endeavouring to study neither the temperance advocate nor the licensed victualler. The law will be a "workable" one.

In connection with the Old-age Pensions Act, some alterations are contemplated. The present law, it is found, possesses many defects which require to be remedied. A new measure is being prepared, but it has not yet been submitted to the Cabinet. When the present Act was passed it was thought that between £300,000 and £400,000 would cover the full amount which would be paid away. The outlay, however, has been far greater. At the present rate the expenditure will amount to £600,000 next year. To pay away this sum would, Mr. Waddell says, greatly curtail State expenditure in other directions. It is found now that in a great many cases throughout the country persons in the receipt of pensions have well-to-do relatives who would be quite able to contribute to their maintenance. In some instances, too, it is believed that property has been made over to other people so as to render an applicant eligible to receive an old-age pension. The object of the amending law will be to weed out abuses and narrow down the expenditure to payments to the most deserving people in the country. It is not likely, however, that the amount paid away individually will be reduced.

An Amending Land and Income Tax Bill is also in preparation, the object being to remove a number of defects in the present law. It is understood that a Cabinet meeting will be convened within the next few days, at which the various bills to come before Parliament will be definitely agreed to.

THE S.S. BOVERIC.

A SEARCH TO BE MADE.

NEW PROPELLER SHIPPED FROM SYDNEY.

No tidings have so far been received of the whereabouts of the steamer Boveric, which is helplessly drifting in the wide expanse of the Indian Ocean. Information reached Sydney yesterday to the effect that arrangements had been made in Melbourne with the captain of the steamer Kilburn to search for the disabled vessel. The Kilburn is about to leave the port of the southern capital with a shipment of live stock consigned to Durban, and a deviation will be made from the usual track in the hope of falling in with the Boveric. There are several large steamers at present on the way between South Africa and Australia, and the opinion is expressed in shipping circles that the Boveric is already in tow. Shipping both with Australia and South Africa was notified some time ago of the fact that the vessel was overdue, and no doubt searches have been made by more than one steamer. The direction and rate of drift of the currents in the Indian Ocean are accurately known to all navigators engaged in the Australian-South African trade, and from the data supplied yesterday by the chief officer of the Boveric it is possible to calculate the present position of the ill-fated steamer. The troopship Aurania left Capetown on Monday last for Australia, and was one of the vessels requested to keep a strict lookout for the overdue trader. It is considered highly probable that the arrival of the Boveric at Western Australia will be shortly notified.

A new propeller to replace that lost by the Boveric was shipped last night for Melbourne by the steamship Peregrine. Mr. H. Howell, the Sydney manager of the Howard Smith Company, Limited, upon being seen by a "Herald" reporter yesterday, said that the propeller would be unshipped at Melbourne, and forwarded on to Fremantle by a vessel leaving Melbourne on Tuesday next.

THE CREW AND STOCKMEN.

A COMPLETE LIST.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

There were 85 persons on board the Boveric when she left Melbourne on March 21, comprising 35 officers and crew and 50 stockmen in charge of horses. The chief officer and three of the crew have returned, so that 81 souls remain.

The names of the 85 who commenced the voyage are as follows :—Captain L. A. Leslie, H. Hayman (chief officer), W. M'Carthy (second officer), Charles Mitchell (third officer), James Barry (carpenter), H. Ransom (boatswain), and the following able seamen :—A. H. Woodroffe, J. Timmons, J. M'Kenzie, E. Mitchell, A. Godfrey, Dey, A. Rippon, and Weaver. Engineers' department : W. Moore (chief engineer), W. Whitford (second), F. C. Wilson (third), D. Lewis (fourth). And the following greasers, trimmers, &c. :—J. Laydon, R. H. Monteith, A. Robertson, R. Brown, T. Murphy, C. Wilkie, O. M'Lean, W. Price, H. Archer, J. Sheppard, H. Phillips ; stewards—W. Judge, L. Morrison, E. Wates, D. Murray, W. Bridge, and T. Nicholls ; stockmen—F. Redman, W. Haminee, W. A. Hogan, J. Niell, J. S. Armstrong, W. Clarke, H. Brady, J. Murphy, H. Powell, H. J. Harrison, K. J. Pogonoski, J. Roberts, M. C. Trenoar, W. Robinson, H. J. Ryan, T. Mills, J. Bray, E. Misson, P. Riley, A. Stacey, H. Quinlan, G. H. Tanner, G. Kelly, D. Lewis, C. Harley, D. Hearfield, G. Davies, W. Allen, W. Armstrong, F. Kane, R. C. Reilly, R. Thomson, A. L. Wigley, W. Begge, O. Brown, A. E. Gray, F. O'Dell, J. M'Kenzie, A. C. Macfarlane, I. Taylor, R. W. Wheeler, A. Scott, C. Bowrie, Ralph Mottershead, W. A. Hills, R. Douglas, N. Beaumont, S. Kirwan, J. Gelpin, and F. Fox.

AWAITING UNDERWRITERS' INSTRUCTIONS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

No practical steps were taken to-day in the direction of despatching assistance to the disabled steamer Boveric. The delay is due to the fact that the Howard Smith Company, Limited, are awaiting instructions from the underwriters in London, to whom several proposals for instituting the search have been cabled. Up to a late hour to-night no reply had been received. Meanwhile the master of the steamer Kilburn, which is under orders to leave Hobson's Bay to-night for Durban, has been asked to keep a good lookout for the disabled steamer. The Kilburn, which has a shipment of horses and fodder aboard, will follow the course which was decided upon for the Boveric, and her master has promised to go even further north in the hope of making a successful search.

The non-arrival at Durban of the steamer Orange Branch, now four or five days overdue, was discussed in shipping circles to-day, and the suggestion was thrown out that perhaps she has the Boveric in tow. The Orange Branch left here on April 5, 15 days after the Boveric, with horses and fodder, but it is most improbable that she has fallen in with the disabled vessel. The probabilities of the Boveric being picked up by passing steamers are unfortunately not very great. The fact that she is drifting rapidly northwards, and therefore away from the regular track, suggests that her recovery can only be hoped for as the result of a special search, in which more than one vessel will take part.

MINISTERS IN THE NORTH.

COLLISION IN THE HARBOUR.

THE STEAMERS SYDNEY AND MACLEAY.

A collision occurred in the harbour shortly before midnight between the steamers Macleay, of the North Coast Steam Navigation Company's fleet, and the Sydney, belonging to the Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company. It appears from what can be gathered that the Macleay, which had just arrived from the Macleay River, was approaching the wharf, when the steamer Sydney, bound for Newcastle, came in sight. The masters of both vessels endeavoured to avoid an impact, but without success. The stem of the Sydney struck the Macleay on the port side, and about 8ft. of the latter's deck-railing was carried away. The damage was not of an extensive character, and no injury was done below the water-line. The Sydney, it is believed, escaped damage, and proceeded on her trip to Newcastle.

GREAT VOLCANIC ERUPTION.

TOWN OF ST. PIERRE OVERWHELMED.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE.

DESTRUCTION OF SHIPPING.

LONDON, May 9.

The eruption of Mount Pelee, Martinique, West Indies, has had disastrous consequences. The town of St. Pierre has been totally destroyed, with its inhabitants and all the shipping in the harbour.

Volcanic disturbances are reported from the Leeward and the Windward Islands.

The cables to St. Lucia are interrupted.

Martinique is a West Indian island of the Windward Group. The island, which is a French colony, has an area of 390 square miles, with a population of about 180,000, principally creole negroes and mulattoes. Fort Royal is the seat of government, and St. Pierre, which has been destroyed with its inhabitants and shipping, is the principal town. The population of St. Pierre is stated to be 25,500.

The island is mountainous and contains several extinct volcanoes. The highest point is Mount Pelee, 4430ft. in altitude. Martinique has a fertile soil, but its moist climate is unhealthy for Europeans. The island was discovered by the Spaniards in 1493, and the French founded a colony on it in 1635. It was taken by the English in 1762, but resigned the following year. They again occupied it from 1794 to 1802, again in 1809, and finally restored it to France in 1816. Of the total area, uncleared land, covered with much dense forest, occupies 215 square miles, and cleared and cultivated land about 165 square miles. The principal products are sugar, logwood, and cocoa. The towns of Fort Royal (or Fort de France) and St. Pierre are connected by telegraph, and cable communication exists with the United States and South America. Railways connect the principal towns. Labour is largely performed by coolies.

The plains of the island, which is crossed in the middle by 14deg. 40m. N., and 61deg. W., are subject to inundation by tidal bores. Hurricanes are frequent, notably a great hurricane in 1780, and earthquakes occur almost yearly. Severe earthquakes took place in 1767 and 1839. Great destruction of life and property was caused by a cyclone and earthquake in August, 1891. The estimated deaths were 378, besides losses by shipwrecks. The loss of property, &c., was given at £2,000,000.

St. Pierre, which is the commercial centre, is situated in the north-west part of the island, and consists of an upper and a lower town, the one close and unhealthy, and the other for the most part well-ventilated and pleasant. The houses are nearly all of wood, and have only one story.

RECENT GREAT EARTHQUAKES.

In August, 1883, Java and the neighbouring island were desolated by a series of violent eruptions from about two-thirds of its 46 volcanoes, beginning with Krakatoa casting up immense quantities of lava, mud, ashes, and fragments of rock, darkening the air for about 50 square miles. Mountains were split up, some disappeared and many new craters were formed. There was much submarine disturbance, and an immense tidal wave destroyed Anjer and other places. The lighthouses in the Straits of Sunda were swallowed up, and new volcanic peaks appeared, rendering navigation highly dangerous. The loss of life was estimated at 35,000 during August 25-28.

In 1891 a great earthquake occurred in the Niphon Islands, Japan, destroying 84,000 houses, and railways, bridges, &c. It was estimated that 10,000 people were killed and 300,000 rendered homeless. The damage was said to be £2,000,000.

Destructive shocks took place in Yuchan, Persia, in 1893, whereby, it was reported, 12,000 people were killed.

In 1896, Yamaishi, in the north of Japan, was almost completely destroyed by earthquakes, and 1000 lives lost. There were 150 shocks in 24 hours. About 200,000 people were also drowned by a seismic wave, and many towns destroyed.

The memorable earthquake of Lisbon in 1755, which left the city a heap of ruins, destroyed 35,000 lives. It is reckoned by an authority that there is at least one earthquake daily in Japan, and probably from 20 to 50 daily on the earth's surface. Buildings are now specially erected to withstand earthquakes in Japan, South America, and elsewhere.

THE AUSTRALIANS' TOUR.

MATCH AGAINST NOTTS.

COUNTY SCORE 287.

J. GUNN, 80 ; SHREWSBURY, 73.

LONDON, May 8.

The match between the Australian Eleven and Nottinghamshire was commenced to-day at Nottingham.

Trumble, Carter, and Saunders were omitted from the Australian team.

The county team comprised :—A. O. Jones (captain), J. A. Dixon, W. B. Goodacre, A. Shrewsbury, J. Gunn, W. Gunn, T. Oates, J. Iremonger, A. Hallam, T. Wass, G. Anthony.

Notts won the toss and elected to bat.

The wicket was slow.

There was a meagre attendance and the weather was threatening.

Iremonger and Jones opened the Notts innings. The latter showed excellent form, and at once imparted a lot of vigour into his play. He was particularly strong on the leg side, and ran up 23 while Iremonger contributed 4. Iremonger, in hitting at Noble, was bowled without increasing his score. 1-4-27.

W. Gunn succeeded, but his second ball proved fatal to him, he being given out leg-before-wicket to Noble. 2-0-27.

Shrewsbury followed Gunn. Jones continued to score at a fast rate, and off two overs from Howell he registered 16, but after running up 45 he was nicely caught by Hill at long-on from a lofty drive off Howell. His score included seven fours. 3-45-51. Shrewsbury's quota at this stage was 1.

The weather now became brighter.

Goodacre succeeded, but after scoring five was injured in trying to leg hit Armstrong, who had succeeded Noble at the bowling crease, and had to retire. Shrewsbury had scored three runs. Three wickets were down for 61.

J. Gunn joined Shrewsbury, and the pair brought about a change in the attack. Hopkins was tried, but as he did not look dangerous, he was removed from the bowling crease after several runs had been hit off him. The partnership had added 35 by lunch time, the score then being three wickets for 96 runs—Shrewsbury 21, J. Gunn 17.

The fielding was smarter than it had been at the opening of play.

On the resumption of play both Shrewsbury and J. Gunn scored freely, and the state of the game was now three wickets for 117 runs—Shrewsbury being 36 and J. Gunn 23.

Scoring proceeded rapidly, and the bowlers were freely punished. Shrewsbury added 14 to his total and J. Gunn 10, making 141 with three wickets down.

At this stage Shrewsbury quietened somewhat, but on the other hand Gunn increased his rate of scoring. When the former was 60 the latter stood at 58. Gunn's runs mostly came by pulling and by hits to square-leg. At 176 Trumper and Armstrong were the bowlers. Trumble's absence was badly felt and Jones was not in form.

The total was raised to 200, when Shrewsbury in trying to place a ball to leg was bowled by Trumper for 73. He played faultlessly during the 150 minutes he was at the wickets. The partnership had realised 139 runs, of which Gunn's contribution was 69. In the first over after the tea adjournment Gunn skied a ball from Howell, who took the catch himself. Gunn made 80 in 135 minutes. His compilation, which included 10 fours, was a free and chanceless exhibition of batting. Five for 214.

The remaining wickets added 74. Goodacre, who was injured earlier in the day, now resumed his innings through the courtesy of the Australian captain, having Dixon for a partner. The latter was caught at the wickets off Howell for 3. Six for 233. Goodacre when 14 was missed by Darling in the slips off Howell. He obtained 6 more, and was bowled with a yorker by Trumper. Seven for 249.

Anthony and Oates got together. The former when 14 was missed by Gregory at cover point off Trumper. He raised his total to 30, when he was yorked by Jones. Eight for 270. Oates was caught at the wickets off Trumper for 11. Nine for 279. Hallam was bowled by Howell for 4 ; Wass was not out 8, and the innings closed for 287. Stumps were then drawn for the day.

Howell took four wickets for 74 and Trumper three for 59.

FRIDAY'S PLAY.

AUSTRALIANS AT THE WICKETS.

LONDON, May 9, 12.35 p.m.

Duff and Trumper opened the innings of the Australians. The weather is cool and the wicket is faster than yesterday. The attendance is small. Duff has scored one run, while Trumper is four.

1.15 p.m.

Scoring is rapid. Trumper is giving a brilliant exhibition of all-round play. His score is 38. Duff is playing somewhat slower, his compilation being 18, but still his batting is confident and of good quality. The weather is now more genial. No wickets for 59.

1.30 p.m.

After adding 9 to the total, Trumper was bowled by Hallam with an off break, while Duff had run his score to 25. 1-47-75. Trumper's score included seven four's.

The scores are as follow :—

S. BARNES'S INJURY.

LONDON, May 8.

S. Barnes bowled at Lord's Ground to-day. His knee, which was injured at Adelaide, gave way in the third over.

May 9.

Barnes went to see a specialist after his knee gave way yesterday. The doctor allowed him to resume play later in the day.

[Barnes twisted his knee during the third test at Adelaide, and he was unable to play again throughout the tour of MacLaren's team. The match in which he took part on Thursday was Lancashire v. M.C.C. and Ground at Lord's. Barnes, before joining Lancashire, played for the Burnley Club, who paid him a higher remuneration than that drawn by County players, and he was required to play on two days only a week. In accepting a position in the late English team he promised MacLaren to play for Lancashire this season, and that county, to compensate the Burnley Club for the loss of Barnes' services, paid £100. It was generally thought, prior to the injury and because of his remarkable success in Australia, that a great future as a bowler was in store for him. It was anticipated that, all being well, his selection in the All England eleven to meet Australia in the test games was assured.]

MR. POIDEVIN.

LONDON, May 9.

It is stated that L. O. S. Poidevin, of New South Wales, intends qualifying for Gloucestershire.

[L. O. S. Poidevin voyaged to England with the Australian and English cricketers on the R.M.S. Omrah. Owing to a bad leg and then an injured hand he was available on not more than two occasions last season, and in those he secured the highest average against the Englishmen with 63·66, his best innings being 151 not out for New South Wales.]

NOTES ON THE MATCH.

The bad weather has followed the Australians from London to Nottingham. Rain had evidently already fallen, for the wicket was slow, and it was threatening when the contest began. However, as the day advanced the weather brightened, and this leads to the opinion that the Australians will have a good wicket for the second day's play. Jones and Iremonger have registered some substantial partnerships in county matches. This time they went in together, but when the total stood at 27, of which the captain had obtained no fewer than 23, Iremonger let out at Noble, and was bowled. The second wicket, William Gunn's, fell without alteration in the total. Although Gunn was well forward in English cricket for many years he did not visit Australia on more than one occasion, viz., in the season of 1886-7. He has always been a tower of strength to his side—if he failed with the bat he is worth his place in the team for his fielding—his reach is extraordinary, and his hands are capable of holding anything like a chance.

The vacancy caused by Gunn's retirement was filled by another whose doughty deeds in the cricket field have likewise extended over many years. It is over twenty summers, 1881-2, since Shrewsbury first visited Australia. He came again in 1884-5, in 1886-7, when he was captain, and in 1887-8. That he is still a valuable man to have on a side is shown by his innings of 73. He is a correct rather than a brilliant batsman, in fact the drawback of the Notts team for many years was slow run-getting, a big proportion of games being drawn every year. Leg defence was a feature of the play of this county team, Shrewsbury and Gunn being probably the leading exponents of this branch of cricket. During the discussions that have taken place from time to time upon the question of amending the leg-before-wicket rule, Shrewsbury's skill in covering his wicket with his legs has always been quoted in favour of an alteration in the law.

It is somewhat remarkable that John Gunn should have obtained 80 in his first engagement against the present Australian team in England, though in Australia, in the course of 16 innings in eleven-a-side matches he got no more than 30 in a single innings. A. O. Jones also eclipsed his Australian best (44), though it is only by one run. So far the scoring has been very lopsided, not more than two or three in each innings for and against the Australians being credited with respectable contributions.

With the probability of a wicket not in favour of the batsmen the county has done well to register 287. The prospect of a slow wicket was no doubt the reason for the exclusion of Saunders, though at the same time it may be pointed out that Jones as a rule is not successful with the ball when the wicket is without pace.

SHIPPING CORPORATION.

THE ABSORPTION OF COMPANIES.

DETAILS OF PROVISIONAL AGREEMENTS.

LONDON, May 9.

The provisional agreements between the Shipping Corporation and the various companies which it absorbs have been published.

The corporation is under American laws and has a capital of 60,000,000dol. in ordinary stock, 60,000,000dol. preferred stock at 6 per cent., and 50,000,000dol. 5½ per cent trust debentures, which are payable in 20 years, but which may be redeemed after five years at 105. The dividends on ordinary stock are limited to 10 per cent. while the debentures are outstanding.

The following properties have been acquired :—The White Star line and the capital and business of Ismay Imrie, Limited (it excepts its Asiatic fleet), the Asiatic Steam Navigation Company, the Dominion Ship Company, the American line, the Atlantic Transport Company, and a portion of the Leyland line.

The transfer of the White Star and the Dominion lines must be sanctioned by the representatives of 75 per cent. of the capital.

The valuation of both these lines and of Ismay Imrie, Limited, and Richards and Mills is tenfold the net profits for 1900, additional to cash for expenditure on ships constructing at the end of 1900. A quarter of the valuation is to be paid in cash, three-quarters in preferred stock, and 37½ (?) per cent. in ordinary stock.

The American and Atlantic lines together receive 18,314,000dol. in preferred stock, 9,157,000dol. in ordinary stock, and 15,750,000dol. in cash. New tonnage is to be taken as required. The portion of the Leyland line is acquired for 11,735,000dol cash.

Later.

Ismay, Imrie, Limited, and Richards and Mills were pledged to Mr. Pierpont Morgan not to engage in shipping between the seaports of the United States, Canada, the West Indies, Mexico, the United Kingdom, and Europe for 14 years.

The syndicate's agreement for 10 years gives Harland and Wolff, Limited, of Belfast, all building and repairing to the fullest capacity of their yards, provided they build for no competitors apart from the Hamburg-American line, but American shipyards are not debarred.

Separate agreements exist between the syndicate, the Hamburg-American line, and the North German line, but these are not published.

The White Star line, except its Asiatic fleet, is sold outright. Employees are guaranteed that they will not be disturbed for a year. Mr. Morgan proposes to form a syndicate to repurchase from the vendors in their own names with debentures and 50,000,000dol. in shares all ships which sail under British colours, and whose registered names are British, but the majority of whose proprietors are Americans.

The "Standard" says that the question of technical validity arises.

The horses will be led down at noon by a fatigue party, and shortly after the departing men will leave the camp in the Agricultural Ground. The band of the R.A.A. will meet the detail at the Captain Cook Hotel, Moore Park, and play them down to the Central Wharf, Miller's Point.

THE GROUNDING OF THE PAROO.

When the Court of Marine Inquiry into the grounding of the Paroo a few weeks ago suspended Captain Medley's certificate of competency for six months, the President of the Court (Mr. Panton, P.M.) was unable to demand the document owing to the absence of the captain. The matter was referred to at a meeting of the Marine Board to-day, and it was stated that Captain Medley had now delivered up the certificate, but under protest, declaring that he had been advised that the finding of the Court was bad in law, and was not in accordance with the evidence. The captain further explained that the matter was to be taken to the Supreme Court, when if the finding of the Marine Court was quashed he hoped the certificate would be returned to him as had been done in other cases.

A report from the engineer of the board was received stating that the injuries to the Paroo had been repaired and the vessel released from detention.

Several heavy gales hampered the steamer Nineveh greatly during her voyage from London, via Capetown, in the Southern Ocean, the result being that the progress of the vessel was seriously retarded. The Nineveh anchored in Hobson's Bay at half-past 3 o'clock this morning, and after receiving her clearance went up the river to berth.

SEARCH FOR A FEDERAL CAPITAL.

A FIVE HUNDRED MILES STAGE.

VIEWING THE NEW ENGLAND SITE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

ARMIDALE, Friday.

It is shivering cold. We have covered 500 miles of rail from Bathurst to the Homebush loop, and away up north to Armidale, and for what reason it is hard to say. From all I can gather the site is quite out of the running, and has very few, if any, admirers; that is to say, admirers of the geographical position. No one who sees, and certainly not anyone who knows, this great district could do aught but admire it. Members say they are glad that they have seen it, and perhaps there is a good deal in their argument that it is a payable investment to enable legislators to become familiar with the country that they are legislating for. This stage of the journey has been quite without unusual incident, but it has been a pleasure to watch the genuine interest of the visiting members in the features of the country. The Victorians are always very anxious to know if the country is gold-bearing, or can be turned into a "cabbage garden"; and the men from Western Australia think in a like direction, while the New South Wales man dilates upon the grazing and fruit-bearing power of the land. All the over-border visitors wanted to see the great Zig-Zag after we left Bathurst, but the darkness of the night obscured the view.

When we reached Homebush Mr. Reid left the party. He intends to rejoin it later, probably at Queanbeyan. His presence in the party has been most welcome to all because of his quality of good companionship. His presence here must also have its political value, because in the absence of any representative of the Government, he from his position in the House necessarily holds a high place, if not the first place, here. The ways of politicians are often inscrutable. It is certainly hard to divine the reason which moved the Ministry to send no representative. The people in each of the districts we have visited point to the omission, and no doubt the Government will come to recognise that they made a mistake. What was their neglect or carelessness has been Mr. Reid's opportunity, particularly in view of the great importance which the local people attach to such incidents.

From Homebush we slipped round the loop on to the Northern line, and started on this 358 miles stage. At daybreak, when we awoke, it was cold, and as the day grew older and we pushed further along on the top of this magnificent ridge it grew colder still. Breakfast was served in the train. Our speed was high, and the dining car rolled considerably. A set meal in a train is very nice as a novel experience, but it is an evanescent delight. The carriage has a sportive way of plunging, swaying, and rocking, and it is not always at the first attempt that a choice morsel safely skewered on a fork is conveyed to the mouth. However, with a little practice an agile man can very frequently escape a deluge of hot coffee. When we reached Armidale it was a bleak, wintry day, and a long drive 15 miles out and 12 back lay before us. Very frequently it happens that measured outwards and homewards the distance varies. Vehicles of many sorts were at hand, from the hansom cab to the four-in-hand team, and we made a pilgrimage to Gostwyck station homestead, the property of Mr. A. A. Dangar. The road lay across paddocks, and in the face of a biting south-westerly, which made us hungry, lunch was spread on the grass, and water for the making of tea was drawn from the fine creek which courses through the estate. It was a pleasant picnic, and proved a heavy strain on the supply of tinned meats and liquors, carted all the way from Melbourne. It was an auspicious day, because it was the anniversary of the opening of the Federal Parliament, when the oath of allegiance was taken, when H.R.H. the Duke of Cornwall and York (now Prince of Wales) was present. In honour of the occasion Mr. Chanter, as Deputy Speaker of the House of Representatives, sent a congratulatory telegram on behalf of the touring party to Mr. Holder (the Speaker of the Federal Parliament).

Armidale was re-entered at dusk, and all who had not brought their overcoats hurried to the train to secure such comforts. Dinner was obtained at the Imperial Hotel, and at 8.30 the train was boarded and a start made for Sydney. To-morrow the party will enjoy an excursion on the harbour in the Government yacht Victoria.

ROMBALA, Friday.

Mr. Haigh, of the Home Department, has been in town for the last few days making arrangements for the accommodation and coaching of the federal members. A meeting of the Federal Capital League was held to-day, Mr. R. Campbell presided. A telegram from the Home Department was received altering the date of arrival from Monday to Wednesday, and arrangements have been made to receive the visitors on Wednesday afternoon. All arrangements were made to convey the members to the site on Thursday morning by private traps, after which they will drive back to town and partake of a luncheon. At the School of Arts on Wednesday night a concert will be held, and on Thursday a dance. A large number of exhibits of all classes of produce will be ready for the inspection of the visitors.

PAMBULA, Friday.

The Federal representatives party wired to-day stating that they will not arrive here till Tuesday.

QUEANBEYAN, Friday.

The programme for the Representatives' trip of inspection of the capital sites has been slightly altered to inspect Queanbeyan. The Home Under-Secretary informs the Mayor that the train will run back from Queanbeyan to Tuggranong for the purpose of inspecting the Wanisssa site. The Representatives will leave the train for a coach trip to inspect the Canberra site, and then proceed by train again to Bungendore.

YASS, Friday.

The Yass Federal League held a meeting last night and made all arrangements for the reception of the representatives.

BISLEY RIFLE TEAM.

MAJOR-GENERAL HUTTON'S VIEWS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The attention of Major-General Hutton was drawn this afternoon to an article published in the "Sydney Morning Herald" of Thursday, in which Lieutenant-Colonel Longfield outlines the case for the National Rifle Association of New South Wales concerning the Bisley team difficulty. Major-General Hutton said that until Lieutenant-Colonel Longfield's statement reached him through the ordinary official channel he could say nothing further than that he keenly regrets the difficulty and the failure of his efforts to restore and to maintain harmonious relations between the councils of the National Rifle Association and the Commonwealth Rifle Association.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Could not New South Wales send two or more men to compete in rifle contests in England? I feel sure they would give a good account of themselves and do credit to this State. I know nothing of these matters, but think New South Wales should be represented among riflemen in England during the forthcoming great rifle contest there if possible.

I am, &c.,
JAMES STANWAY.

May 6.

THE WEATHER.

The rains, which commenced to fall in the Riverina district at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, unfortunately ceased during the course of the night, and yesterday the weather was reported as fine at all the stations. A heavy fall of rain and hail occurred at Cape St. George yesterday afternoon, no less a quantity than 115 points being recorded within a quarter of an hour. Last night's report, however, showed that the rain had ceased. Glen Innes at 6 o'clock last evening reported two points of rain since morning, but the weather had cleared. The only station in the State which last night reported that rain was falling was Gabo Island.

Mr. Russell says that more rain will fall to-day in the western districts, and particularly along the western slopes. He also predicts showery conditions on the coast with southerly winds.

CANOWINDRA, Friday.

Light rain fell last night, nine points being registered.

COOLAMON, Friday.

This morning 22 points of rain were recorded. From reports to hand this rain appears to be general throughout the district. Ganmain had 21 points and Kindra 21. This will allow the farmers to complete ploughing.

PARLIAMENTARY REFORM.

REDUCTION OF MEMBERS.

CITIZENS' EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Citizens' Association for the reduction in the number of members of Parliament was held in one of the rooms of the School of Arts yesterday afternoon. This was an executive committee appointed at a meeting held in the Sydney Stock Exchange on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. E. C. V. Broughton, M.L.A., presided.

The chairman said he had received a large number of apologies. He would like to remove an impression that he had jumped the claims of any other gentleman. As far back as April, 1901, he convened a meeting at the Hotel Arcadia, and the Political Reform Association was formed. That was the beginning of this movement. Others had taken it up, but they had let the matter drop. But he and the present association would not allow the movement to fall through. They would carry it out to the end. (Cheers.) It had been announced that a meeting would be held in the Town Hall. He had nothing to say about that, but it appeared to him that umbrage had been taken by a certain section of the community at his action in calling a public meeting. This movement would not succeed unless they had the masses, not the classes behind it. He was not in favour of working this democratic movement as a class movement. They wished to fall into line with others, but he heard that no less than four movements were in progress. He was entirely in the hands of those present.

Alderman Miller (Ashfield) said the Town Hall meeting was called to knock Mr. Broughton out. (Cheers.) They were all meeting for the one object. He would like the chairman to explain whether if the Government would not bring forward the necessary reform he would support them or not.

Mr. Broughton said his position was clear. He supported the Government on its manifesto. One of the principal items in it was that Parliament should be reduced at least a quarter. The Government should give Parliament an opportunity to carry out the pledges made to the electors. (Cheers.) If Ministers did not do that he would vote against them. (Cheers.) He was independent of cliques. (Cheers.) He would ask for an expression of opinion as to whether the present organisation should be continued. (Cheers.)

The chairman then put it to the meeting whether they should go on independently, or ask for unity with the other organisation.

After discussion it was unanimously decided to carry on without amalgamation with the other project.

It was then decided that independent action should be maintained.

The Chairman said that in pursuance of the resolution of the meeting held in the Stock Exchange on Wednesday, he had written to the Premier asking him when he would receive a deputation of citizens on the subject. (Cheers.)

Mr. John Hughes was then elected secretary of the movement, Alderman A. W. Miller was elected treasurer.

It was decided to hold a public meeting in the Protestant Hall on Thursday night next.

It was also decided that the executive committee should meet daily.

VIEWS OF SIR WILLIAM LYNE.

FAVOURS REDUCTION.

ECONOMY WILL BE INSISTED UPON.

Sir William Lyne, Minister for Home Affairs in the Commonwealth Cabinet, was waited upon last night by a "Herald" reporter, and was asked his views concerning Parliamentary reform.

Sir William said: "Whilst I do not want to interfere in State politics in any way, I think I may explain my views briefly. Had I remained in the State Parliament I should have placed a definite proposal before the country, stating the number of members by which the Parliament was to be reduced, on the understanding that the decision was to take effect at the termination of the present Parliament. I should then have brought in a bill providing for that reduction, and making it operative at the ensuing general election.

"It is of no use," continued Sir William, "shutting one's eyes to the fact that with the Commonwealth Parliament growing in importance, a large number of duties will be taken away from State legislators, and there will have to be a considerable reduction in the number of members in the Parliaments of the States. There must be a shrinkage in the State representatives equivalent with the growth of the Commonwealth Government. The public will insist upon it. The question has been satisfactorily settled in South Australia. It is a vital matter in Victoria, and the movement is a growing one in New South Wales. And it will, in my opinion, be fought out to a successful issue."

DISCUSSION IN THE REDFERN COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Redfern Council held on Thursday evening a letter was read from the Camden Council, asking for co-operation in a movement to reduce the number of members of the State Parliament, and suggesting that a meeting be called in Redfern with that object in view.

Alderman Howe moved that the letter be received, and that the Redfern Council agree to co-operate with the Camden electors in their endeavour to bring about a reduction of the number of members in the State Parliament. He was sure that the aldermen who ought to know something about the mind of the residents on such a matter were all of opinion that the number of representatives of the State Parliament ought to be reduced.

Alderman Dearin seconded the resolution. He thought the Camden people were to be commended for their action in striving to get rid of what was certainly a blot on the State of New South Wales. There was no doubt in his mind that the majority of the State members were elected in the belief that they were going to support and carry a measure for the reduction of members. Yet the electors found to-day that those very members were burking the question, and were prepared to hang on to the £300 a year as long as they could. He had no hesitation in saying that when an expression of opinion was made by the electors on the subject, such expression would be in accord with the views given forth by the people of Camden.

Alderman Gorton supported the resolution. He said that whilst the council did not directly control Parliamentary affairs, yet he thought the present was an occasion when the aldermen should rise to the position, and perform what really in this instance was a duty. The people at the present time were too much governed altogether. It had been suggested that 80 members would be enough to represent the State. He thought 50, or even 25, would be sufficient, especially as they had federal representation as well.

Alderman Batchelor strongly advocated the doing away with the roads and bridges members, and allowing the people to have a little more local self-government.

Aldermen Macnamara, Clarke, and Parkes supported the resolution.

The Mayor (Alderman Fanning) said he was very glad to hear so many of the aldermen express themselves in favour of the motion. He thought two-thirds of the present number of the members quite sufficient to control State Parliamentary affairs. He was not, perhaps, in favour of everything in the resolution from Camden, but he certainly was strongly in favour of a reduction of State members. He was so inclined on the grounds that he was a true federalist. If it had not been for such an understanding he did not think that federation would have been accomplished. It had been stated in the press that a majority of the members were in favour of the reduction, and, in his opinion, the time had come when everybody's hand should be forced. If members voted against a reduction now then they would be going against their hustings' pledges.

The motion was unanimously carried, and the Mayor was empowered to call a public meeting of the electors of Redfern to deal with the subject.

YASS, Friday.

The feeling in favour of a reduction of members in the State Parliament runs very high in Yass. It is openly declared by a section of the electors that they are determined not to vote at the next election for a candidate unless he is prepared for a straight-out reduction.

THE TICK IN QUEENSLAND.

The following proclamation in regard to the tick fever in Queensland has been gazetted:—

"Whereas by proclamation dated the 15th day of April last certain concessions were cancelled, and by proclamation dated the 22nd April last, it is among other things prescribed that the introduction of horses, camels, cattle, sheep, pigs, and goats into this State from certain parts of Queensland was prohibited, and from other parts of that State allowed under restrictions; and whereas it is deemed expedient to modify the prohibition on horses in actual work from this State entering that portion of Queensland described as schedule B to the proclamation of April 22: Now, I, Sir Frederick Matthew Darley, the Lieutenant-Governor aforesaid, with the advice of the Executive Council, do hereby cancel the proclamation of April 15 last, and make the following alterations in the proclamation of April 22 last, which shall have effect for 12 months from the date of this proclamation:—

"The inhabitants of towns or districts in the State within 10 miles of the border, and between and including Killarney and Maryland Crossings, who are now, in the conduct of their business, in the habit of crossing and recrossing their horses over the border at a proclaimed crossing-place may cross and recross their horses over the border for a period of three days without inspection and dipping or smearing, on the following conditions:—1. The horses must be horses in actual work. 2. The horses shall be inspected and found free from infection. 3. The horses must be registered with the inspector of this State, and a permit granted for them to the effect of schedule B to proclamation of March 11 last. 4. The horses shall be dipped or smeared by their owner to the satisfaction of the inspector for this State. 5. The horses must recross the border within six hours of the time they first crossed the same. 6. While in Queensland such horses shall not be put into a yard or stable in which Queensland stock are put, but shall be tied up in a place where they will not either directly or indirectly come into contact with stock belonging to that State. 7. The horses shall, if practicable, be presented to the inspector for this State at his station, or such other place as the inspector may appoint, every fourth day after every inspection and dipping or smearing, and shall be inspected and dipped or smeared to his satisfaction; or if such horses are not presented on the fourth day after an inspection and dipping or smearing, they must, when presented be inspected and dipped or smeared, and the certificates for such horses must be endorsed to that effect by the gatekeeper or inspector before crossing the border."

NEWCASTLE.

THE COAL EXPORT TRADE.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The steamer Barwon sailed for Melbourne, via Sydney, to-day, taking 4700 tons of coal, 40 tons of coke, and 200 spokes. The steamer Isleworth sailed for Ocean Island with 650 tons of coal.

The steamer Workfield cleared at the Customs for the Bluff with 1850 tons of coal, and the steamer Era for Melbourne with 3700 tons of coal.

HEAVY IMPORTATIONS OF PRODUCE.

During the week ended yesterday the importations of produce were:—Hay and chaff 2148 tons, potatoes 403 tons, onions 70 tons, wheat 38,747 bushels, maize 3089 bushels, bran 6561 bushels, and pollard 5753 bushels. Practically all the hay and chaff have been sent to the country.

THE SULPHIDE CORPORATION.

Messrs. Gibbs, Bright, and Co., as agents for the Sulphide Corporation, have shipped 150 tons of bullion by the steamer Damascus, also 29 tons cake copper by the same steamer. The Dovedale has discharged 1000 tons of concentrates, and the Alala, due this evening, has on board 500 tons. The steamer Time is now en route from Port Pirie with 750 tons.

PLAGUE PRECAUTIONS AND SHIPPING REGULATIONS WITHOUT A PENALTY.

A case under the shipping regulations, intended to prevent rats leaving vessels while in port, developed unexpectedly in the Summons Court to-day, when J. W. Jinman, master of the steamer Port Victoria, was proceeded against for an alleged breach of the Wharfage and Tonnage Rates Act, namely, for not having two discs on each rope, and all ropes tarred for a distance of 6ft. from the wharf, whilst the vessel was lying alongside the King's Wharf, as provided by the regulations framed under the Wharfage and Tonnage Act. Mr. Sparke, who appeared for the defendant, objected to plead, and after evidence had been given as to the facts he pointed out that the defendant was charged under three separate regulations extending from May, 1898, to January, 1902. The Wharfage and Tonnage Act came into force in 1902, three days after the last regulations repealing the Tonnage Act of 1880, under which these regulations were made. That Act enacted that all regulations must be laid before Parliament, but as Parliament had not sat the regulations were invalid. Again under the two latest regulations no penalty was fixed, but a penalty was fixed under the earliest regulations for not tarring ropes. However, the defendant was charged under the later regulations, in which no penalty had been fixed. Mr. Love, the magistrate, dismissed the case.

EXTENSION OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The movement initiated by the Katoomba Municipal Council to bring public pressure on Parliament to grant extended powers of local government is being warmly taken up by all municipal councils in the district, and a series of public meetings is being arranged. The first took place to-night in the Merewether council-chambers, the Mayor (Alderman Robson) presiding.

Alderman D. Lloyd moved,—"That in the opinion of this meeting the absence of some form of local government for the whole of New South Wales is detrimental to the best interests of the State, and that the existing Parliament be asked to take the matter seriously in hand and carry the movement to a practical result in accordance with the desires of the people of the State."

Alderman F. Jacobs, in seconding the motion, said that an extension of local government would afford one of the best opportunities to secure a reduction of members of the State Parliament. The resolution was carried unanimously, and the Mayor and council clerk were authorised to sign a petition to Parliament on behalf of Merewether.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

At a meeting of the Newcastle Chamber of Commerce held this evening a letter was received requesting the chamber to assist in objecting to the renewed application for a grant of lease to undermine certain portions of Carrington being granted. It was decided to assist the Carrington Council in its movement.

The Eight-hours demonstration committee has decided to hold an art union in connection with this year's demonstration, which is to be held in October next.

AN IMPORTANT LICENSING CASE.

THE "TWO BARS" QUESTION.

An important licensing case was decided at the Central Summons Court before Mr. C. N. Payten, S.M., yesterday, when James Joynton Smith, the licensee of the Hotel Arcadia, was proceeded against by Sub-Inspector A. R. Sherwood for an offence under section 58 of the Liquor Act, which provides that the holder of a publican's license must not employ a person to sell liquor in any place not covered by the license. Evidence was given to show that on March 21 last a person in the employ of Mr. Smith had sold liquor in a bar at the Castlereagh-street end of the Imperial Arcade. The whole question in dispute was whether this bar was included in the licensed premises of the defendant.

Mr. S. E. Lamb, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared to prosecute, and Mr. C. Bull for the defence. The evidence was heard on Monday last, when the matter stood over till yesterday.

Authorities were cited by Mr. Lamb to show that it was permissible for a licensee to add to his premises, but the question was, had the defendant done so? If the shop on the other side of the arcade was covered by the license the licensee was liable to have it forfeited by reason of his permitting a retail shop to vend goods under his roof. When the original license was granted, it did not cover the rental of the shop, and it was a matter for consideration whether, as a bar was a public place, if a person created a disturbance therein he was liable or not to arrest on that part of the premises. If it was not a part of the hotel, then it could not be held to be a public place. But as a bar was held to be a public place, then the bar in question was to be held to be so in point of law if it was under the one roof. The licensee could in fact open the whole of the shops in the arcade as bars, provided the latitude of the Castlereagh-street bar was allowed, and while carrying on one bar under his license could also open two or three or even four or more. Regarding the licensee himself and the manner in which the place was conducted he had nothing whatever to say, as the place was well conducted and beyond reproach.

Mr. Bull, in defending the licensee's action in selling liquor in the Castlereagh-street bar, addressed the Bench at length on the question of the facts of the case. For a long time the premises were used as a portion of his hotel in all bona fides. Mr. Smith's occupancy had been the same all through from the time of taking over the house. The plan was never intended to embrace the shops in the arcade. The licensee occupied the premises without interference or molestation by the police for some years, and it must have formed a part of the premises in the application to the Court when the license was granted. It even formed part of the premises when the license was transferred to Mr. Smith. There was internal communication from one part of the premises to the other. Before the summons was served on Mr. Smith the communication was completed. There had been no attempt on the part of the licensee to obstruct the officers or to deviate in any way from a frank statement of the facts of the case.

Mr. Payten said that three questions had arisen. Firstly, were the premises in which the employee sold the liquor part of the premises as originally licensed? Secondly, if they were not, had they been lawfully added to since then and before the last renewal? and thirdly, if they had not been so added to, could it be said that this bar was part of the defendant's licensed premises? In the year 1892 a license was granted for premises to be called the "Imperial Arcade Hotel." The plans of these premises were lodged with the court in accordance with the requirements of the Licensing Act. Unfortunately the papers, including the plans, had been lost or mislaid. If these plans and papers had been available it would have prevented a great many of the difficulties which had arisen in the case. Renewals were applied for annually, and the certificates and applications in some instances showed a house licensed in Pitt-street and in others a house situated between Pitt and Castlereagh streets. The premises licensed were now known as the Arcadia Hotel, and, it was submitted, included the whole of the arcade known as the "Imperial," with the exception of some of the shops on the ground floor in the inner portion. The bar where the liquor was sold was at the north-eastern corner of the arcade fronting, and on the same level as, Castlereagh-street. It was admitted that at the time of the sale it had no internal communication with the hotel except the door opening into the Arcade, which was between certain hours open to the public; but after the alleged offence and before the service of the summons, a spiral staircase was set up in the bar, which staircase directly communicated with rooms which it was admitted formed portion of the licensed premises. It was a question of fact with him whether the defendant allowed a person to sell in portion of the premises which were not licensed. He thought that even if that portion of the hotel were not licensed originally, the defendant might in a proper way have added it to his hotel, so as to form a licensed part thereof. There was nothing before him to conclusively show that the bar in which the liquor was sold was not a part originally licensed. Apparently from a view of the building he should say that structurally the room was intended to form portion of the hotel. There was some evidence that it was not used as such, but in the absence of direct testimony he would give the defendant the benefit of the doubt. He therefore dismissed the case.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL AT ADELAIDE.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The Governor-General was entertained at luncheon at Parliament House by the Ministry to-day. In consequence of unfavourable weather, a garden party, which Lord and Lady Tennyson were to have held at Government House in honour of Lord and Lady Hopetoun, took the form of a reception at the Exhibition Building this afternoon. About 2000 guests were present. The Countess of Hopetoun, owing to a slight cold, was unable to attend.

BUBONIC PLAGUE.

NO ADDITIONAL CASES.

Yesterday was a clear day as far as additional cases of plague were concerned.

Reports received last evening from the plague wards of the Coast Hospital showed that the patient Gorman was not so well, that Dodds was slightly better, and that all other patients were making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

The health authorities are still investigating matters connected with the source of infection in regard to cases which have been reported during the week. As far as the two cases in the North Sydney district are concerned the department are inclined to believe that the source is local, although there is at present no direct proof that such is the case. However, efforts are now being made to obtain some rats from the district involved, in order to submit them to a bacteriological test. So far no plague rats have been discovered at North Sydney.

CHINESE QUARTERS AT ALEXANDRIA.

MEDICAL VISIT OF INSPECTION.

SANITATION MOST DEFECTIVE.

Yesterday a medical officer from the Board of Health, accompanied by the sanitary inspector for Alexandria and a reporter from this journal, made a visit of inspection to the Chinese quarters at Alexandria, where a fatal case of plague occurred on Tuesday last. The visit was undertaken so as to enable a report to be prepared for submission to the Board of Health regarding the general sanitary surroundings of this locality. The attention of the local authority, viz., the Alexandria Council, has, on many occasions for years past, the president of the Board of Health stated yesterday, been drawn to the defective sanitary surroundings of this particular portion of their borough, but without avail, and the Board of Health, now that the plague has made its appearance, has been compelled to quarantine the whole area. Yesterday the fumigation and disinfection of those premises worth cleansing were commenced. Portions of other buildings, and in some cases whole tenements, will, it is feared, have to be levelled to the ground, as their present ruinous and insanitary state makes it impossible to place them in a condition fit for habitation.

The area occupied by the Chinese in this locality is not an extensive one, but the total number who have taken up their abode within it is between 200 and 300. They are all of the poorer class and have little, if any, means of their own. The majority of them are engaged in either cabinet-making work or are employed growing vegetables and hawking the same through the city and suburbs. A number of old men—and some of these have more than reached the allotted span of life—earn a few pence in collecting rags, bones, &c., to sell again. One or two Chinamen leased the land in the first instance and built the existing rookeries, and now they let many of these places to their countrymen at a weekly rental of from 1s to 3s per week. In this way the Chinamen have crowded themselves together without due regard to the first principles of sanitation. The area occupied by these people abuts on to the main Botany-road, near the Waterloo tram terminus. It is also in close proximity to the Waterloo Public School.

The official visit yesterday commenced at Retreat-street. This thoroughfare is a blind and somewhat narrow street running at rightangles from the Botany-road. The only properties which face Retreat-street are two terraces, comprising two-storied, roughly-constructed brick buildings, one terrace on each side of the road. To each dwelling, all of which are occupied by Chinese, there are four rooms each badly ventilated and of miserable dimensions. Internally these buildings are damp, dark, and dismal, and apparently the sunlight never enters them. Nearly every one of them at the time of the visit was frequented by a number of Chinamen, who were engaged in playing "fan-tan" in the front rooms on the ground floor. In the back rooms on the same floor, almost in every house, several Chinamen were seen reclining on a couch smoking opium. The back portion of the houses were in a dilapidated state. The sanitary arrangements of these premises, which were not by any means of the most up-to-date character, were fully examined by the medical officer, who will in due course report upon them. Finding quite a number of cats in rather poor condition running about the houses, one or two Chinamen were asked if rats were at all prevalent. The reply given in each case was, "Rats no savee; too much puss." Passing from Retreat-street to premises designated in the rate-books of the borough as being situated off Retreat-street, those engaged in making the inspection came across a number of ramshackles, which were well and truthfully described by Dr. Grieves in his report published yesterday concerning the condition of the surroundings of the plague patient who died in one of these places on Tuesday last. Dr. Grieves's report is as follows:—"The place was in a filthy condition. Heaps of refuse of every description, including rags gathered from rubbish heaps, were stacked up in the patient's bedroom, to which there was no door or window. The room was pitch dark; no sunlight ever entered it. This room was the only one of premises which formed the end dwelling of several such hovels all united in one long shed that was divided by partitions of rags, &c. In each of these places an average of about seven Chinamen slept." Such a report would apply to the condition of many of the tenements which formed part of the long shed alluded to by Dr. Grieves. These huts were many years ago the stables of the Tramway and Omnibus Company, but were subsequently destroyed by fire. The occupiers at the time of the fire were Chinese, and the places have since been reconstructed out of old iron, kerosene tins, bags, wooden palings, &c. They form one long shed on each side of a narrow thoroughfare at the rear of Retreat-street. In all the two sheds are divided into about a dozen tenements of one room each. The occupants of these places number in all about 50. They each pay 1s per week house rent. The sanitary arrangements are most meagre, and of a primitive character. The interior of the buildings is in a dilapidated condition. Mother earth forms the flooring. There are no windows to the tenements, and as only a narrow opening forms the entrance to the building little or no sunlight ever enters the premises. The occupiers sleep and eat in the one compartment. Strolling round these places the visitors were suddenly confronted with a tumble-down structure situated at the end of one of the sheds—perhaps the roughest of all the tenements. Portion of one of the side walls of this slab-built hut had been knocked out. This seemed to be the only entrance to the place, for, like the others, there were no windows, doors, or flooring to be seen. Just outside the place were the ruins of a fire, comprising quite a number of old tins, saucepans, &c. Pointing to this shed, a policeman on duty said, "This is the mansion in which the Chinaman died from plague a day or two ago, and that (pointing to the heap of ruins from fire) is all that is left of his things." Further inquiries elicited the fact that portion of the shed had to be pulled down in order to get the body out for burial purposes. As soon as this was accomplished the authorities ordered that the bedding, such as it was, and the heap of old rags, and in fact the whole of the contents of the shed, should be destroyed by fire, as it was useless attempting to adopt the usual method of cleansing and disinfecting the premises. Passing on the visitors met the same sort of thing wherever they went, except in the case of the two local storekeepers, who had much larger and cleaner premises than any of the remainder of the inhabitants. In some of the places visited there seemed to be an absence altogether of the first principles of sanitation, especially in drainage matters. Certainly most of the tenements in Retreat-street and Gowrie-lane were connected with the sewer, but the construction of a large percentage of these connections was of a faulty description. Leakages and broken pans and fittings were frequently met with, and in more than one instance water was running to waste from cisterns. Surface drainage was met with everywhere. The want of light and air to the dwellings, the interior of which were all of a more or less filthy description was most marked. In the tenements occupied by hawkers baskets containing vegetables and fruit were to be seen lying close to a lot of rubbish and in close proximity to old and dirty bedding on which the residents slept. In answer to a question as to what was to be done with those vegetables the answer came, "Me sell 'em you countryman," meaning that they would be taken out for sale next day.

The inspection lasted about 2 hours. The inmates of the houses made no attempt whatever to prevent the visitors having full access to any part of the premises. In fact, the Chinese willingly answered all questions that were put to them, and as the word went round that strangers were invading their domain the residents turned out of their huts and looked on, wondering what had caused such a sudden and unexpected visitation. When it became known that a number of the tenements would in all probability be demolished several of the more intelligent of the Chinamen inquired what would become of their countrymen—where would they sleep? The answer they received was, "You must live in better houses." To which they replied, "Him got no money; him welly poor."

SANITATION AT REDFERN.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

DEFECTIVE SANITARY FITTINGS.

The following report has been prepared by the Assistant Medical Officer of Health for the metropolitan combined district at the instance of the President of the Board of Health, Dr. Ashburton Thompson, who has adopted the report. It deals with a portion of the borough of Redfern bounded by Bourke, Charles, Dowling, and Chelsea streets, and is as follows:—

On the 7th instant I made a special inspection of this area, and upon several previous occasions during investigation into the circumstances surrounding the case of John Woof (plague case No. 100), of No. 3 Rennie-street, my attention has been closely directed to various details within this area.

The area is a low-lying, flat, sandy piece of land, which was, I am informed, some years ago a shallow, stagnant pool of water. The surface presents a slight fall from the Dowling-street frontage, extending as far back as the lane at the rear of the premises on the east side of Mount-street, but between this lane and Bourke-street the ground face is perfectly flat.

There are some 60 to 70 houses in this block—all dwellings. From the north side of Charles-street run two short blind streets, namely, Mount and Rennie streets. From the Chelsea-street side Stanley-street partially intersects the block, ending blindly. Several lanes run off Charles and Chelsea streets, affording entrance to the rear of premises.

The houses facing Bourke and Dowling streets are as a whole good and clean, although some minor insanitary defects were detected.

On either side of Rennie and Mount streets are similar terraces of six houses—in all 24 houses. These dwellings are of a poor type and in a neglected state of repair. Defective ventilation of the rooms is apparent in all of them, and the floors of those in Mount-street are below the level of the footway. The backyards are small and unpaved. It was in No. 3 Rennie-street that a case of plague recently occurred. The most serious defects, however, exist in the sanitary fittings. In a large majority of these premises I found that these fixings exhibited to an extreme degree evidence of faulty construction in the first place, and of subsequent neglect in the second. Upon causing the woodwork encasing the pan and trap to be removed conditions were revealed which would require to be seen to be fully realised. Every conceivable fault and defect were exemplified; leaks at all the joints, cracked and broken pans, open joints, settlement of the fixture, broken and defective brickwork, accumulation of filth, rats' nests, and so on. In addition, there exist cisterns of antiquated type, which only flush so long as the chain is held down, and flush pipes 1in. in diameter. These latter defects would be seen, of course, if any one had even made a casual inspection, and need not the excuse that their discovery was masked by any protecting woodwork.

Off the north end of Rennie-street there is a short terrace of three weatherboard cottages in a dilapidated condition. In Stanley-street there are two very poor wooden cottages, and in Chelsea-street the dwellings are for the most part wanting in respect to sanitary details. With very few exceptions the remarks made above in reference to sanitary fixtures are applicable to these premises.

In the centre of the block a number of stables are seen, the condition of which is very far from good; floors of bare earth, uneven brickwork or broken asphalt; drains and dung-bins mostly absent. The outhouses generally leave much to be desired.

From the above review it will be seen that if we except the houses facing Bourke and Dowling streets already mentioned, the condition of the major portion of the block is such as to reflect little credit upon the owners and occupiers on the one hand, and on the local authority, whose duty it is to safeguard the public health in the district, on the other.

The borough of Redfern has a population of some 23,000 people living in 4500 houses. The sanitary work is entrusted to an officer who, in addition, is overseer of works, and in this capacity has the control and supervision of some 28 miles of roads. The officer referred to is an extremely hard-working, capable, and conscientious man, and does his best to carry out his duties as sanitary inspector; but, taking into consideration his dual position, the task is obviously beyond his powers or those of any single individual. Of this the local authority cannot but be aware.

Under the existing circumstances, the borough of Redfern cannot effect any real and lasting sanitary reform, not even efficiently discharge the duties imposed upon it by the Public Health Act. It is useless for the authority to protest and deny the necessity for reform so long as areas such as is the subject of this report are permitted by it to exist.

The conditions I have described above are not of to-day or yesterday, but have existed for years, and the need for abatement has also existed for years. If the local authority be sincere in their desire to carry out one of the most important functions of local government—the conservation of the public health—they should at once appoint a capable and qualified officer, whose whole time must be devoted to carrying out the duties of sanitary inspector. This is an essential preliminary step.

Local authorities in general should recognise the fact that no systematic sanitary work was carried out before the introduction of the Public Health Act a few years ago; but realising this, they might reasonably be expected, late in the day though it be, to amend their ways and commence the work in earnest. The Redfern local authority should, in the interests of the people, at once reorganise their sanitary department, even at the risk of courting unpopularity with some persons.

MUNICIPAL OR GOVERNMENT INSPECTORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The impossibility of securing anything approaching adequate sanitary conditions under the existing system of supervision by local inspectors—as exemplified in more than one suburban municipality recently—seems to point to the necessity for drastic reform in this direction. Would it not be better that the appointment and allotment of sanitary inspectors should be left to the Board of Health, and that their field of operations should be frequently changed? It is useless attempting to blink the fact that local interests are to a very large extent nullifying the labours of the central authority, and until some such change as the one suggested is effected no expenditure of time, money, and energy will bring about the improvement of our present surroundings.

I am, &c.,
R. VASSALA.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

TRAMWAY EMPLOYMENT.

ALLEGATIONS OF PREFERENCE TO GERMANS.

During a discussion at the Sydney Labour Council on Thursday night one of the speakers stated that German arrivals in the State had been given recent positions on the trams in preference to men who had been employed in the service for two and a half years. It was also stated that full inquiries were being made in connection with the matter, and when these had been completed the matter would be referred to the council. Inquiries were made regarding the statement yesterday, and it was ascertained by a "Herald" reporter, on the best authority, that so far as the traffic branch of the Tramway Department was concerned no such preference as alleged had been given. All applicants there were dealt with by a staff committee, who tested them in the order in which their applications were received, and it sometimes happened that the applicants next in turn to be dealt with had been on the list for a year or, in former years, more. It was stated that a few Germans were employed in the electrical branch, but they were specialists connected with the "wiring staff." In no other branch, and certainly not amongst the labourers or unskilled workmen, was any such preference given as had been alleged. In connection with the batteries of the department, however, two or three Germans were employed, but they had been engaged by the contractors, and not by the branch of the Department. These men were battery experts, and were specially imported by the contractors for the work they were doing. They came from the places where the batteries were manufactured, and no local men could have acted as substitutes for them. They were, it was stated, purely specialists.

ASSOCIATION OF OPERATIVE PLASTERERS.

In connection with the last meeting of the Association of Operative Plasterers, held in the Trades' Hall, the secretary (Mr. Joseph Phelps) reports that the full text of the resolution carried at the meeting of the union on Monday night was as follows:—"That the working rules of this society shall come into force on the first Monday in June next, and that no member of this society work for less than the minimum rate of pay for plasterers, i.e., 10s a day after that date." As a matter of fact this minimum rate came into force six months ago, when notice to that effect was given to the Builders and Contractors' Association (there being no Master Plasterers' Association at the time), but as some of the members of the union were working for less than the minimum rate, it was resolved at the meeting,—"That a month's notice be given them to get the 10s a day rate, and that the Builders and Contractors' Association and the Master Plasterers' Association be also notified to that effect, and that the working rules of the society be forwarded to those bodies."

So far as those bodies are concerned, they have recognised the union rate, and a good many are paying it.

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

ORCHARD NOTES.

The growers are now waiting patiently for some rain in order that they may commence planting operations for the coming season, but the rain seems to hold off, and so far the present operations in this direction have been suspended. When the weather makes a favourable turn planting will be carried out rather extensively. Many of the old trees in the orchards have died, and many more old ones have received such a shock from the bad season that they are almost beyond recovery. Anyhow, it would take a couple of seasons for them to recover, and, considering that a young tree would fruit as soon, it is deemed wise to take the opportunity as it presents itself, and replace the old trees with young stuff. The few showers that have fallen have had a wonderful effect on the nursery stock, and the trees have made surprising growth. Heavy rains are expected this month, but whether expectations will be realised remains to be seen. One of the indications that heavy rains will shortly fall is taken from the fact that the ants are apparently making preparations by building their nests high up in the fruit trees. On some trees dozens of nests, made of grass and mould, have been built in the forks of the trees. This is said to be a very sure sign that heavy rains, and possibly floods, will be experienced. The Fruit Pests and Disease Bill is now being freely discussed by the growers. At some of the centres the bill has been considered at length, and the general feeling is that it will not do at all. As one grower said, the more they considered the bill the more impracticable it seemed to be. It was suggested that a committee of practical fruitgrowers should be appointed to draw up a bill, and then perhaps something more practical to the minds of those interested in the fruit industry would be evolved. The Baulkham Hills Fruitgrowers' Association passed the following resolution:—"That this association views with alarm the introduction of a pests bill into Parliament as being an unwarrantable interference with the liberty of the subject, being class legislation of the worst kind, and calculated to strangle an already languishing industry, and contrary to the spirit of British law, which recognises equal justice to all." In other parts petitions are being largely signed protesting against the bill being introduced into Parliament.

THE PEARLING DIVING QUESTION.

CAN WHITE MEN CARRY ON THE INDUSTRY?

A WHITE DIVER'S VIEWS.

"If you want to see diving you must go to Torres Straits. Diving in all other parts of the world is just mud-groping. Men go down from an anchored boat and walk over a few yards of ground and are pulled up again. But in Torres Straits a diver goes down in one place and he comes up again five miles away. He walks five miles under the sea, sailing the boat above him the whole time, by signalling on the life-line. If you want to see diving you must go to Australia."

The above is the dictum of one of the old original white divers who established the Torres Straits industry, and worked there in the good times, when a boat could be filled with shell in shallow water and off the reefs. Asked what he thought of the present system of working by Japanese, he went on:—

"Divers! Of course the Japanese are the best. They dive deeper and dive cheaper. No white man could do the work they do for the money they get. Diving is not what it used to be, when it used to pay a man to take a lugger and go out from the shore. To make it pay now, you have to fit out a schooner, which costs you about a couple of thousand pounds, and 10 luggers, which cost about £350 each when fitted out, and you have to provision them for perhaps a year's cruise. They go away down to the fishing grounds, and the white men work on the schooner as clerks and storekeepers, and the captain is mostly a man with a ticket—a sailor man; but the luggers are all manned by coloured men, Japanese divers and kanaka crews mostly, though some of the crews are Manila men, and some are Torres Straits Islanders, and some are Binghis, that is Australian mainland natives, you know. Some New Guinea boys are at work too, but they are such awful fellows to get homesick. Sometimes, all of a sudden, the fit will take them, and they will begin to cry and put the lugger's head up for New Guinea. And away they will go as straight as an arrow, though they have not got a compass. Then, if you send a boat after them, they change their minds just as easily, and come back to work. It is just as the fit takes them."

"The exclusion of the Japanese is not the only trouble for the pearling boats. What are they going to do for a crew? Binghis are no good at all. New Guinea very little better. There are not many Straits Islanders, though these are splendid men when they do get them, and the most of the crews are Manila men and kanakas."

"Where do the kanakas come from?"

"From all the South Sea Islands. Many of them come up to the pearling after having done time on the sugar plantations. They think they will be sent away if they stop at the sugar, and that they will be all right if they go pearling. They do not want to go away; they have got up a petition among them to the Federal Government not to send them away; hundreds of them have signed it, and every man that has signed it has put in a pound towards the fund to try to get the matter reconsidered.

"The kanakas are born seamen, and can take a boat anywhere; so are the Manila men; but they are not as good as the kanakas. Of course the schooners get a lot of their expenses back by the profit on the goods which they sell to the luggers' crews. A kanaka on the pearling boats very seldom saves any money. What he does not spend on the schooner in buying tins of pineapple and packets of cigarettes, he spends ashore in a spree. The Japanese diver, he does not spend his money. He sends it home by post-office order; over £20,000 a year goes through that little post-office at Thursday Island in money orders."

"The Jap will go down and walk about the bottom of the sea all day looking for shell, and when he is hauled up at the end of the day's work he will get out a copy-book and an English dictionary and start to write out English words to improve his education."

"Why are the Japanese the best divers?"

"Because they are stronger and work harder, and have no fear of death. They will go down at the Darnleys, where there is great risk of the pressure paralysing them. If a man can stay down five minutes it is as much as he dare do. And yet if one of them gets good shell, the others will go down and chance the danger. A regulation had to be passed forbidding them going down in those waters. They took no heed of the danger at all. The Manila men are pretty good divers, but they won't work as hard as the Japanese."

"What wages does a diver make?"

"About three pounds a week all the year round is what he makes by his percentage of shell. They get from twenty to twenty-five per cent. royalty on the shell, and they get a share in the pearls. Some firms give their divers half the value of all pearls they get, because they say it is better to get half the pearls themselves than no pearls at all."

"Do you think white divers could make a living at it?"

"They could not get the sort of living a white man wants. Three pounds a week is not wages for that sort of work. The pearls are few and far between, and the expenses are heavy, and if there comes bad weather the boats cannot work. If the fleets go to New Guinea a few white divers may make a living by diving in our own waters; but it is open to them to do it now. I don't think it would pay any firm to pay white divers and crews to work in our waters. Something might be done by machinery. If a good pearl-diving machine is invented it should settle a lot of trouble. We may see one before very long."

And with this the old diver went his way.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODDFELLOWS.

GRAND ANNUAL MOVABLE COMMITTEE.

The forty-fifth annual session of the Grand Annual Movable Committee of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, M.U., was continued at the Manchester Unity Hall, Elizabeth-street, yesterday. Brother P. F. A. Kinna (Grand Master) presided. There was a full attendance of grand lodge officers and deputies.

A report was submitted in connection with the lodges in the Braidwood district. A discussion followed.

Bro. J. Gardner moved,—"That the officers of order be empowered to investigate the affairs the of the Braidwood district, with a view to an endeavour being made to improve its condition, and that the report be submitted to the Grand Master and Board of Directors to be dealt with by that body."

Bro. F. Johnson seconded the motion, which was carried.

A GUARANTEE FUND.

In accordance with instructions from the last Grand Annual Movable Committee, the officers submitted a report upon forming a scheme for the inauguration of a Guarantee Fund.

Bro. C. Still moved,—"That a scheme for establishing a guarantee fund as submitted by the officers be adopted and inserted in the laws of the order." The motion was seconded by Bro. G. Reynolds.

Bro. W. H. Austin moved to add the words,—"Providing that some equitable arrangement be made to take over the present guarantee association as established by various district lodges in conformity with a resolution passed at a grand annual movable committee of the M.U."

Bro. S. Gelding seconded the amendment.

The amendment was negatived, and the motion was carried unanimously.

Bro. J. Clarke moved,—"That the formation of the guarantee fund be on the basis of the Queensland guarantee fund in connection with the order in that State."

Bro. F. Johnson seconded the resolution, which was carried.

A letter conveying the fraternal greetings of the council of the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia was read from the secretary, Bro. T. J. Iredale.

The session resolved itself into a committee to deal with certain proposed amendments of the rules of the order. Discussion followed, and at 5.30 p.m. the session was adjourned until 10 a.m. to-day.

NORTHERN SUBURBS CEMETERY.

The question of providing means of access to the site acquired for the purposes of a general cemetery for the northern suburbs at the Field of Mars cropped up at the last meeting of the Willoughby Council, when the Mayor (Alderman F. C. Petrie) submitted a minute on the subject. He pointed out that some time back the Minister virtually promised to establish communication with the new cemetery by extending the present Willoughby tramway along Victoria-avenue to Chatswood railway station, and thence by way of Fuller's-road, and a bridge over the Lane Cove River to the cemetery site. But owing to want of funds it had to give way to the proposed tramway to Folly Point. In view, however, of the determination of the Minister not to persevere with the latter work, the Mayor recommended that the various municipal councils and other public bodies in the northern suburbs should be asked to co-operate in a deputation to the Minister for Works, to urge the necessity of providing access to the cemetery site by the route mentioned. The recommendation was adopted.

POULTRY.

All questions relative to fancy or commercial poultry keeping, diseases, &c., must be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

C. J. H.—The secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society is the proper one to apply to with reference to your prize money.

Incubator.—No one could tell you which is the best incubator. When the season opens they will be duly advertised. Given fresh, fertile eggs, all that are in the market will hatch successfully, so you can pay your money and take your choice.

Summer Hill.—1. A cure for roup has been given in many previous issues of the "Herald." 2. You will see a wart ointment advertised in every Saturday's issue of the "Herald."

The Poultry and Kennel Club of Victoria, which usually gets good support from the fanciers of this State, has issued the schedule for its twenty-sixth annual show, to be held at the Exhibition Building, Melbourne, on June 11 and three following days. The classification for the various sorts of fowls at this show is usually an extensive one, but the present exceeds all previous issues. Waterfowl have been catered for to the extent of 24 classes, Hamburgs and game 20 each, Wyandottes 14, Orpingtons and Leghorns 12 each, the remainder of the breeds having eight or four classes each, including two for export, for which city firms contribute special prizes. The management accompany their schedule with a special circular notifying exhibitors of the increased classification and the more welcome additions to the prize money, which is given on a sliding scale according to the number of entries, which runs up to 40s first, 20s second, 10s third, and 5s for a fourth prize. When the entries only reach seven in each class 20s, 10s, and 5s are offered. The fee is 5s each entry. Mr. W. Simpson is hon. secretary.

The Hawkesbury District Association is in the field with the programme for its twenty-third show to be held on the racecourse grounds at the end of next week. The district is proverbially a good poultry one, Hawkesbury chickens being as well-known in the Sydney produce saleyards as is South Coast butter, the name being an index to good quality. This is largely attributable to the great number of game birds bred in the district, every farmer's or cottager's fowls being for the greater part colonial Game. The local society give ample encouragement for the breeding of these, the classes for Game at the annual shows being always the largest, and for the most part the best in the State. The society further encourages the breeding of good birds by providing classes for the best table fowls to be catalogued at a price not exceeding 6s per pair, with a free entry. Altogether 30 classes are provisioned for Game fowls, the other breeds being also well looked after. There are a number of special prizes, the entry for all classes 1s 6d per pen. Mr. Guest is secretary.

The laying competition now being conducted at the Hawkesbury College, from the first month's report, as published in the "Herald" on Saturday last, gives evidence of being as resultless as the numerous predecessors of such like contests which have taken place in England, the principal of which have appeared in the "Herald." Each of the various contests have had a different breed of fowls laying the most eggs in a given time, not one of the contests affording any evidence of which breed of fowls are the best layers, the only effect of the competition being that the owner of the birds which make the best record gets due publicity and credit for having a good laying strain of fowls, whereas had the contest been carried on a few months longer there is the possibility of the best layers in the four months being the worst in an eight or 12 months' competition. The Hawkesbury results so far as they have gone emphasise what has been observed in the English competitions, namely, the breeds which have always been regarded as A1 layers have in the actual test frequently appeared at the bottom. For instance, Minorcas have, and always had, the reputation of being excellent layers. Still, at the college there are three pens of these competing, the 18 birds of these collectively laying in the month but a couple of eggs. Altogether 41 pens of six birds each are located at the college, the following being the average of the principal breeds:—

	Eggs.	Average Per Pen.
Four pens Silver Wyandottes laid	131	33
Five pens Buff Orpingtons laid	140	28
Three pens White Wyandottes laid	81	27
One pen Imperials laid	27	27
Five pens White Leghorns laid	124	25
Eight pens Black Orpingtons laid	130	18
Three pens Buff Wyandottes laid	53	18
One pen Gold Wyandottes laid	12	12
2 pens Buff Leghorns laid	25	12
Two pens Anconas laid	19	9
One pen White Orpingtons laid	2	2
Three pens Minorcas laid	2	0
Two pens Andalusians laid	1	0

In the following months of the competition the above order may be reversed. In the meantime the low average is exciting a good deal of wonder amongst breeders, the following being one letter of a number received on the subject:—"Sir,—The very low average as given in your issue of Saturday last must come as a surprise to poultry people generally. During the same period—the month of April—my wife has gathered no less than 77 eggs from six hens, comprising four minorcas, one Spanish, and one white leghorn; and that without any special care or treatment. No doubt some of the competitors are losing heart, but let us hope that ere the six months have elapsed the tables may be turned. I almost regret I did not enter my birds to show the others how to lay. Yours, &c., W. J. Butcher."

Contrary to expectation, the supply of fowls for export shows no decrease. The arrivals by rail, road, and boat during the past fortnight have been fully up to what preceded during the months of March and April. The high price of foods and few eggs being produced is no doubt the cause of the continued rush of both ducks and fowls to market, but experienced dealers in these goods anticipated that ere now the quantities would be diminishing. Orders for the South African markets are as plentiful as ever, and the record shipment for that country since the inception of the business took place this week, the steamer Damascus taking from the Government Export Depot slightly over 20,000 head. A large number in addition to these were also prepared and shipped by a private firm. A general belief prevails among city people that the export business now relieves the local market to the extent of two-thirds of the arrivals, and in the absence of this demand there cannot be a doubt that poultry would be most difficult to dispose of at almost any price, even lower than what obtained before the opening of the present markets in South Africa. It is believed the demand will continue.

The market price of eggs—new laid at 1s 10d per dozen—although a good one, is scarcely so high as producers anticipated, realising the enormous quantities of poultry which have been taken off the farms during the past five or six months, the local production being necessarily affected; and, were our markets depending solely on our own State's supply, there cannot be a doubt that eggs would be now at famine prices. How the Sydney supplies are augmented by importations can be seen any week in the "Herald's" import figures, as many as 200 casks of Adelaide eggs arriving in one week. Victoria also contributes largely, and during the present week Chinese, which it was thought the 6d per dozen would prohibit, have been put on the market, and for pastry and such purposes are realising 1s 3d per dozen. The past week has also witnessed a large number of cold store eggs being placed on the market, which are now becoming a standard article and not looked upon with suspicion as in the experimental days of the business. Those who had quantities of these that were perfectly fresh at the time of storing are reaping a rich harvest, they being in request in preference to those arriving from some of the rivers. In last Saturday's "Herald" a large Sussex-street firm of egg-dealers announced that they were purchasers of large quantities of Government cold store eggs, and during the present week a principal of the firm states that the demand is in excess of the quantities offering. Altogether 150,000 dozens were stored in the Government chambers, and it is considered about half of the above quantity have been disposed of. Many holders expect to get higher prices, and to this end are still holding, knowing that time does not now affect the quality of the article. However, after June the arrivals of eggs in Sydney from the warm districts of the State begin, and those having large quantities in store will for best results place them before that time.

An acknowledged principle in the breeding of prize poultry is that to attain the highest measure of success the fancier must confine himself to one breed, and devote to it his undivided attention, when success will eventuate. With the very few good shows in Australia the majority of fanciers take up several varieties, but those who have confined themselves to the production of one sort invariably leave the other breeders behind. As an illustration of this Indian Game have taken three firsts at the Royal, and three at Maitland, two each at Lithgow, Dubbo, and Camden, and first in hens, second in cocks at Bathurst, beside a number of cups, and other awards. Records such as above cannot be attained by those who divide their attention among a number of breeds, and those desirous of supremacy will best reach that goal by confining their knowledge to the production of one variety.

When the Orpington and Game clubs were first mooted some breeders doubted their chance of success. However, the results already attained thoroughly justify their inception. Quite a number of cups and trophies have now been subscribed to be competed for at the various shows; the principal one is that offered by Dr. Fiaschi, the president of the Game club, and is to be of the full value of 10 guineas, to be awarded to the best Australian-bred Game cockerel. The members of this club are also subscribing a cup of equal value to be given to the best Australian-bred Game pullet. The Game club membership is steadily increasing, but is left behind by the Orpington, &c., Club, whose membership this week got up to 100. Mr. Butcher reports that he is still receiving applications for membership for the proposed club of the Mediterranean breeds.

The secretary of the Northern Agricultural Association, Singleton, writes:—"In revising the prize schedule for the thirty-fourth annual show of the above society, to be held on August 27, 28, and 29 next, my committee on Saturday last made an important alteration in the poultry section by offering prizes for single cock or cockerel and for single hen or pullet, instead of for pairs. The prizes are, therefore, doubled, making 70 classes instead of 35 classes for poultry as hitherto. It is hoped this innovation at Singleton shows will cause a great increase in this interesting section at the ensuing show."

Mr. Gilbert, of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa, in his address at Winnipeg before the poultrymen of Manitoba, touched upon the subject of the style of fowl most in demand in the English and Canadian markets, and mentioned Plymouth Rocks and white Wyandottes as the varieties most in favour. He also mentioned Buff Orpingtons. In his work at the experimental station these varieties stood the test of practical qualities as well as any, and he recommended them to the Canadian farmer as a general purpose fowl, one that would materially assist in giving a profit to farm work. Mr. Gilbert takes nothing for granted, and does not believe in theories that will not stand the test of experience. His work is free from prejudice, and it is results that count with him. It is the work of such men that is of benefit to the poultry industry. They do not present ideas and theories, but facts—facts that are the result and outcome of experience, and as such are of much value to the poultryman.

THE AUSTRALASIAN CHESS CONGRESS.

The Chess Association of New South Wales at a meeting of delegates held at Tattersall's on Wednesday night passed a resolution to the effect that they will support the decision of the recent public meeting, and it was made a condition of entry that competitors must have resided six months in Australasia before being eligible to compete. A sub-committee was appointed to deal with the preliminaries, and consisted of Messrs. Crane, Miles, Beaumont, Spedding, Nash, Cowley, Bamford, Jacobsen, and P. S. Hunt. It was decided to keep all funds received on this account quite apart from association moneys, and Messrs. Crane and Miles were appointed hon. treasurers for this purpose.

Intercolonial Chess: New South Wales v. Victoria.—The matter of the selection of the New South Wales team came up at the meeting of the council of the N.S.W. C.A., but was deferred until the meeting arranged for the 20th instant.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN CABLE MATCH.

The Anglo-American cable match was held this year under the auspices of the British and St. George's Chess Clubs. It will be remembered that the Newnes trophy must be won three times in succession in order to become the property of the winners. America having won the matches in 1899 and 1900, drew last year's match. The sequence thus broken, a new series of matches commenced. The British team, deprived of the services of Messrs. Blackburne, Jacobs, Jackson, and Ward (the latter three being unavoidably prevented from attending), the result should have been a foregone conclusion against a team headed by Pillsbury, Barry, and Marshall. As matters turned out, America won, but by one point only, and this slight defeat might have been avoided had Mitchell drawn his game, or had the committee more fully scrutinised the credentials of Mr. Girdlestone. The following is the score:—

America.		Great Britain.
1. H. N. Pillsbury	½	T. F. Lawrence	½
2. J. H. Barry	½	Jas. Mason	½
3. F. J. Marshall	0	H. E. Atkins	1
4. A. B. Hodges	1	F. J. Lee	0
5. E. Hymes	½	D. Y. Mills	½
6. H. Voigt	½	G. E. H. Bellingham	½
7. K. Delmar	0	H. W. Trenchard	1
8. C. T. Newman	½	J. H. Blake	½
9. F. Howell	1	R. P. Michell	0
10. H. Helms	1	T. B. Girdlestone	0
Total	5½	Total	4½

Mr. Lawrence worthily represented Mr. Blackburne at board No. 1; Mr. Atkins played a fine game against Mr. Marshall. Mr. Mills, who is at present unconquered, he never having lost a game in any of the cable matches, let victory escape by a hasty move, but still kept the better game. Mr. Trenchard won his game brilliantly, whilst Messrs. Bellingham, Blake, and Mason, playing safely, held their own throughout, and Mr. Mitchell up to the last moment, as stated. The only games legitimately due to America are those at boards Nos. 4 and 10.

The following is the result of the matches played up to date:—

1896. America won by 4½ games to 3½.
1897. Britain won by 5½ games to 4½.
1898. Britain won by 5½ games to 4½.
1899. America won by 6 games to 4.
1900. America won by 6 games to 4.
1901. Drawn match, 5 games to 5.
1902. America won by 5½ games to 4½.

We give the score of a game:—

(e) The right course. Mr. Trenchard, with excellent judgment, begins the attack whilst some of White's pieces are in useless positions.
(f) Too late. The game can no more be saved. If 21 PKB4, then 21 . . . QR5; 22 KRB, PKt6; 23 QB3, BK; followed by BR4, to which there is no defence.
(g) First-class style. If 22 P takes B, then 22 P takes P, and wins.
(h) All this is of a high order of excellence. The whole game was played by Mr. Trenchard with excellent judgment, and the final attack brilliantly.—"Field."

RAILWAY GARDEN DESTRUCTION.

The efforts of the stationmasters at the various railway stations along the western suburban line to beautify the stations under their control with gardens have found general approval, but it is regretted that vandalism has occurred in connection with some of them. Late at night thefts and destruction of choice plants have been accomplished at some of the stations. Ashfield and Burwood have been the chief sufferers in this respect, and the officers have felt disheartened at the occurrences. They expend their money and put labour in their spare time into the work, and they deem it a despicable thing on the part of some people to discount their efforts by theft or destruction.

NOTES.

Re the Championship Tourney.—The battle is being continued between Brown and Gallagher, who drew the first round of four games, and of the second to date two more have been drawn. The result of the Griffin-Drury contests stands, two wins to Griffin, one to Drury, with one to play. Ware beat Shaw and drew two games against M'Gregor, with two to play of their first round. The fight between Brown and Gallagher bids fair to get beyond the "go as you please" games. As yet neither of the contestants has been restricted; speculation mostly favours the latter. Nevertheless, Brown has many supporters. The battle is being watched with great keenness.

A meeting of the D. A. council was held on Monday, the 5th instant, after preliminary business. The annual report was read by the secretary, in which the result of the various team matches, the presentation of the premiership medals, the promotion of the State championship now proceeding, and other measures they had taken in the interest of the game were mentioned. The treasurer presented his balance-sheet duly audited, showing a cash balance in hand of £3 2s 6d, which was considered very satisfactory. The adoption of the report and balance-sheet, proposed by Mr. Lee, and seconded by Mr. Stormont, was carried. The secretary was instructed to write to the various clubs intimating that the election of officers will take place on the 19th instant, when clubs desirous of joining the association will please to appoint two delegates, and send in a list of their playing members, with the subscription for the ensuing season.

It has been suggested that the next series of team matches promoted by the association be played in such a way that clubs may play as many as they please., and that those who are not regarded as first grade players will be given a start, so that they will have a fair show against the strongest combine.

I have been advised that a correspondence match has been started between Mr. J. Miller, Pyrmont, and H. B. and E. N. Savage, of Kempsey, in consultation.

By late files the English tourney for the championship closed with 13 entries on March 22.

In the tourney at the London city new rooms, which closed with 118, Mr. J. H. Strudwick won the first prize with the fine score of 5 wins and 16 draws out of a total of 21 games contested.

Mr. W. Gardiner will shortly create a new blindfold record by contesting 24 simultaneous games. He estimates six hours as the shortest period of time likely to be occupied in the performance of his contemplated task, says the "Pittsburg Despatch."

The "Glasgow Weekly Herald" announces that Mr. R. Jordan has accepted a challenge from Mr. H. Freedman to play a match for £50 a side, together with the championship title. The conditions of play have not yet been agreed to. Mr. Freedman proposes the Wyllie-Ferrie restrictions, or the nomination of openings from Robertson's "Guide." Mr. Jordon is in favour of the Ferrie-Jordan restrictions, or else of the restrictions of the Jordan-Stewart match of 1897. Mr. Jordon also stipulates that the match shall be contested in Edinburgh: and that play shall begin three months after the signing of articles.

J. Birkinshaw, the noted old Yorkshire player and ex-champion of London, lately "held the chair" against all comers. Birkinshaw has not been seen much in draughts circles of late, but he was always a hard nut to crack, especially when there was "money on," and he has won more matches for a stake than probably any living exponent of the game. We are glad to note that the old Yorkshire veteran is still in fighting trim.

SYDNEY HOSPITAL.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors was held at the board room, Macquarie-street, on Tuesday last. Present: The Hon. Sir Arthur Renwick, (president), Messrs. John Pope, and Michael Chapman (vice-presidents), Messrs. C. L. Garland, James Stedman, the Hon. R. J. Black, M.L.C., G. Boyce Allen, the Hon. Dr. Mackellar, M.L.C., Sir Matthew Harris, Dr. Jenkins, Alexander Dean, B. N. Sheridan, and T. R. Allt. Apologies were received from Mr. David Fell and Mr. J. H. Goodlet. Accounts for April, amounting to £2022 5s 8d were passed for payment. The hon. treasurer's monthly and quarterly financial statements were laid on the table. Leave of absence for two months, on account of ill-health, was granted to Dr. Goode. A communication was received to the effect that Dr. William Chisholm had been appointed as one of the representatives of the hon. medical staff on the board of directors, in place of Dr. Jenkins, who is proceeding to England on leave. Dr. Chisholm was also appointed a member of the house committee. The resignation of Mr. J. C. Taylor, auditor to the hospital, was received with regret. It was decided to invite applications through the press. The house committee reported progress in connection with the furnishing of the Nightingale wing. The attendance book of the hon. medical staff was read.

PHOSFERINE,

THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS.

Phosferine is the most powerful Nerve and Recuperative Tonic known. It removes Mental Depression, Want of Tone and Nerve Power. It has remarkable Health-giving, Strength-giving, Energising, and Rejuvenating Properties.

No other medicine has received such absolute proof of its extraordinary properties in restoring shattered Constitutions, and in giving back to the prematurely aged New Life and Energy.

It is an unfailing remedy for NEURALGIA, NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA, ANÆMIA, BRAIN-FAG, DEPRESSION, IMPOVERISHED BLOOD, RHEUMATISM, SLEEPLESSNESS, INDIGESTION, INFLUENZA, NERVOUS HEADACHES, DEBILITY, and all disorders consequent upon a reduced state of the nervous system.

ROYAL COMMANDS.

Phosferine enjoys the distinguished honour of having been supplied by commands to

MEMBERS OF THE BRITISH ROYAL FAMILY.

H.I.M. the Empress of Russia
H.M. the King of Greece
H.M. the Queen of Roumania
H.I.M. the Dowager Empress of Russia
H.S.H. the Hereditary Princess of Leiningen
H.I.H. the Grand Duchess Olga of Russia
H.R.H. the Crown Princess of Roumania
H.I.H. the Grand Duchess Serge of Russia
H.R.H. the Grand Duchess of Hesse
H.I.H. the Grand Duchess Xenia of Russia and the principal royalty and aristocracy throughout the world.

No other Medicine has been awarded this unique distinction of Royal favour, and it speaks volumes for the wonderful restorative properties of Phosferine.

TELEGRAM FROM

H.M. THE QUEEN OF ROUMANIA.

Ashton and Parsons, 17 Farringdon-road, London, E.C.

Please send for Queen of Roumania four more bottles of Phosferine.
Bucharest, Palais Royal, May 27th, 1901.

THE EARL OF ROSSLYN AND THE MARCHIONESS OF ANGLESEY SPEAK IN PRAISE OF PHOSFERINE.

The EARL of ROSSLYN writes:—"I have recommended the medicine (Phosferine) to two or three of my friends, one of whom has already told me that he finds it suits him very well.—December 29, 1899."

"The MARCHIONESS of ANGLESEY will be obliged to Messrs. Ashton and Parsons for two more bottles of their Phosferine. She is sorry to trouble them again so soon, but it is so popular among her friends. She has given her last bottle away.—July 11, 1889."

On account of its host of Royal Patrons, Phosferine is not inaptly known to the public as

THE ROYAL TONIC.

It is an unfailing remedy for NEURALGIA, NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA, ANÆMIA, BRAIN-FAG, DEPRESSION, IMPOVERISHED BLOOD, RHEUMATISM, SLEEPLESSNESS, INDIGESTION, INFLUENZA, NERVOUS HEADACHES, DEBILITY, and all disorders consequent upon a reduced state of the nervous system.

THE WOOL TRADE.

Friday Evening.

The presence of many of the local buyers in Brisbane this week, and the limited offerings here have combined to make the week under notice a very quiet one. The good attendance of buyers in the northern centre may be largely put down to the smallness of available stocks in Sydney, for the great bulk of the wool which has been arriving locally since the last auctions were held has been going into store to await realisation under the hammer. Such lots as have been available on the spot, of which scourers' parcels formed a large proportion, have been eagerly taken up at very full and advanced rates, notwithstanding the fact that the London market will have to show further improvement before rates there equal those which have been and are still being paid in Sydney. Of course buyers who are operating now are looking to the conditions which will rule in the later part of the year, as the wools being purchased now cannot get in for resale in London before the September series, and if bought on direct account will have to face and share in the conditions ruling at their time of arrival on consuming centres. These conditions, however, give every promise of being favourable, mainly from the fact that whilst 863,000 bales were available—of which 738,000 bales were sold at the July, September, and November series of 1901—it is estimated that the quantity which can be placed before buyers at the corresponding sales this year will not exceed 400,000 bales—if it reaches that comparatively small aggregate. One carefully prepared estimate puts down the quantity likely to be available as only 275,000 bales, but in any case, if it reaches half last year's quantity such a reduction in supplies cannot be without a substantial influence on prices. These figures, by the way, include all, and therefore crossbred offerings, so that even supposing the scarcity of merino induces the increased adoption of material made from coarse-fibred wools, all varieties of the stable must benefit.

In addition to all smaller sales which have been effected in this market since we last reported, a large line of between 300 and 400 bales has been placed at prices ranging from 17½d to 19d per lb. for merino, the crossbred selling up to 16d. This high price for a coarse-fibred wool has not been equalled for many months, and is some evidence of what we state above as to the favourable reflection on crossbreds of a generally advancing market. Though the clip of which this scoured wool was the product showed in its greasy condition the effect of a very dry and unfavourable season, its faults were minimised and the good points made more apparent by the skilful sorting and scouring of Messrs. Wright and Abbott, of Botany, who were entrusted with the handling of this large parcel.

In the absence of public business, values continue to be quoted as under:—

The increase in the export, which at the end of March was shown by the Customs Department at 63,014 bales, at the end of April was 64,407, being practically unaltered, but it is very questionable whether such a result will be shown at the end of the statistical year. Last year the months of May and June added nearly 40,000 bales to the exports; but judging by the stationary state of the increase now, and the small quantity of wool likely to be available for purchase, no such result can be looked for this year.

The sales held in Brisbane this week passed off with good spirit, the attendance of buyers being benefited by the presence of Sydney operators who have little at present in their own usual sphere to operate on. Greasy merino sold to 8½d and scoured to 19d, the clips to reach these prices being Warra, from Darling Downs, and Beaconsfield, from Ilfracombe respectively.

At the third series of sales in London, which opened on the 6th instant, a very satisfactory state of affairs is reported. Buyers are numerous and eager to purchase, this feature being noticeable amongst all sections of the trade. As compared with March closing rates merinos show an advance of 7½ per cent. and crossbred 10 per cent., latest messages stating that prices have an upward tendency. It will be quite in keeping with known conditions and general expectations if values go still higher as the sales progress.

MANLY COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

The board of management sat on Thursday, May 8, when there were present Mr. John Woods (president) in the chair, Mr. W. H. Fletcher (hon. secretary), Mr. W. J. Douglass (hon. treasurer), Dr. L. Watson Harvey, Dr. David Thomas, Dr. G. R. P. Hall (hon. medical officers), Mesdames J. Woods, W. T. Smellie, F. J. Plomley, W. H. Fletcher, Brown, W. H. Hannam, Miss Warburton, Messrs. E. B. Williams, H. E. Williams, A. B. Crew, G. U. Hosking, Owen Carroll, E. E. Baylis, W. H. Whiddon, and J. E. Norris.

The Board of Water Supply and Sewerage wrote that the hospital would be exempted from payment of water rates, but that it could not be exempted from sewerage rates. The matron reported 20 cases admitted during April, 20 discharged, and 9 remaining; three accident cases treated. The month had been a busy one, and the daily average higher than usual. The treasurer reported the expenditure for April at £55 8s 8d, which when met would leave a credit balance of £20 0s 1d. A cheque for £25 received from a donor would increase the credit to £45, and the sum of £368 would shortly be due in endowment by the Government. He presented a comparative statement of five months' working, which showed a saving of £80 upon a similar period of last year.

LAW REPORT.

FRIDAY, MAY 9.

SUPREME COURT.—IN BANCO.

(Before Mr. Justice Owen and Mr. Justice Cohen.)

THE RIGHTS OF WHARF LESSEES.

Lukey and another v. The Sydney Harbour Trust Commissioners.

Mr. Justice Owen delivered the following reserved judgment:—This is an appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Walker restraining the defendants until the hearing of the suit, or until further order, from preventing the discharge on to the wharfs of the Australian Gaslight Company of coal shipped or to be shipped from Newcastle. The principal ground of the appeal was that his Honor was in error in holding that the documents in evidence established in favour of the abovenamed company a license to occupy for the year 1901 the wharfs and premises formerly leased to them by the Crown. It appears that the company held leases from the Crown, expiring on December 31, 1899, of wharfs extending from their freehold land at Kent-street, Sydney, and a lease from the Crown, expiring on December 31, 1900, of a wharf extending from land at Mortlake, near Sydney. These wharfs were erected by the company and used for the purpose of landing coal to be consumed in making gas for Sydney and its suburbs. On November 28, 1899, before the expiration of their lease, the company applied for a new lease of their wharfs at Kent-street, but without specifying any term. On January 31, 1900, the company applied for a new lease of their wharf at Mortlake. On January 21, 1901, the company received from the Treasury the following letter:—"Referring to the occupation of the Australian Gaslight Company of the sites of terminated special leases Nos. 1108 and 2234, at Darling Harbour, I am directed by the Secretary for Lands to request that you will pay into the Treasury Department the sum of £605, being rent at the former rates for the years 1900 and 1901, less the sum of £15 paid on the 4th instant on account of expired special lease No. 2234 for 1900." On January 31, 1901, the company received the following receipt:—"Suspense Account, New South Wales, the Treasury, January 31, 1901, No. 4653.—Received from the Gaslight Company the sum of £620 sterling for the rent on special leases Nos. 2234 and 1108, awaiting reference to Lands Department." The company also paid the sum of £40 in respect of the rent of their wharf at Mortlake, and on the same day received a similar receipt from the Treasury. This money has ever since been retained by the Treasury. On May 14, 1901, the application for leases of the wharfs at Kent-street was refused by the local Land Board, on the ground that the power to grant special leases for wharf purposes was then vested in the Commissioners under the Harbour Trust Act, No. 1, 1901. The application for a new lease of the wharf at Mortlake was never dealt with. On May 29, 1901, the Commissioners wrote to the company demanding wharfage on all coal passed over their wharfs at Kent-street and Mortlake since February 11, 1901, and on their refusing to comply with the demand the Commissioners ordered vessels landing coal at the wharfs of the company to remove and moor elsewhere. Section 27 of the Sydney Harbour Trust Act vests the bed and shores of the port and other Crown lands in the Commissioners "subject to the interests of any persons in such land existing at the passing of this Act," and section 29 provides that "no lease or license in force at the commencement of this Act of, or relating to, any Crown land hereby vested in the Commissioners shall be in any manner affected by this Act." It was contended that the demand and receipt of the rent created an interest in the company or a license of or over the company's wharfs. The Crown Lands Act of 1884, section 5, enacts that "Crown lands shall not be sold, leased, dedicated, reserved, or dealt with except under and subject to the provisions of this Act." Section 6 enacts that the Governor, on behalf of her Majesty, may grant, dedicate, reserve, lease, or make any other disposition of Crown lands, but only for some estate, interest, or purpose authorised by this Act, and subject in every case to its provisions." Section 89 enacts that "land situated under the sea or under the water of any harbour, &c., shall be deemed to be Crown lands for the purpose of this section, and may be leased by the Governor on such conditions and for such term not exceeding 15 years, as he may think fit, for the erection of wharfs, jetties, piers, or floating docks." It is clear that there was no lease of these wharfs in force at the commencement of the Sydney Harbour Trust Act, which, by section 1, is made to bear date November 1, 1900. There is no power to grant a license in respect of Crown lands under the Act of 1884, except occupation licenses for grazing purposes under section 81 and timber licenses under section 115, which clearly cannot be the license referred to in section 29 of the Sydney Harbour Trust Act. But the license there referred to may be that which by the Act 43 Vic., No. 13, the Treasurer is empowered to issue to ferry boats, &c., for the use of a public wharf. However that may be, I cannot agree with Mr. Justice Walker that the mere demand and receipt of rent created a license to occupy these wharfs during the period covered by that rent. But, even if it did, such rent was not demanded until January 21, 1901, and was not received until the 31st of the same month, so that no such license to occupy was in force on November 1, 1900, the date of the commencement of the Act. The 27th section of the Act is worded differently to the 29th. The words are "subject to the interest of any person existing at the passing of this Act." Now this Act did not pass until February 11, 1901, so that the same objection as to time does not apply to the case of an "interest" as to the case of a "lease or license." Although the section uses, perhaps, the widest term possible in the word "interest," in my opinion the interest—whatever it may be—must be one enforceable against the Crown, and it was contended that the Crown, having demanded "rent at the former rates for the years 1900 and 1901," and having actually received the sum demanded "as rent," would be estopped or restrained by injunction from ejecting the company from these wharfs before the end of the year 1901. To hold this would, in my opinion, be to repeal the 5th and 6th sections of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, for the Crown could then deal with Crown lands otherwise than under and subject to the provisions of that Act. Not only are the powers of the Crown limited by that Act, but the Crown is thereby expressly prohibited from leasing or dealing with Crown lands except under and subject to the provisions of the Act. Now one of those provisions, by regulations 150-2 is that there must be a reference to the land board to inquire into the objects for which such lease is required, the rent offered, and other matters—all of which safeguards would be done away with if the Crown could be compelled, by demand and receipt of rent, to allow the person from whom it received rent to have the use and occupation of Crown lands. But the land board in this case refused to proceed with the application for a renewal of the lease of the wharfs in Kent-street on the ground that the power of leasing was vested in the Sydney Harbour Trust, and as the application in respect of the wharf at Mortlake was not dealt with, I must assume that the reason why it was not dealt with was the same as that given in respect of the Kent-street wharf. There was another point argued before us, but not dealt with in the judgment of Mr. Justice Walker. By section 68 of the Sydney Harbour Trust Act, "empowering the Commissioners to levy wharfage rates," the Wharfage and Tonnage Rates Act of 1880 is incorporated in the former Act, and by section 3 of the latter Act the power to levy wharfage rates is limited to public and private sufferance wharfs. But by section 68 of the Sydney Harbour Trust Act the Commissioners are directed to collect wharfage rates "in respect of all vessels berthed at any wharf vested in the Commissioners." This section appears to me to extend the powers of the Commissioners to all wharfs vested in them, and to do away with the limitation of the incorporated Act. For these reasons the appeal must be allowed with costs, and the injunction dissolved. I may mention that his Honor the Chief Justice concurs in my judgment.

Mr. Justice Cohen delivered a separate judgment, also concurring.

Injunction dissolved, and appeal allowed with costs.

(Before Mr. Justice Stephen, Mr. Justice Owen, and Mr. Justice Cohen.

THE QUESTION OF BREAKING SEALS ON STORES.

APPLICATION FOR A PROHIBITION. A QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

Baxter v. Oesselmann.

Mr. Pilcher, K.C., and Dr. Sly, instructed by Mr. H. H. B. Bradley (of Messrs. Bradley and Son), appeared for Ernst August Oesselmann, master of the German steamer Prinz Regent Luitpold, and moved to make absolute a rule nisi by which Charles Newton Payten, S.M., and John Baxter, collector of Customs for the Federal Government, had been called upon to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not issue to restrain them from further proceeding upon an order made by the magistrate named on December 23 last. The Attorney-General (Mr. Wise, K.C.), and Mr. Garland, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared for respondent Baxter to oppose the application. The facts of the case have already been stated. The arguments on the preliminary point were now concluded, and the Court reserved judgment.

QUESTION OF REGISTRATION UNDER THE PHARMACY ACT.

Tait v. Pharmacy Board.

Mr. Pilcher, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Messrs. Lane and Roberts (agents for Mr. A. E. M'Intosh, of Parkes), appeared for the plaintiff, William Tait, in support of a demurrer to defendants' second plea; and Dr. Sly, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, for defendants, in support of their second plea and a cross demurrer to the plaintiff's replication. It appeared that the plaintiff was an assistant in the business of a pharmacist, and had served for not less than one year before the passing of the Pharmacy Act of 1897, and continued to serve thereafter so as to make a total period of three years; and he produced to the defendants a certificate signed by two legally qualified practitioners that he was a fit and proper person to dispense the prescriptions of legally qualified practitioners. The plaintiff being of the full age of 21 years, duly made an application to the defendants to have his name entered upon the register of persons entitled to be registered as a pharmacist under the Act of 1897. He at the same time produced evidence of his qualification and paid the requisite fees. The defendants, however, refused to enter his name on the register, and he then commenced an action against them under section 34 of the Common Law Procedure Act, claiming £500 damages, and a writ of mandamus, commanding the board to register him. In their second plea to the plaintiff's declaration, the defendants pleaded that by regulation 13, sub-section D, it was provided that an application for registration must be accompanied by a declaration by the employer, and that the applicant had not produced such declaration. In answer to this plea the plaintiff set out schedule 12 and schedule 13 of the regulations, and the defendants demurred to this replication on the ground that the schedules set out were no answer to the defendants' plea, and that it admitted that plaintiff had not complied with the regulations. Plaintiff filed a cross demurrer to the defendants' second plea as being no answer to his declaration, and that the regulation requiring him to produce a statutory declaration from his employer as a condition precedent to being registered was ultra vires and unreasonable. The sole question, therefore, was whether the regulation in question was ultra vires and unreasonable, as it was limited to a particular piece of evidence, which might not be obtainable.

The case stands part heard.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Acting Justice Pring.)

A QUESTION UNDER THE SEAMEN'S ACT.

THE SEQUEL TO A STRIKE.

Re William George Todd (T. Price, respondent.)

Mr. Garland, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., appeared for William George Todd in support of an appeal against the decision of the magistrate; and Mr. Wise, K.C., and Mr. James, instructed by Messrs. Richardson and Thompson, for respondent, Price, in support of the finding. It appears that the defendant, Tress Price, was charged on the information of William George Todd, general manager of the Ferries Company, Limited, with having on March 1 last, he being a seaman within the meaning of the Seamens Act of 1898 and employed by the Ferries Company, Limited, absented himself from duty during the hours between 15 minutes past 9 o'clock a.m. and 4 p.m. without leave, such absence not amounting to desertion or not being treated as such by the master. The defendant pleaded not guilty and it appeared from the evidence that defendant was employed on board the steamer Bronzewing, plying between Sydney and Parramatta or Ryde, and on Saturday morning, March 1, a strike occurred among certain employees of the company, including defendant, and they remained out till 5 o'clock in the evening. On the previous day he, with others, had interviewed the traffic manager, and during the discussion the latter said to defendant that it was necessary to give a week's notice. The defendant replied, "Cannot we give a week's wages in lieu of notice, the same as the company can do under the agreement," and the traffic manager replied in the negative. It was not proved that there was any agreement as required by section 17 of the Act, but at the head of the wages sheet which defendant and others signed were the following words: "The undersigned employees of the Sydney Ferries' Company Limited, hereby agree that our employment is terminable by a week's notice on either side, or at the option of the company by a week's pay. In other respects the employment is subject to the rules and regulations of the company for the time being." Mr. Thompson, who appeared for accused at the hearing, which took place on March 21 before Mr. George H Smithers, S.M., raised the objections. 1. That the wages sheet was not evidence of any agreement as required by the Act. 2. That there is no evidence of the defendant having been absent without leave, and (3) that there was no evidence of the defendant having been absent during the hours of 9.15 a.m. and 4 p.m. as mentioned in the summons. The magistrate decided that the evidence did not support the information, and dismissed the case, and the question for the opinion of the Court was whether the magistrate's determination was erroneous in point of law.

Mr. Garland, in support of the application, said that the point for decision was whether a man could be considered a seaman within the meaning of the Seamen's Act if he had not signed articles, and also whether he was subject to the discipline of the penal clauses of the Act if a formal agreement had not been entered into in exact accordance with the schedule of the Act. The magistrate held that there was no evidence of an agreement under the Seamens Act of 1898 having been signed. This vessel was plying between Sydney and Ryde, and the men struck. According to the definition section of the Act a seaman meant a person engaged or employed in any capacity on board any ship, excepting masters, pilots, apprentices, and persons temporarily employed on board any ships in port. This man was employed on this vessel for years, and was therefore a seaman subject to the discipline section of the Act. The information was laid under section 82 (sub-section B) of the Act, and that and also section 81 were passed for the safety of the public, and they provided penalties for desertion, refusing to join the ship, continued disobedience of the orders of the master, assaulting officers, &c. The contention in the Court below was that section 17 applied to the case, but he submitted that it was quite inapplicable, and the question of agreement had nothing whatever to do with the case. The necessity of signing an agreement in the case of foreign-going and inter-state vessels was obvious, but the formalities required by the Act had never been gone through in the case of harbour steamers.

Mr. Wise, on the other side, contended that there was no evidence that the respondent absented himself without leave, and if the magistrate had found otherwise than he had, his decision would have been erroneous in point of law. If the respondent was a seaman under the Act, then an agreement under that Act should have been signed, and if he was not a seaman the remedy was misconceived, and the prosecution should have been under the Masters and Servants Act.

His Honor said he was of opinion that the magistrate was wrong. The only point which was really raised was whether there ought to have been a written agreement with the respondent, who was prosecuted under section 82 of the Seamens Act. He thought first of all that Mr. Garland's contention was right, that even if in the case of a sea-going vessel there was no written agreement that fact did not prevent a prosecution under section 82 of the Act. There were a number of offences mentioned in the section. For instance, under sub-section 7 there was a provision for a penalty for assaulting a master or mate, and it would be an extraordinary thing if a seaman who assaulted a master or mate at sea could not be prosecuted because he had not signed an agreement. He also thought section 17 of the Act did not apply to the case of ferry steamers, and one strong argument in favour of that view was to be deduced from section 23, which provided penalties in regard to foreign-going and inter-state ships if an agreement was not signed, but made no such provision in regard to ferry steamers. Then on reference to section 85 the matter was, to his mind, perfectly clear, because a magistrate might, if the master so required, and the seaman consented, order the seaman to be taken on board for the purpose of proceeding on the voyage, instead of imposing imprisonment, and it could never be contended that a trip, say from Sydney to North Shore, was a "voyage" within the meaning of the section.

Case remitted to the magistrate with an intimation that his decision was erroneous in point of law.

EQUITY COURT.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice A. H. Simpson.)

A PASTORAL SUIT.

Australian and New Zealand Mortgage Company, Limited, v. the Conoble Pastoral Company, Limited, and the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited.

This was a suit brought by the Australian and New Zealand Mortgage Company, Limited, against the Conoble Pastoral Company, Limited, and the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited. Mr. E. M. Stephen, instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Jaques, and Stephen, appeared for the plaintiff company; Mr. Simpson (of Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.) appeared for the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited; and Mr. Vinden (of Messrs. Vinden and Littlejohn) appeared for the Conoble Pastoral Company, Limited.

The plaintiff company, in its statement of claim, set forth that it had lent to the Conoble Company, which owned certain station property in the Hillston district, a sum of £48,000 as a first mortgage and first security on the premises, the principal and the interest at the rate of 5 per cent. to be paid by the Conoble Company on or before October 17, 1900. Default had been made by the Conoble Company, and there was now due to the plaintiff company a sum of £41,651 15s 5d, and there was accrued interest in respect thereof from the date of the filing of the statement of claim to the amount of £12 5s 5d per day. The New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited, was a party to the suit, as it claimed to have some charge on the station property and stock thereon. Plaintiffs claimed that such charge was subsequent to the plaintiffs' mortgage and asked that it might be declared that there was now due from the Conoble Company to the plaintiff company £41,651 15s 5d, together with the interest due to the plaintiff company in respect of the mortgage, and that in the alternative an account might be taken of what was due to the plaintiff company and that in default of the defendant companies, or either of them, paying the plaintiff company the amount found to be due, the defendant companies be debarred from and foreclosed of all right, title, and interest of equity or redemption in the said station property.

Mr. Vinden, for the Conoble Company, said he appeared to submit to any order the Court might make.

Mr. Simpson, on behalf of the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, contended that the application was premature, as the company, being resident in England, was entitled to six weeks within which to file a statement of defence.

Mr. Stephen argued that the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited, having a local office, and carrying on business in Sydney, was, in the eyes of the law, resident in Sydney.

His Honor upheld Mr. Simpson's point, and dismissed the application as against the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company. The application against the Conoble Pastoral Company was allowed to stand over.

Messrs. A. A. M'Coy and R. G. Breeton, J.P., were the executive officials of the movement, which proved a thoroughly popular one.

ENGINEERING ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Engineering Association of New South Wales was held on Thursday night, the president (Mr. Hector Kidd) being in the chair. The business of the evening was the discussion of a paper by the chairman, entitled "Notes on Concretes." The various points brought out in the discussion were that in making concrete it should not be rammed too hard, and that by the use of the spade a greater degree of solidity was obtained, with a consequent lessening of void. Referring to the constituents employed, angular sand was generally favoured, while Nepean gravel was said to be better than bluestone. The question of testing by the Government was also raised, and the opinion was generally expressed that after the expiration of nine months the cement should be retested before being given out for use. Those who took part in the discussion were Professor W. H. Warren (Sydney University), Messrs. A. E. Cutler (sewerage construction branch), Roberts, Baltzer, J. Shirra, G. A. Mansfield, and Robinson. Mr. Kidd briefly responded to the points raised, and the meeting then terminated.

CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS

IS A SIMPLE, SAFE, AND RELIABLE LAXATIVE.

It is recommended by many of the most eminent physicians and with permanently beneficial results.

USED BY MILLIONS OF FAMILIES

CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS

IS A PERFECT LAXATIVE,

WHOLESOME IN ITS TENDENCY, GENTLE IN ITS ACTION,

AND BENEFICIAL IN ITS EFFECTS.

CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS' great and distinguishing advantage over all other aperients is that it is a purely Natural Remedy. No mineral Salts enter into its composition. These act as mechanical irritants upon the sensitive and delicate mucus of the intestine, and accentuate the very evils they are supposed to cure. They weaken the tissue and relax the muscular fibres of the bowel to such an extent that a natural contraction is rendered almost impossible, and so, as the waste matter accumulates, it cannot be naturally expelled, and a purgative becomes an almost daily necessity. How many people you know and I know who are in this pitiable condition to-day! Reduced to it by disregarding Nature's laws, hastily and unthinkingly flying to violent purgatives; trying, in fact, to drive Nature when all she required was a little gentle persuasion. The ordinary purgative upsets all Nature's well thought out plans. The bowel is not the only sufferer from injudicious drugging, but every organ in the body shares in the results of the indiscretion. The blood, too, becomes charged with impure and morbid products, and its circulation sets sluggish, pimples, boils, and blotches bearing witness to Nature's wrath. The Kidneys and Liver become overcharged, and cannot perform their natural functions to any satisfactory degree, and a general condition of ill-health results. This is not a fancy picture. Some of us know by experience how true it is, and all of us have seen something very like it amongst our friends and acquaintances.

CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS

ACTS GENTLY, PROMPTLY, AND EFFECTIVELY.

CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS, NATURE'S ALLY, restores strength to the weakened bowel, assists the blood to rid itself of its impure components, and gives tone, energy, and activity to the jaded Kidneys and Liver. A trial will convince the sceptical of the truth of these assertions.

CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS acts efficiently because it acts in accordance with Nature's laws, and not in opposition to them. It does not create a disturbance of natural functions, and because it is absolutely free from any irritating or objectionable substance that could by any possibility cause unpleasant symptoms in the most delicate, may be given not only with the most perfect confidence, but with the greatest benefit to either sex. It is a reliable and at the same time the most agreeable family remedy for Constipation, Sluggish Liver, Biliousness, Indigestion, Depression, Feverishness, Loss of Appetite, Headache, and all kindred complaints, speedily restoring Health, Appetite, Energy, and Good Spirits. A boon to the busy man; grateful to delicate persons; a treat to children.

CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS,

NATURE'S PLEASANT LAXATIVE,

STRENGTH RESTORED AFTER ILLNESS.

A MOTHER'S INTERESTING LETTER ABOUT HER LITTLE DAUGHTER.

Here is a case of a little child who had been suffering with fever and a complication of ailments which had reduced her system to a state of extreme weakness. The way she was restored to health and strength is told in the following letter:—

"Fire Station, Brooke-road,
"Stoke Newington, London, England,
"October 21st, 1900.

"Gentlemen,—I have great pleasure in writing to thank you for the great benefit our little daughter of four years old has derived from taking Scott's Emulsion. In February last she was stricken down with fever, followed by congestion of the lungs, pneumonia, and abscesses, which held her between life and death for some days. A friend recommended your Scott's Emulsion, which she has been taking for some months, and it has certainly been the means of restoring her to health and strength. She is now looking well and strong.—I am, yours truly,

(Signed) "AGNES SARGENT."

Scott's Emulsion certainly deserves the praise it receives from those who take it. It is a standard preparation of cod-liver oil, and has more uses in the human system than any other remedy which is offered to the public. Scott's Emulsion has overcome all of the objections formerly urged against cod-liver oil. It is perfectly palatable, so that it is not objectionable to the most sensitive palate, and it does not tax the organs of digestion.

Scott's Emulsion gives the system strength and vitality. It is a specific for coughs, colds, and all ailments of throat and lungs, and in addition to the properties of a specific, it offers the most vital principles of food in the easiest form for absorption into the blood. The result of taking Scott's Emulsion is an increased appetite, better digestion of food, renewed strength, and vigour in all the vital organs.

Scott's Emulsion must not be confounded with other forms of cod-liver oil, for it is peculiar to itself, and differs from any other preparation. The only way to derive the benefits which we are revealing from day to day by the publication of letters from those who have tried our preparation is to insist upon having the genuine Scott's Emulsion, which is easily distinguished by our trade mark of a man holding a big fish over his shoulder. You will certainly be well paid if you will be careful to buy only the genuine Scott's Emulsion, for the merits of this preparation are well known both to the medical profession and to the public.

You can obtain a sample of Scott's Emulsion by sending fourpence to Scott and Bowne, Limited, 483 Kent-street, Sydney, and mentioning this paper. All chemists sell Scott's Emulsion.

A GENUINE ARTICLE.

Whose excellence has been publicly approved, is often basely imitated by unscrupulous rivals, who, utterly regardless of reputation, morality, and law, endeavour to filch the profit of its rightful owner, and take mean advantage of his labour and expenditure in bringing a reliable production into general consumption.

Wolfe's Schnapps has been no exception to this fraud.

There have been nearly 100 prosecutions by Government and agents against importers and vendors of counterfeits, and the Supreme Courts of New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland have all granted injunctions prohibiting the sale of imitations.

The public, in its own interest, should help to exterminate these evil and injurious practices. The signature of Udolpho Wolfe is printed on the label of every genuine bottle of Schnapps.

Purchasers having imitations foisted upon them are requested to forward full particulars to Udolpho Wolfe Company, P.O. Box 1149, New York, or to their Australian Address, Box 250, G.P.O., Sydney.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

Friday Evening.

In the Stock and Share market a sluggish business continues to be done. The absence of sufficient rain in the country has still a depressing tendency on some of the securities. Otherwise there is little or nothing to cause change. Money is still sufficiently plentiful to give strength to stocks not otherwise affected by special considerations. At the same time it is evident that for Government securities there is not as large buying power as there had been for some years. A market has now been created here by the free issues of the past, and those who require such stock are not in the helpless position they once occupied. And for stock that is offering the conditions of the market are indicated by the lower prices at which it has not only been submitted but actually sold. Between the new stock that can be obtained at the Treasury of one or other of the State Governments and the lots offered by former subscribers to Government issues, trustees are now in a more comfortable position than they were when they could not obtain it. And the slight depression in some, at any rate, of the most highly priced bank and other stocks, which return but little interest on the market rates, shows that the class of investors who look for what are regarded as the highest gilt-edged securities are also relatively better supplied than when they pressed prices up as they did. To-day's business included quite the usual number of transactions. New South Wales 4 per cent. funded stock was again quitted at 102. Bank of New South Wales receded ¼. Union of Australia again sold at 40½, and Commercial Bank of Sydney were offered at 29¾. Australian Joint Stock Bank B deposits advanced 1½d, having a buyer at 13s. North Coast Steam sold at 23s 9d. Insurance continued steady. Australian Gaslight declined ¼; North Shore new quitted at 18s. Tooth's Brewery continue to sell at 29s. Castlemaine Brewery and Wood Brothers rather easier, offering at 9s 9d. Business was done in Colonial Sugar at a concession of , and in Emu Gravel and Road Metal and New South Wales Malting Company at previous prices.

On the Sydney Stock Exchange to-day the following sales were reported:—Forenoon: Emu Gravel and Road Metal, 10s 6d. Union Bank of Australia, 40½. Noon: Bank of New South Wales, 43⅛; Union Bank of Australia, 40½; North Shore Gas, 10s paid, 18s. Later: North Coast Steam, 23s 9d; Australian Gaslight, 17⅝; Colonial Sugar, 37¾. Afternoon: Bank of New South Wales, 43⅛, Colonial Sugar, 37¼. Tooth's Brewery, 29s. Later: New South Wales Government 4 per cent. Funded Stock (1892), 102; New South Wales Malting Company, 13s; Colonial Sugar, 37¼. The closing quotations were:—

• Auckland Register.

Part II. of the Statistical Register for 1901 and previous years, dealing with public finance, has just been published. It shows that the public debt of the State on June 30 was £67,361,246. The debt at the end of the past five years closing at that date was as follows:—

PUBLIC DEBT.

	Amount.	Per Head.	Interest.
1897	£61,074,498	£47 6 7	£2,287,861
1898	63,112,720	48 1 0	2,255,880
1899	63,702,066	47 16 3	2,292,955
1900	65,332,993	48 4 9	2,310,271
1901	67,361,246	49 6 0	2,346,852

Since June 1 there have, of course, been additions to the debt. The sum of £4,000,000 was borrowed in London, and £936,000 in this State, to May 1, making a total of £4,936,000. To the same time loans to the amount of £1,372,000 had been repaid, leaving the net increase for the 10 months £3,564,000, and making the total debt on that date £70,925,000, equal to about £50 12s per head, which is over £1 per head above the figures of any previous year. Of the debt at June 30 £12,043,196 was registered in New South Wales, £61,500 in Victoria, and £55,256,550 in London. The additions since made bring the State portion of the debt to about £13,000,000.

After this column had been prepared last night a correcting message from the department stated that the exports of domestic produce from the United Kingdom had "increased," not "decreased," £1,505,496 in the month of April. The amount in that case would be £23,492,529, not £20,481,537. The trade for the first four months would thus be:—

Mth.	Total Imports.	Increase or Decrease.	Exports of U. K'gdom Produce.	Increase or Decrease.
	£	£	£	£
Jan.	50,131,348	Inc. 4,143,882	24,254,374	Dec. 498,957
Feb.	41,081,392	Inc. 1,977,153	21,312,278	Inc. 274,881
Mar.	40,807,961	Dec. 5,328,195	22,217,238	Dec. 2,804,055
April	45,827,303	Dec. 65,099	23,492,529	Inc. 1,505,496
Total	179,048,004	Inc. 527,101	91,276,817	Dec. 1,522,605

The imports showed a increase for the four months of ·3 per cent., the exports a decrease of 1·6 per cent.

The turn of the month being over, the Bank of England figures have lapsed into normal conditions, and the money market has assumed an easier condition, the rate being 2¾ per cent. Another week of improvement is apparent in our cablegrams of Consols and colonial securities. The week's rise in Consols is again ¼, and at 95 they are now higher than they have been since April, 1901. The prospects of peace evidently influence the market views of national and colonial securities. The only decline is in the case of New South Wales 4 per cents, which are ½ lower.

Of Australian produce the market movements during the week in London have been favourable to producers. The rise in wool at the opening of the third series of sales is fully maintained as the business of the series progresses. Bradford tops remain the same as last week. Tallow not only maintains the high position noticed for some time past, but beef is 6d per cwt. higher, and prime mutton 3d. Tin at £133 for spot, and £129½ for three months' delivery, now commands the highest prices of the year. Copper also has recovered 25s per ton on the week, while lead remains as last quoted. Silver has moved up 5-16d per ounce since last week.

The R.M.S. Ormuz cleared at the Custom-house to-day for London with 42 bars bullion, shipped as follows:—22 by Dalgety and Co., and 20 by the National Bank of New Zealand. The E. S. and A. Bank, Limited, shipped £30,000 in sovereigns.

The second quarterly "Bulletin" of the French Chamber of Commerce in Sydney has, among other contents, reports on the wool and produce sales, and details of the federal tariff affecting French merchandise.

The following is the Customs return of imports into and exports from New South Wales of gold coined and uncoined during the month of April:—

In the month the State imported £186,000 and exported £181,602, leaving a net import of £4398, which, with a total production in the State of £108,132, represents an addition to stock for the month of £112,530, making the excess of imports and production over exports for the four months £583,735.

BREADSTUFFS.

Wheat was very firm. On Thursday wheat sold in the country at 4s 5d on the trucks, equal to 4s 9d, Darling Harbour rates. It was taken principally for stock-feeding purposes. This morning a parcel of over 5000 bags sold in Sydney at 4s 4½d, Darling Harbour rates. Since then a parcel of 10,000 bags sold at 4s 5½d, same rates, the market at the close being very firm at 4s 6d. The surplus stocks of wheat are pretty well concentrated in two hands. The demand in the country is much greater than it is in the town. It is anticipated that most of the country millers will be short of wheat by the end of June.

Flour very firm at £9 10s, with continued good inquiry for Manitoba. Orders at £11 15s to £12 per ton have been booked for forward delivery.

IMPORT MARKET.

Business in the Import market to-day was very quiet. Tea was without any dealings. Good trade is passing in sugars at ruling rates, with greater demand for Millaquin and Yengarie sorts than for a long time past. Rather more business was done in groceries, sales being made of parcels of Monarch and Coleman's starch at £35 and £42 respectively. 225 boxes of Higgins' sauces and 100 boxes Swinburn's gelatine and isinglass changed hands at agents' prices. Gold Medal condensed milk is very scarce, but two shipments are expected next week. 100 cases of Karluk salmon sold at agents' prices, and 100 cases Hamper corned beef realised 10s 6d. There was no business in currants, the market, however, being very firm. 300 bags dates fetched 3d per lb. The sole transaction of any size in metals was a sale of 20 tons No. 8 black wire at £8 5s. Branbags and cornsacks were quoted respectively at 4s 6d. 150 drums of Falcon GM raw and D. boiled linseed oil fetched 4s 1d and 4s 3d. A private cablegram from London quoted Blundell, Spence, and Co.'s genuine linseed oil, raw, at 2s 8½d, a rise of ¼d per gallon on last quotations.

Tea.—The market was quiet, without any reported business.

Messrs. Fraser, Uther, and Co. will offer on Thursday next at the City Mart, at 11.30 a.m., the following lots of Ceylon teas:—By order of Messrs. Scott, Henderson, and Co., 157 packages; by order of Mr. R. T. Remington, 341 packages; and by order of Messrs. Fraser, Ramsay, and Co., 249 packages.

On Tuesday next, at noon, Messrs Cyril Trower and Co. will offer by auction at the Commerce-buildings, Ash-street, 1022 packages of new season' high-grade Ceylon and Indian teas, on account of various owners.

Under instructions from Messrs. Gibbs, Bright, and Co. and other importers, Messrs. H. W. Carey and Co will offer at their saleroom on Friday afternoon next about 900 packages of Ceylon and Indian teas (including fine Assams just landed) and 100 packages Koo-Loo.

Sugar.—Business was good, the trade in Millaquin and Yengarie sugars being brisker this month than for about three years past.

The C.S.R. Company's quotations are as follows:—Tablets, £26 10s; icing or powdered sugar, £26 10s; castor sugar, £22 10s; coffee crystals, £22 5s; brewers' crystals, £21 15s; IX or confectioners' crystals, £21; IA, £21; No. 1 (IW or snowdrop), £20 15s; No. 2 (IC or No. 1 pieces), £20 10s; No. 3, £18 per ton.

The Millaquin and Yengarie Sugar Company quote:—Millaquin 1A £20 15s, soft £20 10s; No. 1 £20 5s, and No. 2 £19 5s; No. 2B £19 per ton.

Groceries.—Rather more business was done in this department than for some days past. Sales included 200 boxes Monarch starch at £35, 500 boxes boxes Coleman's at £42, 225 boxes Higgins' sauces, and also 100 boxes of Swinburn's gelatine and isinglass, both lines at agents' prices. Gold Medal condensed milk has become very scarce, the market being practically bare, but the prices have not been altered. It is expected that two shipments will arrive during the coming week. Sales were recorded of 100 cases Karluk salmon at agents' prices, and of 100 cases of Hamper corned beef at 10s 6d.

Dried Fruits.—There was really nothing doing in the market. Currants were very firm, but good fruit was scarce. Shipping prices of currants were 4½d, elemes 6½d, sultanas 8½d, and dates 3d per lb. Three hundred bags of dates sold at 3d.

Metals.—Very little attention was paid to these lines, the only reported transaction being a sale of 20 tons of No. 8 black wire at £8 5s. Falcon genuine white lead was in steady trade demand at £20.

Jute goods were without business. Bran bags and corn sacks were quoted at 4s 6d, respectively.

Oils.—There were reported sales of 150 drums Falcon gen. raw and d. boiled linseed oil at 4s 1d and 4s 3d. In response to recent cable advances, the market was firm.

The following cablegram from London was received in Sydney yesterday:—"Blundell, Spence, and Company's genuine linseed oil, raw, 2s 8½d." This is a rise of ¼d per gallon on the last quotation.

The firmness noted in the market for cod-liver oil in all parts of the world (remarks the "New York Oil, Paint, and Drug Reporter) continues unabated, and in this market prices are generally higher and in continued upward tendency. Although the consuming season is fairly well advanced, and buyers are apparently not taking supplies in in excess of their actual requirements, holders do not appear anxious to part with any considerable quantity of the comparatively small spot supply of at present prices. Late cable advices from Aalesund, Norway, states that little or none of the new season's yield of cod-liver oil has been sold as yet, and it is too early to make any predictions as to prices, inasmuch as the Lofoten fishing season lasts well into April. Up to March 15, the catch at Lofoten aggregated about 8,000,000 fish, yield 5500 hectolitres of oil. This amount of oil is away below the average yield of the last 10 years, and is due to the fact, as has before been stated, that the fish livers are this year unusuall lean.

STOREKEEPERS.—Price list for May posted on application. Groceries, Oilmen's Stores, Wines and Spirits. S. A. JOSEPH and RICKARD, Ltd., 365 Kent-street, Sydney.—Advt.

Chemicals.—The market for chemicals kept firm. Five tons caustic soda sold at £4 10s. Eight tons liquid silica changed hands at £9 10s, and 30cwt. of borax at £19 10s.

The Customs revenue received at Sydney to-day amounted to £7185. The principal items were:—

Spirits, £1918; wine, £118; ale, porter, and beer, £86; tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, £409; opium, £81; advertising matter, £18; butter and cheese, £208; cement, £18; coffee, £29; flour, £25; grain and pulse, £70; matches, £65; oils, £38; paper, £16; rice, £47; timber, £780; varnishes, £127; glucose £14; harbour and light rates, £228; pilotage, £88; excise on spirits, £171; excise on tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, £403; excise on beer, £272; at ad valorem rates, £1966.

The total aggregates 1,247,960 bushels, against 1,162,448 bushels on April 19, 1,276,740 bushels on April 12, 1,689,591 bushels on April 5, 2,011,159 on March 1, and 2,034,912 bushels on February 22.

Wool Receipts.—At Darling Harbour to-day 175 bales of wool were manifested to arrive by rail.

Messrs. W. Weddel and Co. report under date London, April 4:—

Butter: The climatic conditions prevailing all over the butter exporting countries of Europe and also over the United Kingdom have been more spring-like than they were last week, but there are yet no signs of new season's grass butter appearing in our markets. There has been more briskness in the New Zealand market this week, especially at its close, and consequently prices are if anything firmer than they were before Easter. There is every indication that retailers have almost exhausted their stocks and are obliged to come on the open market to replenish supplies. There is no quotable change in prices, but the tone of the market is decidedly better, and it looks very probable that next week a rise in values may occur. In the North of England, where Danish and New Zealand butters are largely retailed at the same price, it is difficult to understand why buyers should not purchase New Zealand in preference to Danish, as it can be had from 6s to 10s per cwt. less money. The Gothic has left New Zealand with nearly 7000 boxes of butter on board, and it is believed this is the last shipment this season. She is due in London on May 7. The import of colonial butter for March, 1902 was 36,162cwt., against 77,617cwt. last year; the Australian deficiency being 41,968, the New Zealand 2171, while Canadian shows a surplus of 2384cwt., leaving a net colonial deficiency of 41,455cwt. The Danish committee has left the Copenhagen official quotation again unchanged at 98 kroner, being the same as last year. It would appear that the Siberian butter season has really begun and that the report of accummulated supplies was inaccurate. Cheese: The demand for Canadian and New Zealand cheese continues good. Canadian "choicest" is selling at 56s, and New Zealand "first Government" grade, at 54s, with a few lots at 55s. Stocks in the United Kingdom are very small, while it is reported that in Canada they are unprecedentedly light. The Gothic is bringing about 4000 crates of cheese.

PRODUCE MARKETS.—Friday.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

A considerable amount of business was transacted in most departments of general produce to-day. Owing to the good supplies on hand the markets were generally quiet in tone, no line displaying any marked degree of buoyancy. A fall in butter and a rise in lucerne hay were the chief movements in prices. The market for maize was dull, the inquiry being slack. In some instances sellers were prepared to give concessions on late prices. Oats moved off slowly, as did other grain lines at about late rates. Both bran and pollard commanded a little attention at slightly lower rates. Under the hammer the demand for lucerne hay was exceptionally brisk at advanced rates. Prime samples sold at the high figure of £8 per ton. The wharfs were practically bare, the bulk of the hay received to-day being for transhipment. Chaff was plentiful and quiet at late values. Stocks held on outside wharfs were offering freely at reduced rates. Straw was in demand, while oaten hay had a good deal of attention at late values. Potatoes remained without alteration, sales being steady at £6 5s for prime Circulars. Onions were plentiful and slow, especially New Zealand samples. Turnips were more or less neglected. In dairy produce a good turnover was done in most lines. The price of butter was reduced 1d per lb. all round. The market was well supplied, the inquiry being fair for best butters only. Off grades and stale makes, as usual in a falling market, were dull of sale. Eggs were scarce and dearer. Bacon, cheese, lard, honey, and poultry moved off moderately well at the prices quoted.

The New South Wales Creamery Butter Company advertise an auction sale of 500 boxes of butter to be held on Monday next, being the first auction sale held for many years.

REDFERN SALE.

An exceptionally small supply of produce was forward for sale this morning. Competition for all lines was moderately good, the most important change in prices being a rise in lucerne hay. Prime lucerne in large bales realised 7s 11d, and good medium 7s 4d. A prime lot in small bales found a buyer at 8s per cwt. Prime oaten hay moved off quietly at 5s 6d per cwt., while medium samples were submitted without leading to business. A prime lot of chickwheat had attention at 4s 3½d per bushel.

Appended are the proportions of the various descriptions of produce actually submitted at to-day's sale:—Chaff, 9 trucks; oaten hay, 4; lucerne, 3; and wheat, 1.

Stores were in slightly better demand than of late, and prices a shade higher. Heavy draught horses were in short supply, and sold readily at satisfactory rates. Indian sorts in strong request at good values; the market all round has a very firm tone, excepting for plain animals and those in low condition. Old used-up horses, owing to the high price of feed, are hard to quit. In addition to the usual offerings from town and suburbs, we sold through our bazaar consignments from the following country districts, viz.: Picton, Wollongong, Molong, Goulburn, Berry, Richmond, and Colo Vale. At the monthly auction sale of station produce to-day there was a large attendance of buyers, representing all the Australian buyers for the English and Continental markets. MINING INTELLIGENCE.

There was very little movement in prices on the mining market yesterday, and transactions were on a restricted scale. Queensland quartz ventures improved somewhat in several instances. South Glanmire and Monkland were 1s 6d firmer, with business at 39s 6d; Queen Central, paid, were steady at 10s 7½d; Victoria and Caledonia Block, paid, a shade easier at 13s 9d, and No. 1 North Columbia Smithfield, new issue, had a further rise of 5d, with sales at 3s 1d. Queen Cross Reef were sought at 58s 6d, and No. 2 South Great Eastern at 56s 6d, the figures showing a smart advance in each instance, but no quotation was forthcoming from holders. The only business in Barrier silver shares was a sale of Broken Hill South, paid, at 26s 6d. In copper companies Mount Garnet Freehold were again easier, with a sale at 9s 9d. With the exception of a sale of Jembaicumbene shares at 7s 3d dredging companies were quiet, although buyers of Araluen Central, paid, were prepared to operate at 8s 3d, an advance of 3d on previous figures, with sellers at 9s 3d. North Long Tunnel (Victoria) had a smart advance, with a sale at 17s 6d, compared with business on Wednesday at 11s. Western Australian companies were neglected. Cosmopolitan Proprietary, however, sold at 22s 6d; and apart from slight advances in Lake View Consols and Queensland Menzies prices were unchanged.

The Victorian Railway Department have made an important concession to owners of racehorses in connection with the coming meeting of the Bendigo Jockey Club, by allowing a refund of two-thirds of the fares actually paid for horses that start at the meeting. VICTORIAN SPORTING NEWS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The V.R.C. committee to-day refused to endorse the twelve months' disqualification inflicted on W. H. Short by the Aspendale Park stewards on March 30 for suspicious riding, the appeal of Short against the disqualification being upheld. Short rode Goodday in the Jumper's Flat Race, and made a dead heat for first place with Nansen, and it was in connection with his riding in this event that disqualification was inflicted. Goodday won the run-off.

The V.R.C. committee decided to-day to hold a race meeting at Flemington on Coronation Day, June 26. The committee will add £1000 to the different events.

A letter from the Moonee Valley stewards, asking whether it was advisable they should hear the protest of Mr. E. B. Bell against The Idler, winner of the Valley Handicap on April 21, or whether the V.R.C. committee should go into the matter, was considered. An important point is involved in the protest, as Mr. Bell, whose mare, Brio, was second, makes his complaint on the ground that a bookmaker has an interest in The Idler, and that such information was not as required by the rules disclosed in the nomination paper. The V.R.C. committee decided to-day that the Moonee Valley stewards are the proper parties to hear the protest, and that the result be communicated to the V.R.C. committee in the usual way. The date of the hearing of the protest will be fixed in a day or two.

ROSEHILL RACING CLUB.

MAY MEETING.

The May reunion of the Rosehill Racing Club, which takes place this afternoon on the picturesque trysting place adjacent to the Parramatta River, promises to provide a most enjoyable outing for metropolitan sporting folk, and, judging from the number and quality of the horses engaged, the sport should be of a very interesting character. The track is reported to be in excellent condition, while the grand stand enclosure, which has been greatly benefited by the recent rainfall, is fast regaining its bright and verdant appearance. In the catering, as well as in all other departments, due provision has been made for the comfort and convenience of visitors. The transit service by rail includes special trains starting from Redfern at 11.40 a.m. (horses), 12.20 (mixed), 12.50 p.m. (first-class), 12.55 p.m. (second-class), 1 p.m. (first-class), 1.8, 1.23, and 1.41 p.m. (mixed). The 12.20, 12.55, 1, and 1.23 p.m. stop to pick up passengers at Strathfield, but the 1.41 p.m. stops at Petersham, Lewisham, Summer Hill, Ashfield, and Strathfield, thence direct to the course. The sport commences at 2.5 p.m. with the Granville Stakes, for which a large field may be expected at the post. The prospects of Dum Dum, Transvaal, Spelter, and Contest seem to be about the best of the bush, and Transvaal, Spelter, and Contest may get home as written. The Steeplechase promises to bring about a good contest, in which Volcanic, Oberon, Bay Eagle, and Grafter should play the most prominent parts, and the places may be filled by Oberon, Grafter, and Bay Eagle. An interesting race should be witnessed for the Autumn Stakes, and at the weights the chances of Ferryman, Isa, Canadian, Argo, The Thorn, and Dunk seem to be about the best, while the situations may go to Wootton's choice—probably Isa—Canadian, and The Thorn. Suivre, Rose Petal, Milano, Crystona, Scarlet Runner, and Mrs. Grundy read as well as anything in the Nursery Handicap, and the numbers may be hoisted for Mrs. Grundy, Milano, and Crystona. The battle for the Rydalmere Mile should be fought out among Fanfare, The Thorn, Transvaal, The Jester, and Wyena, and the situations may be occupied by Fanfare, The Thorn, and Wyena. The May Handicap brings the afternoon's sport to a close, and at the weights Orphan Boy, Horace, Dottswood, Soldier, The Maine, and Aurantia should be the most reliable, and Wootton's choice—Horace or Soldier—should get home in front of The Maine and Aurantia. The programme is subjoined:—

Granville Stakes, 6½ furlongs.—Milos, 9st 5lb; Swanson, 8st 9lb; Neptunus, 8st 9lb; Transvaal, 8st 6lb; Bizet, 8st 6lb; The Jester, 8st 6lb; Dum Dum, 8st 6lb; Cudal, 7st 10lb; Rock Harbour, 7st 10lb; Warrigal, 7st 6lb; William James, 7st 6lb; Bondoola, 7st 6lb; Australian Queen, 7st 6lb; Spelter, 7st 6lb; Cataract, 7st 6lb; Volt, 7st 6lb; Cecil Rhodes, 7st 6lb; Ruella, 7st 4lb; Wait-a-Bit II., 7st 4lb; Comical, 7st 4lb; Contest, 7st 4lb; Kinglock, 7st 4lb; Loch Nenagh, 6st 13lb; Limerick Boy, 6st 13lb; Hazel Lad, 6st 12lb; Coleman, 6st 12lb; Camboova, 6st 12lb; Devilment, 6st 12lb; Lady Lybia, 6st 12lb; Glenara, 6st 12lb.

PEOPLE WITH EYES
PEOPLE WITH EYES

NOTE.—The "OCULARIUM" is an establishment devoted EXCLUSIVELY to examination of sight and the manufacture of eye-aids and preservers. You are not passed on to incompetent assistants, neither are you "put through smart" because another customer is waiting to be shown a 5 or 10 guinea "something or other." That's ONE reason why, when you require spectacle attention, you should consult a firm that handles naught but eye-goods. That's our position. WE don't fool with other stuff.

A DIFFERENCE IN FURNITURE.

That's quite correct. There's a difference in the material—in the way it's put together—the workmanship that's put into it, and there's a difference in the prices charged.

We guarantee that none but well-seasoned woods are used in our goods, and that the workmanship is absolutely first-class. We stand by that guarantee in every article we sell.

The difference between OUR prices and those others charge is so considerable that to purchase without seeing our goods and learning our prices would not be doing justice to your home and to your purse.

GAS FIRES GONE BUNG.
RALEIGH'S PATENT ROOM WARMER.
PRICE, COMPLETE, 7s 6d.
HUNDREDS IN USE IN SYDNEY.
WILL HEAT A LARGE ROOM in One Hour with nine feet of Gas, COSTING LESS THAN ONE HALFPENNY. Can be used in every room in a house. No cost to connect. An asbestos fire will cost about £5 to fit up, and consume about 100ft. of Gas per hour—with what result? Why, simply that the heat is rushing up the chimney, and so is the money that pays for it. M. RALEIGH is determined to squash these obsolete Gas Devourers in the same way as he has squashed their big Brudder—the English Gas Stove.
WINTER WILL SOON BE HERE.
As Shakespeare says in his sublime tradegy,
"The Merry Wives of Woolloomooloo;"—
Nowhere among the rustling trees
Shall we hear the humming bees.
An urchin in a ragged trousers,
Driving home the sheeps and cowses,
Cold and frosty are his toeses,
And, bless my heart, how blue his nose is!
MAW KONSHUNSHE!
The ROOM WARMERS are in operation daily.

THE CELEBRATED C.B. CORSET
THE CELEBRATED C.B. CORSET
keeps its shape. It never varies. It is the same one day as another—the same after months of usage as when first put on, so far as shape is concerned. When your dressmaker takes measurements over a C.B. CORSET she can proceed with confidence, because she knows that when you come to be fitted your Corset will be precisely the same shape as when the measurements were made. Your dressmaker knows also that the Costume she makes for you will always fit well over a C.B. Corset.

SAVE YOUR TEETH.

"CATAPHORESIS."

By this wonderful Dental invention Teeth can be FILLED entirely without pain, even if the nerve is exposed.
A letter from the Lieutenant-Governor of an adjoining State, also one from a Judge of the Supreme Court, Sydney, have been read by a representative of the Sydney Morning Herald, and can be seen at my chambers.
By this veritable triumph in Dentistry the extraction of Teeth should now be almost wholly unnecessary.
To save the possibility of any misunderstanding, the exact Fee can always be ascertained before any work is undertaken.
